RESCUE PLANS ARE RUSHED IN FLOODED AREA

500 Families Reported Marooned in Missouri and Arkansas.

RAIN, SNOW AND COLD ADD TO DISCOMFORT

12 Deaths in Midsouth Are Laid to Bitter Weather.

TRAINS ARE STALLED IN WESTERN SNOWS

Historic City of Vincennes Menaced by Ice Gorge in Wabash River.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The American Red Cross moved tonight to rescue 500 families flood-bound in southeastern Missouri and northeastern Arkansas. The situation in the temporary camps and marooned homes was aggravated by rain, snow and cold which was general over the flooded sections tonight.

Boats, hurriedly built at Blytheville, Ark., center of relief operations, will be used tomorrow to rescue several hundred persons in the water-bound area which now extends from the interior of Dunklin County, Mo., into the lowlands of Mississippi County and portions of Poinsett County in Arkansas.

No additional levee breaks were reported today but water flowing through crevasses in the St. Francis River levee and Big Lake in Arkansas was slowly inundating lowland farming areas in the three counties.

Rescue Is Immediate Problem.

Albert Evans, director of disaster relief for the Mid-Western district of the American Red Cross, said tonight the immediate problem was to get the marooned farmers and their families to higher ground. Those taken out tomorrow will be removed to the highlands where tents and other shelter will be provided.

In Dunklin County, which bore the brunt of the first rush of water through the St. Francis Crevasses, the towns of White Oak and Gibson were flooded and water also was standing in the streets of Senath, Hornersville and Brisbee. At Holcomb, one of the first Missouri towns to be flooded, streets were still inundated, but the water gradually was receding. Schools at Holcomb were reopened today. Boats were used to transport children to and from the schools.

12 Deaths Laid to Cold.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 21 (A.P.). Barely recovering from a week-end blizzard that set new low temperature records and caused 12 deaths, much suffering and material damage running into hundreds of thousands of dollars, the Midsouth was shown by tonight's weather maps to be on the verge of a parallel situation.

In the midst of a battle against floods in sleet covered Arkansas, and with the Mississippi delta hardly out from under a blanket of snow and ice, the Weather Bureau forecast an intense cold wave tonight to spread over the southland, sweeping east to the Atlantic seaboard and carrying a severe freeze to the Gulf Coast and probable freezing to North Florida.

Much colder weather was forecast for the entire belt with zero or below for northern Arkansas, near zero in Louisiana and Mississippi and temperatures ranging down to 4 to 10 degrees below zero in the Texas Panhandle. Snow accompanied the temperature drop in the most affected regions of the Midsouth, with rain toward the coast.

Trains Are Snow Bound.

Kansas City, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Snow bound trains, stranded motorists, failing fuel supplies and closed schools tonight told the story of winter's continued assault on the Southwest and Rocky Mountain States, already worn from repeated buffetings.

Near zero and subzero temperatures added to the worries and miseries of cities and rural sections alike. In Kansas and Oklahoma drifting snow held several railroad trains fast and entirely halted transportation on numerous branch lines.

Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma, was victim of winter's latest outburst. He was a passenger on a Frisco train stalled in a snow drift in the Canadian River bottoms southwest of Oklahoma City.

Scores of towns near Temple, Tex., were threatened with loss of their entire gas supply through the bursting of a main 2 miles west of Troy. Reserve supplies of gasoline were being fast depleted.

Texas, after a two-day respite from the most severe blizzard of the century, was again lashed by snow, ice and a bitter wind. Subzero weather was reported in the Texas Panhandle and was moving south toward the

Hotel Furor Created By Captured Starling

Lieut. Jackson Turner, guest at the Willard Hotel, watching a captured starling eat a breakfast de luxe yesterday morning following a night of wild excitement caused by the bird's escape in the hotel.

Bird Suffers Indigestion After Breakfast of Lettuce and Rolls.

Snow. Starlings gathered on the Willard window ledges. Lieut. Jackson Turner, of Miami Beach, Fla., in an eighth-floor room—curious. Creeps out on a ledge and captures one starling, probably with a hangover—the starling.

Starling is turned loose in hotel room, leaving abruptly by open transom, flying down the corridor. Help, in the form of all available bellhops, summoned. Bird remains one hop ahead of the hops until cornered in the bathroom of a woman guest, while elevator service is disrupted by the chase.

Starling, in Turkish towel, brought to Turner's room. Early yesterday morning taken to room of Miss Toussaint Dubois, a friend. Miss Dubois, at breakfast, orders food for the bird. Head waiter, backed by two other waiters, appears, bearing gifts. Gifts consist of the best wilted lettuce in the house. Also hot rolls. Starling suffers indigestion. Lieut. Turner and Miss Dubois near hysterics—from laughter.

The Washington Post is notified. Photographer and reporter respond. Photographer returns with picture. Reporter does not return with story. Second reporter sent. Story is written. Miss Dubois denies kidnaping first reporter. His present whereabouts unknown. Probably on a spree with an overfed starling.

All the result of a starling campaign, driving the birds from the trees to the city's leading hostelries.

CAPITAL IS IN PATH OF NEW COLD WAVE

STREETS SNARL TRAFFIC

The United States Weather Bureau is insistent that the National Capital is to experience another cold snap, preceded by snow—maybe only a little sleet, maybe only a little rain.

Forecasts yesterday were for rain, sleet or snow accompanied by a rising temperature. A little rain and still a little less sleet did fall during the morning hours, but served no other purpose than to make the going a little tough for pedestrians and vehicular traffic, alike.

While the mercury, yesterday evening, had risen to 31 and at 9 o'clock registered 33, with indications of going a few points more skyward, the Government weather prognosticators were insistent that a cold wave was due to hit Washington not later than Thursday. However, there was some consolation, if any consolation can be had from an impending cold wave, that the weather would be fair. The

ATTACK ON BOLIVIA DECLARED IMMINENT

AIRPLANES ORDERED OUT

(Associated Press.)

Declaring that he fears a conflict is imminent, Pablo M. Ynsfran, charge d'affaires for the Paraguay Legation, informed Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State, yesterday that his government had informed him that Gen. Kuntz, commanding officer of the Bolivian army, had ordered a general attack on the Paraguayan frontier.

The Paraguayan diplomat told Mr. White that the Bolivian commander ordered an advance of airplanes into the disputed Chaco Boreal Monday. He said the Bolivian frontier is filled with mobilized fighting units of the Bolivian army.

First reports of military activities were made to the State Department Monday by Senora Ynsfran, who told of the death of a Paraguayan soldier in the skirmish at Isla Poi. A subsequent report from Asuncion, the

Seven Cars Crash, 29 Hurt, All Within Three Minutes

One Man May Die From Injuries on Newark Turnpike in Series of Mishaps Within 200-Foot Stretch of Sleet-Covered Road.

Kearney, N. J., Jan. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.). In three minutes today at noon, and within a stretch of 200 feet of sleet-slicked pavement along the Newark turnpike, seven motor cars were involved in a wild series of mishaps which put four of them in the ditch and injured 29 persons.

It all started when two sedans collided, just east of Kearney and 700 feet west of the locally renowned "Dead Man's Curve." The drivers hopped out to denounce each other, but were barely started upon their recriminations when a New York-Philadelphia bus roared down upon them, swung its tail against a passing sedan and tossed it into the ditch and careomed back across the road to hit the two men.

The bus wildly crossed back and plunged over the road's edge with its 18 passengers screaming futilely.

But even as the crash of breaking windows furnished an obligato to the shrilling of the frightened and the hurt, a northbound truck hit a touring car, skidded into a standing taxi, whose driver was putting chains on the rear wheels, and went off the road. About that time, and for no apparent reason, another car slid off the road, landed on the trolley tracks alongside the highway and scuttled off to find a gap where it could regain the road.

Elias Siegelman, of New York, whose car was one of those involved in the original collision, was the most seriously hurt of the 29. His skull was fractured, surgeons found upon his arrival at Jersey City Hospital in an

SENATE TO GET PLAN FOR CURB IN SPECULATION

Glass Will Present Bill on Banking Reform After Long Study.

MEASURE ASKS QUIZ IN CASE BY GROUP

Former Head of Treasury Has Drafted Modified Inquiry Proposal.

APPROVAL FORECAST IN SESSION TODAY

Resolution Would Restrict Chain Institutions, if Passed.

(Associated Press.)

After months of study, Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, a former Secretary of the Treasury, will introduce today legislation to curb the use of Federal Reserve facilities in speculation and will propose before a meeting of the Senate banking committee an inquiry into the banking situation.

Senator Glass has drafted a modified resolution of inquiry for the resolution proposed last spring by Senator King (Democrat), Utah, who is not on the committee. Committee members predicted last night that the Glass substitute would be approved at today's session.

The Virginian hopes that the bill he has drafted will be the basis for the proposed investigation by the Senate. His measure also would restrict chain banking, allow greater income for member banks of the Federal Reserve System and permit an expansion of branch banking.

Bill Is More Condensed.

The substitute resolution covers much the same ground proposed by the Utah Senator but it is more condensed. It will propose a study by the Senate banking committee, or by a select committee of the Senate, of the banking situation generally, of the use of Federal Reserve facilities in the speculative markets and of the situation surrounding the increasing amount of brokers' loans by member banks of the Federal Reserve.

Chairman Norbeck, of the banking committee, has called a session for today at which the Glass proposals will be considered. Should the committee act favorably upon the resolution of inquiry, it would have to be approved then by the Senate before the study could be undertaken.

Just what attitude will be taken by the Senate has not been disclosed. Likewise the position of the administration has not been shown.

Feel Stability Returned.

Congressional leaders were loath to take any step during the recent unsettled conditions of the stock market which would hinder a recovery of stability. They now feel that stability has returned, and there appears to be a prevailing sentiment in the Senate banking committee for studying the situation.

Senator Glass is generally credited with authorship of much of the Federal Reserve Act which was enacted while he was a leader in financial affairs in the House. He helped to administer that act as Secretary of the Treasury during the Wilson administration. Members of the Senate banking committee are inclined to heed his leadership on matters touching the act.

Pending the meeting of the committee today, Senator Glass withheld the text of his resolution of inquiry and also of his banking bill. The bill is a voluminous affair and covers a wide range, including amendments to both the Federal Reserve Act and to the National banking act.

Reformatory Boy Faces Theft Case

Police State Youth Stole Clothes in Order to See Mother.

The clothes worn by Archibald Lyles, 20-year-old inmate of Lorton Reformatory, who escaped from that institution ten days ago in order to see his ill mother at Sibley Hospital, were stolen from a store in Alexandria, police of that place reported yesterday.

Lyles was charged with the theft of the clothing. He will be tried on the theft charge when he completes his present two-year term at the reformatory. The store robbed was the Cohen Clothing Co. The store was entered through a front transom several days ago, police said.

Lyles was arrested at Sibley Hospital when he rushed there to see his mother. He was returned to the Lorton Reformatory at that time. Police recovered the stolen clothes in a room near H and Fourth streets northwest, they said. Taking the clothing to the reformatory, the police identified the garments as part of those worn by Lyles when he went to see his mother, it was reported. The stolen clothing was valued at $170.

RELIGION'S USE DAILY IS URGED BY ARCHBISHOP

Principles of Christ in Business Would Help, Laymen Hear.

WAY TO CLEAN OUT POLITICS ADVANCED

Precepts of God Seen as Aid to International Relations Also.

ROVER POINTS OUT CAUSES OF CRIME

Group Passes Resolution to Cooperate With Idea Expressed by Pope.

Placement of religion into politics and business, not in the sense of religious discrimination, but in fulfillment of the principles taught by Christ, was emphasized by Archbishop Michael J. Curley in an address last night before the Washington section of the League of Laymen's Retreats, in the Mayflower Hotel.

If our public servants, the archbishop said, would imitate the principles of Christ in the fulfillment of their public trusts, there would be less corruption. Further, he averred, if the public officials would bring the imitation of Christ into their lives there would be less self-service and more service to God and the constituents.

This same truth, he said, is applicable to international relations. "Men may gather round a table and discuss the destinies of man and nations; but nothing can be attained without the recognition of the principles of Christ in the relationships of nations," he said. Archbishop Curley also recommended to his listeners the support of the Community Chest.

Rover Makes Speech.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover declared that there is a universal recognition of the importance that the spiritual side of life has assumed a paramount aspect in dealing with clean government. Speaking of the growth of crime in recent years, he attributed the situation to an early digression on the part of the criminal from his religious duties.

The spiritual food obtained through man's communion with himself through the medium of retreats diverts itself to communal benefit, he said.

The importance of occasional retreats for the layman was told by the Rev. Eugene DeL. McDonnell, S. J., spiritual director of the retreats. He also urged the men to propagate the move and to become lay missionaries.

Cooperation Is Promised.

A resolution was passed by the group pledging itself to the cooperation with the thought recently expressed by Pope Pius IX in his latest encyclical, in which he stressed the necessity and desirability of laymen's retreats.

Other speakers were the Rev. James I. Maguire, Daniel S. Ring, Patrick J. Haltigan, K. S. S., and the Right Rev. John McNamara, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese. Rossa F. Dowling was toastmaster. A group of distinguished diplomats and laymen were present.

Archbishop Curley was the guest of honor at the dinner.

Cutter Seeks Port Under Own Steam

Unalga Slightly Damaged Hitting Rock on Coast of Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—After striking a sunken rock between Sound Island and Olga Point at the southern end of Neva Strait at 11:30 a. m., the Coast Guard cutter Unalga was heading toward Sitka under her own steam, she radioed to the Coast Guard station here late today.

The radio said the cutter was not leaking and that damage, if any, was small. Complete examination will be made at Sitka, the message reported. Seattle Coast Guard officials said the cutter probably would reach Sitka early tomorrow. The cutter Cygan, stationed at Ketchikan, was recalled after she had prepared to rescue the crew of the Unalga, who were said to be in danger in early reports of the accident.

The Unalga was built in Newport News, Va., in 1912. She is a steel vessel 190 feet long and has a displacement of 1,181 tons.

Man Thought Broker Dies in 12-Story Fall

Philadelphia, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A man believed to be Bernard F. Camp, 33, of New York, fell or jumped to his death early tonight from his twelfth story room at the Hotel Sylvania. Hotel officials said they knew nothing about him, except that he had registered at the hotel January 12, and had given them the impression that he was a stock broker.

After an investigation police said they believed the man had jumped from his window.

BIG FIVE BEGINS DRIVE TO LIMIT ARMS AFTER KING OPENS SESSIONS

Women Give Colorful Note to Navy Session

Feminine Dresses Are Flower-Like in Sober Setting.

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Women of the Occident and of the Orient—the wives and daughters of delegates to the five-power naval conference—sat clustered together as the conference convened in England's House of Lords today. Their costumes striking a flower-like note in a sober setting.

So thoroughly feminine were the costumes of the women that the small block of seats which they occupied at the far end of the gallery seemed transformed into a veritable garden in the midst of London's fog-laden atmosphere.

Isbel MacDonald, daughter of Great Britain's prime minister, in a black costume accentuated by bright red shoes, was one of the first of the women onlookers on the scene. She arrived with her father, but while he stopped to pose for photographers she hurried through the doorway, seemingly a little shy and anxious to get away from the gaze of curious throngs lining both sides of the street.

Then came the wives of the American delegates, Mrs. Henry L. Stimson.

DRY PLANS ADVANCE AMID HOUSE BATTLE

Bill for Petty U. S. Courts Introduced as Two Factions Clash.

MONEY HEARINGS TODAY

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's program to strengthen prohibition enforcement advanced in both branches of Congress yesterday as House wets and drys again clashed over the eighteenth amendment.

Bills to carry out the recommendation of the Law Enforcement Commission to empower United States commissioners to hold summary trials of casual and light offenders of the dry laws were introduced in the House by Representative Christopherson (Republican), South Dakota. His move was approved by a judiciary subcommittee.

This course was decided upon in executive session after George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Laws Enforcement Commission, and Dean Roscoe Pound, a member of that commission, told the group that the proposed legislation did not conflict with the Constitution.

No sooner had this been done than Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, charged on the floor that these measures would mean depriving the people of their constitutional rights to trial by jury.

"We are seeking to maintain the rest of the Constitution," Mr. LaGuardia said, "by the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. We charge that many would rather maintain the eighteenth amendment and let the rest of the Constitution go."

Arrangements were completed to begin hearings before the House expenditures committee today, when Secretary Mellon, Prohibition Commissioner Doran and probably Attorney General Mitchell will appear in

UPWARD TREND SEEN IN LABOR SITUATION

President Told by Davis of Improvement in Market Since January 6.

RAILROADS TO EXPAND

(Associated Press.)

An upward trend in employment during the last two weeks for the first time since the stock market deflation last November was reported to President Hoover yesterday by Secretary Davis.

"The tide of employment all over the country has changed in the right direction," the Chief Executive said, after receiving information that the steel, iron and automobile industries, along with virtually every other major industry in the country, had shown increased activity since January 6.

Secretary Davis said "we can expect a great deal of business in 1930," and that the present year "should see us well on the way to complete recovery" from the depression during the last few months of 1929.

January 1 actually marked the turn upward in employment, the secretary said, but it was not entirely evident until January 6, when reports showed a steady gain. Since then, he continued, the strides toward industrial recovery have been maintained.

The report of an improvement in the labor situation closely followed an announcement by Secretary Lamont that a record year in construction and maintenance of public work and by public utilities seemed assured, with an outlay of $7,000,000,000 in these fields probable during the year.

Meanwhile, at the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday, applications were filed by two railroads for permission to issue $30,000,000 in bonds, a large part of which is to

Rockefeller Takes First Airplane Ride on Ground

Oil Magnate Is Taxied Up and Down Fairway of Golf Course in Monoplane, But Sticks to Good Old Terra Firma.

Ormond Beach, Fla., Jan. 21 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Today, for the first time, John D. Rockefeller entered an airplane and allowed himself to be taxied up and down the field, but did not leave the ground. When he arrived at the Ormond Beach golf course for his daily round of golf his attention was attracted to a low-flying monoplane which circled the first tee twice and then came to rest on the eighteenth fairway.

Mr. Rockefeller walked over to the plane to find that its passenger was J. Stewart Harrison, of Cleveland, vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio.

Mr. Rockefeller entered the plane and was taxied up and down the length of the fairway. He seemed very pleased with his ride and presented Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Noyes, pilot and copilot, respectively, of the plane, with a number of shiny dimes while posing for pictures.

Mr. Rockefeller then continued his round of golf with Miss Eleanor Colburn, of Asheville, N. C., and W. T. Sheppard, of Lowell, Mass.

Only Woman Senator Is Ill With Pneumonia

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, 94, only woman who has ever sat as a member of the United States Senate, was in a hospital here today suffering with bronchial pneumonia.

Her condition has been regarded as critical, but today hospital attendants said she was "resting comfortably." Mrs. Felton contracted a severe cold recently while en route from her home in Carterville, Ga., to Atlanta, and pneumonia developed.

George V Talks for Six Minutes in Address of Welcome.

HOPES FOR SUCCESS VOICED BY SOVEREIGN

Invisible Millions Hear Royal Speech in All Continents.

POWERS' SPOKESMEN PLEDGE COOPERATION

Each Outlines Policy in Pithy Talk; Meeting Adjourns Till Tomorrow.

By JOHN . BALDERSTON.

London, Jan. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—King George opened the London naval conference in the royal gallery of the House of Lords at six minutes past 11 o'clock this morning (6:06 a. m. in America) with a brief speech expressing the universal hope that the negotiations which the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan have now formally begun will advance mankind far along the road to international peace.

Standing before his crimson and gold chair of state, in formal morning attire, Great Britain's "Sailor King" spoke into a gold and silver plated microphone words of good will which went winging / radio's magic to an invisible audience of millions on all five continents, the largest that has ever listened to a political speech.

The slight, bearded figure of the British sovereign left the setting of medieval splendor in which the first plenary session of the gathering was held at 1:19 p. m., bowing to right and left as he passed beneath the blinding glare of sixteen arc lamps set up that photographers might record the historic scene.

Statesmen Speak After King.

The king's six-minute speech was followed by short, pithy addresses by the principal spokesmen of the worlds leading naval powers—Premier Ramsay MacDonald for Great Britain, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for the United States, former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki for Japan, Premier Andre Tardieu for France and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi for Italy.

Mr. MacDonald, who had been chosen chairman of the conference on Secretary Stimson's motion, seconded by Premier Tardieu, then moved adjournment of the conference until 10 a. m. Thursday, when the delegates will really get down to work in St. James Palace.

Hardly had the 700 persons in the royal gallery begun streaming out of the Palace of Westminster into the London fog enveloping the great Gothic structure, than the principal delegates of the big five buckled down to preparing the statement of their countries' naval needs, which it has agreed shall be presented at Thursday's session.

Striking Phrases Used.

Striking phrases were used by the protagonists, perhaps the most effective being Mr. MacDonald's "Great Britain's navy is Great Britain," while Mr. Stimson's "Our peoples demand of us success. They recognize the disaster that failure of this conference would bring to their dearest hopes" was impressive, as was M. Tardieu's, "Against the forces of the past we must now win the finest of victories, the victory of good will."

Stripping away ornamental phrases, which were powerful and effective in the addresses of Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Stimson, the following lines of policy were laid or hinted at for future amplification by the spokesmen for the leading powers:

Great Britain: Mr. MacDonald's strong and eloquent words regarding British sea power were largely intended for home effect to convince doubters here that the pacifist prime minister is "sound about the navy." He made it clear that agreements made at this conference can run for only a few years, when they must be revised, and touched on a subject of future dispute when hinting that it is not a ton of naval tonnage that matters so much as what is done with that ton.

Stimson Spoke to French.

The United States: Mr. Stimson's adroit speech seems largely designed for French consumption. He went far in proclaiming the interest of the United States in disarmament on land, sea and in the air and indicated that America will help in further progress at future conferences, even those held under the aegis of the League of Nations, though this was not said directly.

It almost seems that the United States agree "in principle" with the French thesis, with the all-important exceptions that decisions taken here should become effective at once.

France: Premier Tardieu reiterated the French thesis that naval power should be based on naval needs and that those needs should be dependent on factors which it will later appear favor France at the expense of the United States and Great Britain.

Views of Italy and Japan.

Italy: Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, who had been effectively smoothed down by Mr. Simson, far from providing a sensation, delivered an oration of surprising moderation as coming from a Fascist statesman, but let fall a significant indication that Italy comes here expecting not merely stabilization of naval programs but actual reduction. "In the field of disarmament," he said, "half measures are always a failure."

Japan: Mr. Wakatsuki did not show his hand beyond making a claim similar to Grandi's, though rather more delicately, that this conference should affect actual reduction of naval armaments.

"Japan," he declared, "is prepared to go the limit in conjunction with other powers," at the same time laying stress on the Japanese need for security in defensive armaments without wishing for a fleet which would enable her to attack anyone else.

Speak for Home Consumption.

Nothing of importance emerged from the speeches of representatives of the British dominions, excepting the remark from the Australian delegate, J. E. Fenton, that he would not put forward Australia's security requirements "at this stage," and upon these three words he laid considerable emphasis.

Millions of radio listeners-in dominated today's assembly, which was conducted primarily for their benefit rather than for the thousand members of the conference and the newspapermen from all nations who sat in gilt chairs and listened to three hours of oratory.

Each delegate, with the help of the radio, was addressing his own people direct as well as the conference assembled around him.

How Delegates Were Seated.

The delegates sat around a horseshoe table broken in the middle for the great gold and crimson chair of state used by the king at Buckingham Palace. With a gold crown at its top it looks like the throne, which technically it is not.

At the right of the British monarch sat the French delegation in the place of honor, on the king's left were the British, while Mr. Stimson and the other Americans were "around the corner" on the right, thus atoning to France for feeling injured when Foreign Minister Aristide Briand was put "around the corner" in 1921 at Washington.

Facing the delegates were about 400 newspaper correspondents, each end of the room being occupied by advisors and the staffs of the five delegations. Twenty thousand applications had been received for permission to attend the opening, but there was no room for outsiders, not even for lords or members of Parliaments.

Fog Halts Near Scene.

It was only by good fortune that the chamber was not seriously invaded by the thick fog that settled over a large part of London this morning, the drifting mists ending by one of their familiar freaks at a line a few hundred yards west of the conference meeting place.

Most of those present were able to reach the Palace of Westminster, in which both the House of Lords and the House of Commons are located, from their hotels without serious difficulty; but Buckingham Palace was in the fog belt, and the king's limousine crept down Birdcage walk to Parliament Square at a snail's pace with linkmen in front and policemen carrying hand lamps.

The impenetrable fog kept American Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes from his seat beside Secretary Stimson until after the king had read his speech and it had been translated into French. Reaching the royal gallery while the king's speech was being read he remained standing in the back of the room until it was concluded. On a memorandum passed him by a correspondent asking why he had been late, the American Ambassador scribbled the one word, "fog."

Lloyd George Is Late.

Among those who did arrive in time to hear the king's speech was former Premier David Lloyd George. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the late Conservative government, was in his seat in good time.

The king himself arrived a few minutes behind schedule. George V walked with a firm step to the chair of state, escorted by Prime Minister MacDonald and Lord Lewisham, lord great chamberlain, bowing to right and left.

Almost at once he began speaking into the gold and silver microphone, standing on a Turkish rug at the edge of the dais.

His speech finished, the king sat down on the edge of the chair of state. The interpreter read the French words. Replacing his rimless glasses in a pocket of his coat the king rose again, the assemblage rising with him. For a moment he paused for the official photographers, perched precariously in niches around the room beside the statues of early English kings, bowed once more and walked out, followed by his officers of state.

De Rivera Again Hints of Quitting

Appoints New Minsiter of Finance to Fill the Vacant Post.

Madrid, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The reference by Premier Primo De Rivera to "the few months remaining of my government" in announcing today a new minister of finance, strengthened the conviction in some quarters that the dictator would carry out his expressed intention of retiring this year.

The question of who would succeed him remains unanswered. For this reason and the fact that on past occasions the end of the dictatorship had seemed to be approaching, some groups continue to be skeptical.

The resignation of Finance Minister Jose Calvo Sotelo, whose program had failed to stabilize the peseta, was announced this morning, and Count de Los Andes, now minister of economy, was named to the post. While foreign exchange and stock prices immediately stiffened as the result of the news, the markets later fluctuated freely. The bankers seemed to have a feeling of uncertainty, although inclining toward hope of a strengthening of the financial position.

FRANKNESS IS URGED IN M'DONALD SPEECH

WORLD WAITS, IS PLEA

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The text of Premier MacDonald's speech before the naval conference today follows:

"The gracious speech to which we have just listened both conveys to you the hearty welcome of this country and also expressed the hope which the people of every nation share that our labors here may be crowned with success.

"It is peculiarly appropriate and is the cause of the most ardent satisfaction to us that this should be the occasion of his majesty's first public speech since his recent illness and I venture to offer to him in your name our most hearty thanks and congratulations.

All Feel Burden of Arms.

"Every country today—wealthy and poverty-stricken alike—feels the burden of arms, dreads their competitive development, doubles the value of the security they give and should like to escape from their influence and power. As yet, as has been shown again and again, the difficulties in the way are manifold. All, however, come principally from one source—a lack of confidence.

"The spirit of doubt whispers, 'There will be some state which will refuse to carry out its obligations to the community of peaceful states; the machinery or arbitration will break down somewhere and somehow; do what we may a situation will arise one day when a deadlock of some kind will have to be faced and there will be but one remaining method—a fight.'

"Thus a habit of mind nurtured by the experience of many generations controls our thinking and our actions, casts a shiver of hesitancy over all our peace efforts and prevents a great change in our attitude toward militarism as a means of national security. As a matter of fact, the generations of experience which fear uses to pen us up in spellbound fastnesses of militarism ought by their failures to enlighten us so that we break the spell and seek for peace and security by other means.

Old Habit Called Cause.

"That will come—how marvelously slow it has been! How easy it is to retard the progress of states when an old habit can be enlisted to fight enlightened reason.

"The whole world, it may be said with almost liberal accuracy, is turning its eyes upon us today. It expects that we shall deliberate and negotiate on the assumption that having put our names to pacts of peace we mean to respect our signatures. It prays that we shall not only relieve it of burdens, but establish it still more securely in the ways of peace.

"It begs us to give public opinion a chance and to lift our program out of the scrutiny of the technical experts and to put it on to the broader field of the creative statesmen. Above all it demands from us an agreement to stop competition which recently has begun to show itself both in the types and the number of ships. If we are not careful we shall be once more involved in feverish competition such as heralded the outbreak of the war in 1914.

Progress Made Since 1919.

"At the same time if the conference and its work are to be judged justly, some appreciation must be shown of the nature of its task. Since 1919 the securing of peace has occupied much of the attention of nations and very considerable progress had been made.

"The League of Nations steadily builds up its authority and in various clauses of its covenant provides mutual security to welldoers and menaces to evildoers among nations.

"The peace pact signed in Paris in 1928, which though lacking in machinery except that which the covenant supplies for members of the league, is nevertheless a mighty moral bulwark against war—and we must never underestimate the effectiveness of moral bulwarks with no bayonets nor bludgeon behind them.

"The entry of the United States into the permanent court of international justice, the growing confidence in the court, and the increasing number of nations who have signed the optional clause mark definite and, I believe, irrevocable steps in the displacement of military power by judicial process in the settlement of international disputes.

Absolute Security Still Lacking.

"Public servants like us will fail in our duty if we do not diminish military power in proportion to the increase of this political security. On the other hand no one can say that an absolute security for peace and justice yet has been found.

"There are risks on whichever side one leans but I take it that the practical view is that political securities must determine the amount of military preparations; that excessive military preparation is not only a waste of national resources but a weakening of political security: That military preparation that any one nation feels to be necessary at any given moment must be determined to a considerable degree by the military preparations of other nations so that no nation is free, except by international agreement to pursue the policy of disarmament beyond certain rigidly defined limits. Steps toward disarmament must be international agreements: The agreements (whatever language is used or figures inserted) must remove the sense of menace from signatory nations.

"This conference has therefore to value the securities now afforded to Nations by the political guarantees I have referred to and agree mutually upon how far they can, on the assumption of a continuing peace, reduce arms.

Margin Should Be Cut.

"I dare to affirm that in the naval programs of the leading naval powers there is a margin between real security needs and actual or projected strengths, and the world expects this conference to eliminate that margin.

"It will both smooth and shorten our work perhaps if we would assume two things in our discussions. The first is that we have different needs imposed upon us by geographical position, world responsibility and points of attack in event of war.

"Conferences have broken down because there has been an unwillingness or an inability to understand that this is so; that therefore one ton used in ships for one purpose is totally a different thing from one ton used in ships for another purpose.

"I know that plea of 'need' can be stretched almost to infinity and that in it lurks danger, but if peace is in our hearts and reduction of armaments in our minds the substance of what constitutes our 'needs' can be fairly admitted by each of us as regard the other and be satisfied in the form and provisions of an agreement, and the conference will be a conspicuous success."

"The second thing which we might assume is this. Although armaments can not be divided into watertight compartments—naval, land and air forces—for practical purposes we must discuss them separately always, remembering when coming to our conclusions regarding each that it has a relationship to the other.

"If we are willing to make a good naval agreement now when it comes to be reviewed a few years hence our attitude will depend on what other powers have done as regards land and air armaments in the meantime. All nations have not the same interest in each arm of the military, but they have an interest in the general armed state of the world. The way of Great Britain is on the sea for it is a small island.

"The stock of its people came from the sea; its defense and its high roads have been the sea. Its flag is a flag of the sea. Our navy nowhere is superfluity to us. It is us. If this country can make a contribution to peace which will be one of deeds as well as one of words it must be as a naval power.

Reason for Hoover Overtures.

"That is why last June after several attempts, unsuccessfully, to get such an understanding between the United States and ourselves as would make a wide international agreement possible President Hoover through his newly appointed Ambassador to London proposed to me that we should explore our differences once more.

"He said that if we could overcome what has hitherto defied us we might, as the naval powers which had taken part in the naval conference at Washington in 1922, meet again to try to agree on an equilibrium in strengths and competitive building, reduce expenditure on ships and bring fleets down in size.

"And as a result present to the preparatory disarmament commission sitting at Geneva an agreement which can be related to its wider work and form part of the material which will ultimately go before a general disarmament conference.

Other Parleys Remembered.

"That was the sole purpose of our conversations and journeys, and that is why we are here. This place and that we are to meet subsequently (St. James' Palace) have seen a great many great gatherings come and part. Many deeds done which history guards with zealous pride and watchful memory.

"It may well be that this conference which has been so conspicuously opened this morning by his majesty will be destined to rank with the most memorable and most beneficial of them all. If we can limit and reduce by agreement one of our most powerful arms without diminishing national security, but indeed strengthen by our very act, the naval conference of 1930 undoubtedly will take place among the great landmarks which tell the stages and events by which mankind has advanced its wisdom and enlightenment."

Text of Opening Address By King George at Parley

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Following is the text of King George's address at today's opening session of the naval disarmament conference:

"It is with sincere satisfaction that I am present here to welcome the delegates of the five principal naval powers assembled with the object of eliminating the evil results of wasteful competition in naval armaments. Every nation represented here is proud of its navy, proud of that navy's past achievements and inspiring traditions. It is not the fault of these traditions nor of our navies if competition in naval construction, due to the supposed necessities of policy, has led to a feeling of insecurity between nations and even to the risk of war.

Limitation of Navies Stressed.

"Since the great war all peoples are determined that human statescraft shall leave nothing undone to prevent repetition of that grim and immense tragedy. In the interests of peace which we are seeking to build up, one of its most important columns is agreement between the maritime nations on the limitations of naval strength and reduction to a point consistent with national security. The practical application of the principle of the reduction of naval armaments has in the past proven a matter of extreme difficulty. Great success was achieved in conclusion of the Washington Treaty of 1922 imposing certain limitations on the construction of capital ships and aircraft carriers. But hitherto all efforts to advance beyond that point have failed.

"I believe that you to whom your governments have entrusted the high mission of continuing the task begun at Washington are animated with single-minded intentions of working, not only with any selfish and exclusively nationalistic purpose, but with the noble inspiration and the resolve to remove once for all this particular obstacle from the path of ordered and civilized progress.

Each Must Make Sacrifice.

"All nations have varying needs demanding special consideration, but if each is equally determined to make some sacrifice as a contribution to the common good, I feel sure that your deliberations will confer great and lasting benefit, not only upon the countries which you represent, but upon mankind generally.

"I earnestly trust that the results of this conference will lead to immediate alleviation of the heavy burdens of armaments now weighing upon the peoples of the world and also by facilitating the future work of the league preparatory commission on disarmament and hastening the time when a general disarmament conference can deal with this problem in an even more comprehensive manner. In this hope I shall follow your deliberations with closest interest and attention."

HOUSE OF COMMONS CONSIDERS SEA PACT

British Legislative Body Turns Attention to Disarmament.

FACES MANY PROBLEMS

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The subject which held the attention of the world centered on the royal gallery this morning—naval disarmament—was carried over into the House of Commons, also in Westminster, when it resumed its sessions after the Christmas holidays.

The question was put "whether any, and if so what, steps were being taken to consider either in conjunction with America or not, how far this country can accept freedom of the seas."

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returned the written reply, "while his majesty's government is not in communication with the Government of the United States on the subject they have the question under consideration."

Further asked if the question of freedom of the seas had been raised at the naval conference, Mr. MacDonald answered in the negative.

In the flood of questions that faced the government were several dealing with the depression in industry. The suggestion was made that the program and policy of the government coal bill be extended to aid the cotton, woolen, iron and steel trades. This would consist in setting minimum prices for products and define a quota of production. It also was suggested that further amalgamations be sought with a view to developing greater efficiency.

Burglars, Prying Safe, Only Close It Tighter

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 21.—Burglars were thwarted in efforts early today to open the vault of the Boyce State Bank, Boyce, Clark County, even after burning a hole in the door with actelyne torches. When they cut a wire close to the combination it released two bolts which locked the vault more securely. The door and combination were so badly damaged that new ones were ordered.

Nearby banks supplied the institution with funds for current business until the vault is opened. Impressions of finger prints left on the vault were taken by authorities.

HOOVER HEARS KING OPEN NAVY PARLEY

President, in Old Clothes, Listens to Radio Report of Conference.

PLEASED WITH SESSION

(Associated Press.)

As the naval limitation conference opened yesterday in the royal gallery of the House of Lords the man who initiated the negotiations leading up to it sat in a basement room of the White House clad in an old sweater, khaki breeches and canvas shoes listening to the ceremonies over the radio.

President Hoover arose at 5 a. m., donned the outfit he wears during his early morning medicine-ball game, and with a small company of friends went to the room where a powerful radio receiving set had been installed. The Chief Executive tuned in early on London to hear the preliminary descriptions and listened intently to King George opening the conference and to the heads of the delegations as they made their addresses.

Mr. Hoover was delighted with the atmosphere of mutual good will in which the parley had its beginning, but he made no comment. No statements in administration circles regarding the conference are expected to be made for some time to come.

With the President during the radio reception of the London proceedings were Attorney General Mitchell, Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States Supreme Court; Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, and Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, two of the Chief Executive's secretaries. All are members of the "medicine ball cabinet."

After the last speech, the party went to an inclosed court for the regular before-breakfast game.

While the President was listening to the broadcast, Acting Secretary Jahncke, of the Navy; Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of operations, and Rear Admiral A. T. Long, of the Navy general board, were gathered about a receiving set at the Mayflower Hotel, listening to the addresses.

WIVES GIVE COLOR TO NAVAL SESSION

with eagerness to the opening ceremonies of the conference. As though they had arranged the matter beforehand, all wore brown outfits, complete from hats to shoes.

Mme. Reijiro Wakatsuki and Lady Takarabe, wives of two of the Japanese delegates, arrived with their husbands, their diminutive Oriental figures swathed in furs. Lady Takarabe's cloak was of delicate gray squirrel, while Mme. Wakatsuki chose brown mink.

Miss Margaret Bondfield, "Our Maggie," England's minister of labor and the only woman in the British cabinet, was one of the most prominent women in the gallery. She was seated in the first row, directly in front of the delegates, with other members of the British cabinet. She was the only woman who did not wear a hat, carrying hers in her hand.

This was her second appearance in public without a cane upon which she has been dependent since she broke her ankle while bathing last autumn. She left early to have a bite of lunch before attending the opening session of Parliament.

Another interesting woman spectator was Signora Agresti, official translator attached to the Italian delegation. She sat on the delegates' platform directly behind Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, with whom she was frequently in whispered conference. Signora Agresti, who is a granddaughter of Dante Gabriel Rossetti, the English poet, is one of the most widely known international translators.

Snook Is Granted Reprieve of Month

Convicted Slayer of Coed Gains Postponement of Electrocution.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Ohio Supreme Court today granted a month's reprieve from execution to Dr. James Howard Snook, convicted slayer of Theora Hix, Ohio State University coed.

Snook's reprieve extends to February 28. He had been granted a previous extension to January 31 when the State Supreme Court began consideration of this appeal, which it later refused to grant.

The action today was taken to give Snook's attorneys time to offer the case before the United States Supreme Court for review on constitutional grounds. Attorneys for Snook will file a motion in the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari, which, if allowed, will take the case into the Federal tribunal to be heard on its merits as to whether the Ohio courts had committed error and transgressed upon Snook's constitutional rights.

PARLEY NOT FINAL, STIMSON DECLARES

American Secretary Feels Present Conference Is One Link in Chain.

IS CONTINUOUS PROCESS

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A declaration that the present effort at naval limitation is not regarded as final was made here today by Henry L. Stimson, the American Secretary of State, in his address at the opening of the naval conference in the royal gallery of the House of Lords.

"Naval limitation is a continuous progress," he said. "We regard disarmament as a goal to be reached by successive steps, by frequent revision and improvement. A solution reached today, however perfect, may not respond to conditions at a later date."

The chairman of the American delegation added that he and his colleagues were ready to remain in London until the problems were solved, until the opportunities were grasped and until the world was given an agreement that would carry it happily on to the time when the nations could meet again in the same spirit to look over the situation anew.

Share Lofty Idealism.

"We are profoundly impressed and moved by the significance of the speeches we have just heard," he said, "the cordial and hospital welcome extended to us by his majesty the king and the wise analysis of our problems which has been so movingly presented by the prime minister. I am so convinced that all members of this conference share the lofty idealism that has been expressed in the two preceding speeches that I look forward with confident hope to the success of our labors. I deem it an auspicious event that our first meeting at this conference in which there must be a spirit of understanding and cooperation should take place in the House of Parliament which has for Americans a deep significance as the cradle of our jurisprudence and of our fundamental ideas of human liberty.

"The use of international conferences of this sort for the purpose of limiting and reducing armaments is a recent development in world affairs, so recent that a number of our colleagues at this table participated in the labors of the Washington conference, the first of the series of efforts devoted to this great end. That conference was a first step on the long road of international endeavor in limitation and reduction upon which the world has started. We may well feel that this beginning was a momentous event in the history of the human race. We may derive a legitimate gratification from the knowledge that we have lived in days when for the first time human thoughts and desires for disarmament reached practical and tangible expression.

Not Final Effort.

"I feel it is important to emphasize the fact that we do not look upon this effort toward disarmament as final. Naval limitation is a continuous process. We regard disarmament as a goal to be reached by successive steps, by frequent revision and improvement.

"Human affairs are not static, but are moving, and we believe improving. A solution reached today, however perfect, may not respond to conditions at a later date. We sincerely hope that increased feeling of security may enable still more drastic reduction in the future. For that reason we feel that the sound and obvious course is to reach such agreements as it may be possible now, with the knowledge that they are open to revision at appropriate periods.

"We are convinced that in attacking now the naval problem we are following the practical and common sense path. We believe that any solution which we can make of this problem will be a tangible contribution to the success of the wider problem of general disarmament. There is a relationship between the land, sea and air forces which constitute national defense. We believe that a limitation of any one of these will contribute to an enlightened limitation of the others.

Zeal Will Continue.

"While the greatest contribution my country can make to the general cause of disarmament is in naval matters, still it must not be forgotten that our ultimate aim is a general solution of the disarmament problem and a consequent lessening of the risks of war. For that reason, however great the achievements of this conference in regard to the naval problem, our zeal in the general cause of disarmament and our efforts to contribute to the success of future endeavors in other fields will continue unabated.

"We have endeavored to study the particular problems and difficulties of the other nations as well as our own. We have come here to try to find a solution acceptable to all, of benefit to all, and of benefit to the peace and stability of the world. There are many problems we know, but each problem before us seems to us far outweighed by opportunity to serve civilization. We are ready to stay here until the problems are solved, until the opportunities are grasped and until we can give to the world an agreement that will carry us happily on to the time when we meet again in the same spirit to look over the situation anew.

"Mr. Chairman, we have had relations with members of each delegation here which have given us the assurance of the good will, patience and wisdom which they will contribute to the success of our endeavors. We assure you on our part that we are prepared to cooperate in the fullest measure, to do our utmost to appreciate the difficulties of others, and to continue such work as long as may be necessary to achieve our purpose. Our people demand of us a success; they recognize the disaster that a failure of this conference would bring to their dearest hopes, and they are determined that we shall succeed."

Mexican Workers Die In Three-Day Battle

Mexico City, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Three days of fighting between agrarians and adherents of the "crom," or Mexican regional federation of labor, are reported to have taken place in Atlixco, in the state of Vera Cruz.

Ten persons were said to have been killed last Friday, four on Saturday and an undetermined number on Sunday. Reports of the fighting, which is the result of a long rivalry between these classes of workers, agricultural and industrial, were given out today at the attorney general's office.

U. S. Ambassador Leaves Berlin.

Berlin, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, returning American Ambassador to Germany, left Berlin this afternoon for Hamburg to embark for home on the steamship George Washington. His departure was attended by remarkable manifestations of public regret at his leaving.

ARIZONA RETURNS COUPLE IN SLAYING

Man and Woman Drop Fight Against Extradition to Pennsylvania.

KILLED TROOPER, CHARGE

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, who are sought in Pennsylvania for the slaying last December 27 of Corpl. Brady Paul, State highway patrolman, waived extradition today in a sudden reversal of their plans after Gov. John C. Phillips had refused to grant continuance of the hearing.

The unexpected collapse of the prisoners' opposition to extradition cleared the way for their return to Pennsylvania to face murder charges and authorities, who arrived here today, hurried the couple to a waiting automobile and drove rapidly out of the city.

The move of the Pennsylvania officers was explained later by Arizona authorities, who said they learned that attorneys for the couple planned to seek a writ of habeas corpus and reopen the extradition hearing.

The Pennsylvania police car was headed toward Tucson, Ariz., but the immediate destination of the party was kept secret.

Postive Identification Made.

The resignation of the couple to their fate before an Eastern court climaxed positive identification of them as alleged participants in the fatal gun battle by Private Ernest Moore, Pennsylvania State highway patrolman, who was wounded during the shooting.

Mrs. Schroeder and Dague made a brief attempt through their attorneys to resist extradition by asking for a 24-hour continuance, alleging they could prove they were not in Pennsylvania the day Paul was slain near Newcastle. The attorneys also requested the stay to permit examination of the papers to determine if they conformed with Pennsylvania law.

Gov. Phillips denied the motion, however, and ordered a twenty-minute recess. After a ten-minute conference in an anteroom, the prisoners reappeared and announced their decision to face trial in Pennsylvania.

Arizona Charges Not Pressed.

Moore's recognition of the prisoners was accepted by Arizona authorities as conclusive proof of a murder case against the couple by the State of Pennsylvania and they said charges of assault with intent to commit murder, preferred against them here following their capture a week ago, would not be pressed.

Private Moore arrived here in company with four other Pennsylvania officers, H. M. Lee and Sheriff F. H. Johnston, Lawrence County, Pa., authorities; Lieut. J. Boettner, of the Pennsylvania State police, and Mrs. Minnie McKibben, policewoman. Charles Evans, of Benwood, W. Va., an acquaintance of Mrs. Schroeder's family, accompanied them and identified the woman as Irene Schroeder.

Evans was unable, however, to identify Vernon Ackerman, captured with the couple, as T. D. Crawford, Mrs. Schroeder's brother, who is sought as the third assailant in the shooting.

Coast Guard Is Enlisted In Hunt for Missing Man

Elizabeth City, N. C., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Coast Guard today was enlisted in the search for Tom McMullan, prominent Hertford man who has been missing since he left home alone Saturday on a hunting trip. Commander C. A. Littlefield, of the Coast Guard, left this morning aboard the power cruiser Scat for the wild territory along the upper Perquimans River.

Another boat manned by Coast Guardsmen will search Little River and Big Flatty Creek, while a search of the Perquimans and Yeopin Rivers is being conducted by a boat of the Major and Loomis Mill. The seaplane Kingfisher already is aiding. McMullan left home in a small motorboat.

TWO INVESTIGATORS SCAN BOMB REPORT

Keg of Gunpowder and Caps Discovered in Shed on Brady Farm.

TORN FINGER EXAMINED

J. Wilson Ryon, special assistant prosecutor, and Raymond Kennedy, private Baltimore detective, last night were perusing a lengthy Bureau of Standards report concerning fragments of the Seat Pleasant bomb which killed Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 18-year-old bride, and fatally injured two other members of her family on New Year's Day.

All of the scattered evidence on the composition of the fatal bomb is being collected by the investigators in an effort to place the blame for its manufacture. The discovery of a partially filled keg of gunpowder and powder caps in a tool shed on the farm of Herman Brady's mother in Mitchellville, where the widower is staying, was considered significant yesterday.

Brady is said to have appeared upset by the discovery, though he stoutly contended that the powder was used to split logs on the farm and in an old musket he owned. He is still under $1,000 bond as a State witness, while his brother, Lawrence Leroy Brady, Washington automobile mechanic, is held in the Marlboro jail for grand jury action.

A torn finger, believed to have been blown from the hand of Mrs. Naomi Brady, is also being examined by Kennedy to throw light on the nature of the bomb.

Investigators have virtually established the fact that the bomb was operated by a trigger, it was said yesterday, but they are undecided as to whether a flash or a cap set the device off. Both gunpowder and dynamite are believed to have been used in making the bomb.

50 TO 60 STRICKEN AS BANQUET RESULT

Doctors Agree in Blaming Food, but Differ as to Exact Cause.

NONE EXPECTED TO DIE

Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Apparently poisoned by food, between 50 and 60 guests of a dinner here last night, given by Camellia City Circle, No. 1002, Companions of the Foresters of America, were ill today. Ten or twelve of the more seriously stricken were in hospitals but were expected to recover.

Dr. Jacques Gray, epidemiologist of the State board of health, was summoned from Berkeley to examine samples of the food served.

Although physicians agreed that the malady is a type of poisoning caused by food, they disagreed as to its exact nature. Some regarded it as a plain case of ptomaine, others characterized it as toxic poisoning resulting from bacterial growth and one physician, Dr. Samuel Wells, said that the symptoms of some of his patients indicated arsenic poisoning.

The banquet was in honor of Mrs. Nellie Kramer and Mrs. Lulu Lehman, San Francisco, grand chief companion and grand deputy, respectively, of the State order. Mrs. Kramer was reported "very ill" today. Mrs. Lehman, who did not partake of the main dish, was not ill.

All the persons who were ill today partook of a combination dish of chicken and veal served with a sauce made of tomatoes and pimento.

Purse Snatcher Flees When Woman Screams

A purse snatcher failed in his efforts to rob Mrs. Carrie Cohen, of 3109 Eighteenth street southwest, in front of the latter's home about 7 o'clock last night when the woman's screams frightened the thief away.

Mrs. Cohen told Tenth Precinct police that she was about to enter her home when the man dashed from the side of the street and snatched at the purse she was carrying. She said that when she screamed, the man ran up an alley. She described him as being either a light skinned colored, man or white, wearing dark clothes and being about 5 feet 6 inches in height.

APPROPRIATE FUNERAL DESIGNS

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

WE Washingtonians, who so quaintly pride ourselves on our ability to size up public men, got a rib-cracking jolt when Reed Smoot made his little talk at the dinner celebrating his sixty-eighth birthday.

With the cynical carelessness bred of familiarity with the great, we portray a senator, President or diplomat in a phrase and often at the first contact. If the phrase is smart, or if it rolls glibly off the tongue, it sticks—and as often as not it paints a picture that is all wrong.

All Washington knew Reed Smoot. He had been here 27 years. He had gone about his business with a singular capacity for ignoring jibes, defeats and praise. We described him as a legislative machine. He had an enormous capacity for hard work. High tariff was one of his shibboleths, and he served it well.

* * * *

Administration after administration, he fought, bled and died for his belief, and in the end, when the Republicans were in control, he usually came out victor. No matter how the opposition mauled him, his head was bloody but unbowed. He could work all night and fight all day, and he gave no quarter and asked none.

"Pass the bill!" was his relentless battle cry whenever he advocated legislation, and, though the cartoonists cartooned him and the jokesters joked him, he went his stern, industrious way, untouched by shaft of ridicule or word of praise.

So, we said, he was a hard-boiled guy, a gloomy Gus, a robot of legislation, a man so in love with hard labor that he had neither time nor preference for the softer things of life.

Then came the birthday dinner at which he made the frank boast of "drawing dividends on the life I have lived," and paid that poignantly beautiful tribute to his wife, now dead, as "the greatest of all my blessings."

* * * *

AND straightway we experts in judging public men realized that we were not so expert after all. Reed Smoot, "the hard-boiled guy," had unmasked himself. In a moment of outspoken tenderness he had given us a glimpse of the high feeling that made possible his consecration to legislative tasks and his ability to keep on fighting, as he has done in the present tariff row, when the odds are against him.

And now the gossip goes about that, if we knew a tenth of the kindness the senator from Utah has shown to others, the money he has lavished on others, the careers he has made possible for others while we were portraying him as a machine, we would realize that his little bit of self-revelation was but the lifting of a corner of the curtain of reticence behind which, in his quiet, unostentatious way, he has proved himself the exponent of a noble humanity.

That is to say, Mr. Smoot is no ink hound. In a word, he is a pleasant contrast to that noble army of philanthropists who do their good works while wondering how many columns the aforesaid benefactions will command in the newspapers.

PLANS FOR RESCUE IN FLOOD ARE MADE lower Rio Grand Valley, famous for winter fruit and vegetable culture.

Amarillo, Tex., reported a temperature of one degree below zero. Cattlemen feared heavy losses. Storm warnings were raised along the Texas coast.

More frigid weather was reported to the north, especially in the Rocky Mountain region. More snow fell in Wyoming and Colorado. Subzero temperatures were general in Montana.

Reports of snowbound motorists were common in Kansas and Oklahoma. Thirty automobile and five busses were said to be held at Pierce Pennant Terminal, 9 miles east of Tulsa, Okla.

Snow drifts 10 feet high were reported in southern Kansas. Near Augusta 28 marooned motorists spent last night in a farm house.

Many rural and city schools, including those in Oklahoma City, were closed in Oklahoma. More cold is predicted for Missouri. The mercury registered a winter's low of 52 degrees below zero at Craig, Colo., today.

New Alarm on Wabash.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—There was alarm again today along the banks of the Wabash in Indiana when an ice gorge formed and threatened to dam up the flood waters still pouring down from the stream's upper reaches.

Government engineers took steps to break up the ice that is jammed in the Wabash for a distance of 7 miles near the town of Riverton in Sullivan County. Once the jam is broken, it will relieve conditions up stream, but anxiety is felt that a wall of water will be released that will once more threaten the historic City of Vincennes. That city only obtained a respite last week when a cold wave checked the river as it approached the dangerous stage of 26 feet.

Under the direction of the Red Cross, relief work for persons in the flooded districts was carried forward. A survey by the Red Cross has indicated that 635 families in Indiana have been made homeless by the flood.

Reports were received today that waters from the Wabash River and two small tributaries were washing heavily against levees which protect the town of Griffin in Posey County. This town was a heavy sufferer in the tornado that swept southern Illinois and southern Indiana in 1925.

Two Frozen to Death.

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Two persons—one a 75-year-old widow—were found frozen to death in and near Chicago today as the city again fell into the grip of a cold spell which the Weather Bureau predicted, would find temperatures at 5 below zero before morning. The official thermometer registered 5 above at 5 p. m.

The body of the woman victim, Mrs. Louise Brown, was found huddled in a blanket beside an empty stove. The other victim, Steve Franciscowicz, was found, bare footed and without hat or coat, near his home at McCook, a auburb.

Steuben, Mich., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Frank Meyers, 57, pioneer and veteran guide of Schoolcraft County, was found frozen to death 5 miles from Steuben today. He had gone out yesterday to cut ice. Meyers was known to hundreds of tourists and hunters who annually visited this section of upper Michigan.

Father of Missing Heiress Now Gone

Girl, Who Was to Have Come Into $60,000, Disappeared Christmas Eve.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The mystery of a girl's disappearance only two months before her twenty-first birthday, when she was to come into an estate of $60,000, was heightened today when police learned that her father, who was executor, also had vanished.

The girl, Mary Moody, was last seen on Christmas Eve, the father, John Moody, 69, told police four days later. She left their apartment in East Rockaway saying: "I'm going to Chicago," he said, and did not return, although she had only about $7 with her.

Moody told of the "small fortune" which the girl was to receive upon reaching her majority, but did not mention where it came from. Two days ago he vanished, the police learned today. The girl's mother was said to be dead.

Taxi Indemnity Bond Proposal Is Protested

The first dissenting voice to the proposal that taxicabs be forced to carry indemnity insurance was heard yesterday in District Supreme Court when F. B. Smith, of 5043 Conduit road northwest, filed a petition to restrain the Public Utilities Commission from putting the edict into effect on February 1.

Mr. Smith, through his attorney, Leon Robbins, tells the court that he is financially unable to file the necessary security bond and that if the commission puts the order into effect he will be put to great expense and his means of livelihood will be impaired. He states that he is the owner and operator of his cab and that he has paid all licenses required under the law since he began operating.

WASHINGTON IS DUE FOR NEW COLD SNAP

forecast for today is for a slight drop in the temperature and possibly rain, maybe sleet, maybe snow.

Any number of accidents resulted from the still slippery conditions of the streets and sidewalks from the snows of last week, the most serious of which was a fractured left shoulder and shock suffered by Mrs. Virginia L. Acton, 20 years old, of Alexandria, when her car was in collision with that of Mrs. Elizabeth Care, 60, of Pennsylvania.

The accident occurred on Fourteenth street northwest, between C and D streets. Mrs. Care was driving north, while Mrs. Acton was going south. Mrs. Acton was treated by Dr. Noble P. Barnes, of 1025 Vermont avenue northwest.

David Zirkle, 19 years old, of 2020 Fourteenth street southeast, was cut and bruised about the face when he drove into a parked automobile at Sixteenth and N streets southeast, while sled-riding about 8 o'clock last night. He was treated at Casualty Hospital and later sent home.

Gresham Cole, 21 years old, colored, of 936 N street northwest, suffered a broken left elbow, lacerations of the scalp and concussions when his feet slipped from under him at Vermont avenue and N street yesterday morning. He was given medical aid at Emergency Hospital.

A heavy fall at Sixth and G streets southeast left Archie R. Partello, 45 years old, of 4724 Ninth street northwest, with a broken left wrist yesterday afternoon. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

John A. Coe, living at 1354 D street northeast, received a cut over his left eye when he fell early yesterday afternoon at the corner of Fourth and Washington streets northwest. He was removed to Casualty Hospital by the Sixth Precinct patrol and after treatment was taken to the station where a charge of intoxication was preferred against him.

Cup Will Be Given In Wesley Heights

Community Club Is to Get Award as Winner of Yule Contest.

As a reward for winning the "Brighter Community Christmas" contest, a silver loving cup will be presented this evening at 9:30 o'clock, by Joseph T. Kirchner, president of the Electric League of Washington, to Frederick Pyle, president of the Wesley Heights Community Club, winning organization, at the Community Club at Forty-fifth and Macomb streets in Wesley Heights.

The Electric League of Washington and The Washington Post sponsored a campaign entitled "A Brighter Community Christmas in Washington," and Wesley Heights, development of W. C. & A. N. Miller, was awarded the prize for having the most attractive community display.

Displays were judged for artistic merit and effectiveness, and the proportion of individual displays to the total number of residences in the community was an important factor in arriving at the decision.

Wife Seeks Separation; Says Mate Beer Drinker

Charging that her husband, William Leadbetter, has consumed 12 gallons of beer per week for five months and has been drunk every week-end during that period, Mrs. Ethel Leadbetter yesterday petitioned the District of Columbia Supreme Court to give her a legal separation. She alleges that despite his ability to consume intoxicants that her husband goes to work every morning and earns $60 per week.

The ability of the husband to consume the liquid refreshments is not the only basis of the suit, the wife alleging that on New Year's Day he struck her and deserted her the following day. The wife sets out that they were married June 10, 1923, and that one child has resulted from the union. She requests the court to compel her husband to divide his earnings with her.

Damage Suit of $10,375 Filed by Woman Here

Viola M. Kunze, of 5822 Fourth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against the Nash & Turner Coal Co., of 452 New York avenue northwest, seeking to collect $10,375 for alleged personal injuries and damages to her automobile.

The plaintiff, through Attorneys Jamieson & Ward, tells the court that on October 17, last, she was operating her automobile when it was struck at L and North Capitol streets by a truck belonging to the defendant. She alleges that the driver of the truck violated several traffic regulations and that the accident resulted She seeks $10,000 for her injuries and $375 for repairs to her automobile.

Fire Destroys Truck.

Rufus Thompson, 21 years old, colored, of 405 O street northwest, was slightly burned when the truck he was driving caught fire at a gasoline station at Sixth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest early last night. The roof of the station was damaged, and the car was destroyed. Thompson was treated at Sibley Hospital.

HOOVER JUDGESHIP POLICY IS MENACED

Alabama G. O. P. Leader Is Pressed for Vacancy on U. S. Bench.

HUSTON HEADING FIGHT

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover's announced intention of taking the Federal judiciary out of politics has again struck a snag, this time in the case of Oliver D. Street, Republican national committeeman from Alabama, who is seeking the vacancy in that State created by the death of Federal Judge Clayton.

Attorney General Mitchell has Mr. Street's appointment held up but the Republican organization is bringing such pressure on the President that it is doubtful if it will be held up long. The Republican national chairman, Claudius Huston, is leading the fight in behalf of Mr. Street. The theory is presumably that if the President's policy ever gets an entering wedge into the organization it will be gone in so far as these judicial appointments are concerned.

Although Mr. Street gained considerable unfavorable prominence in the last presidential campaign, the Attorney General's stated objections to him are understood to be that he is beyond the age limit which Mr. Mitchell fixed for the consideration of judicial applicants. The Attorney General is understood to have laid down the rule that he would not recommend anyone for the Federal bench over 60 years old. Mr. Street is 65 of 66.

No Question of Ability Involved.

Unlike the previous two instances in which the President, because of political pressure, was forced to override his Attorney General, there is said to be no question of ability involved in Mr. Street's case. He is reputed to be a competent lawyer.

He does not live, however, in the district over which he would preside, which a couple of years ago was the basis of a successful fight in the Senate against Majority Leader Tilson's brother. He had been appointed to a Georgia vacancy.

It is doubtful, however, whether there would be any serious fight against Mr. Street in the Senate because both of the Alabama senators, Heflin and Black, are in the same shoes, so to speak. That is to say, they share the sentiment which brought Mr. Street his unfavorable prominence during the campaign, the sentiment that an effective way of getting votes in Alabama is to raise the religious issue.

Called Down by Work.

Mr. Street was called down by Chairman Work, of the Republican national committee, for distributing anti-Catholic leaflets, but continued distributing them just the same. There is the question whether, because of this, he has the proper judicial temperament.

Senator Heflin has submitted several names for the place which Mr. Street seeks and Mr. Street's name was not among them. This is because Mr. Street is a Republican, though, and does not mean that the senator will fight Mr. Street's appointment if it is made.

There is considerable interest in the outcome of the case, aside from the bearing on Mr. Hoover's effort to get the judiciary out of politics. Of course, Mr. Street, while reputed to be a competent lawyer, is first of all a politician.

Aside from this angle, however, there is interest in the outcome because of its bearing on Senator Heflin's fight.

Heflin's Chance as Independent.

The Alabama Democrats who ousted Senator Heflin from the party recently are depending upon the Republicans putting a ticket in the elections this fall. Senator Heflin's only chance for success as an independent candidate, it is contended, lies in a possible coalition with the Republicans, a coalition such as was effected in Virginia several months ago, which, incidentally, was unsuccessful.

If there is a three-cornered race in Alabama with an independent, Democratic and Republican ticket in the field, the regulars are convinced that Senator Heflin will have no chance at all.

But the question is raised as to who will get out the Republican ticket if Mr. Street goes to the Federal bench. He is the Republican party in Alabama at present. It is unlikely that there is any one else who would be quite as effective as he.

On the other hand, if Mr. Street does not get his judicial appointment there is the natural question of whether he would feel like putting his heart in his work henceforth, whether he would feel like putting out a State ticket or not.

South Carolina Lawyer Is Found Shot to Death

Marion, S. C., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Henry Mullins, 65, former State senator from Marion County, is dead today as a result of a gunshot wound in his head, believed to have been self-inflicted.

His body was found yesterday in his law office shortly after he left his home, carrying a gun. He told members of his family that he was going hunting. Mr. Mullins had for some time been despondent over business reverses, friends said.

President Given Bill To Restore Wakefield

The Senate approved the House amendments to the Swanson-Bland bill yetserday, thus completing congressional action on the measure. It authorizes a Federal appropriation of $65,000 for the restoration of Wakefield, Va., birthplace of George Washington.

The Senate also approved a bill to speed up the condemnation of land for the memorial boulevard to connect Mount Vernon with the Arlington Bridge. Both measures now go to the White House for the President's signature.

be spent for new equipment and improvements this year.

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western sought authority to sell $25,000,000 of Morris & Essex Railroad bonds, expecting to spend approximately $16,000,000 on improvements. Permission was asked by the New York, New Haven & Hartford to issue $4,545,000 of equipment trust certificates to finance partially the purchase of new equipment costing $6,070,046.

Railroads have informed President Hoover that they expect to spend more money this year than last on improvements, but these were the first applications for large financing since January 1.

TEN ARE INDICTED UNDER JONES LAW

36 TRUE BILLS REPORTED

Ten indictments charging violation of the Jones law were returned by the District of Columbia Grand Jury yesterday while similar charges against only three persons were ignored.

The 10 indictments were among 36 true bills reported by the body submitted to Justice Peyton Gordon in Criminal Division No. 1. It was the first report made by the new inquisitorial group. Twelve charges were ignored, three of the number being those involving the Jones Act.

Twelve indictments charging housebreaking and larceny and seven charging nonsupport of minor children or nonsuppport of wife and minor children made up the bulk of the remainder of the report.

Those indicted on Jones Law charges are: George White, George White and George Kelley, Thomas Henry Smith, Thomas Watkins, Frank Joseph Copsey and Alice Marie Thrift, Lewis Edward Ridgway, Roland Smith Stegall and James Sidney Johnson, James Fletcher Hayes, Martin Joseph Tierney and Garfield Prioleu, alias Garfield Pirolou, alias Garfield Perolou.

Those against whom charges were ignored and the charges follow: John J. Widmayer and Ansel T. Rogers, manslaughter; John T. Nolan, two charges of false pretense; John M. Brown, false pretense; Carlis Simms, smoke screen; Frank Usher, joy riding; Edward McGruder Christman, joy riding; Curtis A. White, joy riding; Charles Jones, Jones act; Frank J. Murray, Jones act; Kenneth Vincon Woldridge, Jones act, and Frank C. Smith, housebreaking and larceny.

The report of the grand jury was the first made under the direction of Assistant United States Attorney Hobart Newman. United States Attorney Rover gave Assistant United States Attorney Newman a promotion at the beginning of the New Year and placed him in charge of the grand jury work.

Alleged Crash Hurts Cause of $10,000 Suit

Claiming she was injured in an automobile accident last June 20 near Annapolis, Md., Frances C. Whiting, of 1330 Nineteenth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against Mrs. Evelyn Condon and Arthur D. Condon, of 1216 Sixteenth street northwest, seeking to recover $10,000 damages.

The plaintiffs tell the court that she was a passenger in the Condons' automobile on the date in question and that she was hurt when the machine skidded from the road and overturned. Negligence and carelessness on the part of Mrs. Condon, said to have been the driver, are alleged to have been the cause of the accident. Attorney Avin L. Newmyer appears for the plaintiff.

BYRD NORTH POLE AID BURIED AT SEA

Widow of Thomas A. Hewson, of This City, Notified of Husband's Death.

LED ADVENTUROUS LIFE

Thomas A. Hewson, who was a member of the Byrd North Pole Expedition in 1926, died at sea January 5 and was buried in the Atlantic the same day, according to advice received here by Mrs. Hewson, 1436 R street northwest.

The American consul at St. John's, Newfoundland, forwarded the notification to Mrs. Hewson, without any explanation as to the cause of his death. Yesterday she received a letter informing her that an inquiry would be held when the ship, West Amargosa, docks at Philadelphia shortly.

The letter was from an official of the American-Hampton Line, of Norfolk, Va., owners of the vessel.

Mr. Hewson was a close friend of Rear Admiral Byrd and was praised by the explorer for his services as commissariat of the North Pole Expedition.

Mr. Hewson had had many experiences during an adventurous life of traveling. In 1927 he visited the Pitcairn Island in the South Sea, whose inhabitants are descendants of British mutineers. He declined an offer to become ruler of the island.

Mr. Hewson was a native of London, but had made his home in Washington for 35 years. He was well known in National Guard circles. He was a member of Company D, Third Regiment, D. C. N. G., during the Mexican border campaign.

During a long career at sea, he served as steward on many vessels, including the ocean yacht, Dauntless, of Commodore C. H. Holt, and on the cup defender, Vigilant.

Niece of Dead Deputy Kills Slayer's Cousin

Harlan, Ky., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Eliza Howard shot Lewis Johnson, 22, to death at the Howard home at Baxter, about two miles from here today. The shooting was said to be the result of the killing of Adrion Metcalf, Deputy United States Marshal, by Willie Johnson, 21, who was acquitted Saturday night on a plea of self defense.

Lewis Johnson, a cousin of Willie Johnson, went to the home of Mrs Howard, who is a niece of Adrion Metcalf. They got into an argument over the guilt or innocence of Johnson, with Lewis Johnson defending his cousin, while Mrs. Howard called the slaying of her uncle cold blooded murder and finally grabbed a pistol belonging to her husband and shot Johnson five times.

Diet Is Dissolved By Japanese Ruler

Premier Hopes to Gain Party Majority in Election February 20.

Tokyo, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Emperor Hirohito dissolved the Japanese Diet today upon request of Premier Yuko Hamaguchi, who hopes by an election, February 20, to gain a majority for his party, the Minzeito, which has held only a minority of seats in the Lower House.

The dissolution took place soon after the Diet reconvened today, following a recess. Premier Hamaguchi, Foreign Minister Shidehara and Finance Minister Inouye delivered speeches. Brief interpellations by the opposition followed, and knowing he could not command a majority vote, the premier declared the Diet dissolved.

This result had been foreseen since Premier Hamaguchi replaced the late Gen. Tanaka as prime minister, July 2. Of the 466 seats in the House of Representatives, Hamaguchi's Minzeito party held 174, while the Seiyukai, chief opposition party, held 239.

Death of Accountant Held as Suicide by Jury

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of William H. Beddome, 50 years old, who was found asphyxiated in the kitchen of his apartment at East Clifton Terrace Sunday night.

Mr. Beddome worked for Councilor & Buchanan, a local firm of accountants. His home was in Montreal, Canada. Prior to coming to Washington, he had worked for accountants in Oklahoma and Miami.

He was found by a friend Sunday night on the table of the kitchen of his apartment. Gas was flowing from three jets.

ENVOY'S SWAN SONG DELIVERED ON RADIO

Sir Esme Howard Bids Adieu to American Friends in National Hook-Up.

HARMONY HOPE STATED

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador and dean of the Washington Diplomatic Corps, giving what he called his "swan song," last night inaugurated the "Conclave of Nations" series of international good-will radio talks by accredited ambassadors and ministers to the American Government, over a coast-to-coast hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Preceding Sir Esme's address English choral and orchestral selections were rendered by the Columbia Broadcasting staff, under the direction of Channon Collengs.

After outlining a brief summary of the history of the English music, in which he stated that it was peculiarly fitting that the swan song of a retiring British Ambassador should be accompanied by the pleasant harmonies of truly English music, Sir Esme said:

Envoy Expresses Thanks.

"I would like to say a few words of thanks—of deep and hearty thanks to the great American people for all the kindness and hospitality I have received since I have lived among them.

"I have learned many lessons during the years spent on this side of the Atlantic. I have admired the wonderful energy, the organizing power, the constructive genius and, perhaps above all, the refusal to take defeat, the readiness to start again and make a success of it, which is so characteristic of the American people.

"And I have rejoiced in your friendliness and in your open-heartedness and readiness to give information on scientific matters to all and sundry. I have, above all, admired the intensive search for truth that is being carried out by your great scientific investigators, who come to the assistance not only of your industries, but also of those in the world at large in the most generous spirit.

Hope for Harmony Stated.

"I wish, therefore, to take this one opportunity to express my most hearty thanks to this country for the hospitality I have received and the lessons I have learned and if any are listening on the radio whom I have had the pleasure of meeting, to say that I hope I may have the pleasure of seeing them again some day in this country, because my American education has been at once so pleasant and so useful that I can not look upon it as more than half completed.

"Finally, may I say that I leave the United States in the fullest hope that the most pleasant harmonies may in the future dominate the relations of all English-speaking countries?

"Music, as well as religion and science, should help to bind us together and bring us all to such a frame of mind that discords may never again enter into our joint compositions."

ambulance, and there was some doubt that he would live.

John B. Walker, of Belleville, N. J., who had been arguing with Mr. Siegelman when the bus skidded, was taken to the same hospital with both legs fractured.

Mrs. Pauline Frieling, whose husband, Edward, of Brooklyn, was driving the sedan which the bus knocked into the ditch, was badly cut about the face and head, but Mr. Frieling was not hurt.

Jake Schuman, of York, Pa., a passenger in the bus, had his left leg broken when the big carry-all plunged over the 5-foot embankment.

Frederick G. Fredericks, of Belleville, was the only other person to suffer a serious injury. He was the driver of the taxi which the truck hit as he had drawn up at the roadside to put chains on the wheels and got a broken right leg when he was knocked into the ditch.

The three passengers in his cab, Mrs. John Julian, of East Orange, N. J., and Mrs. W. G. Lentz and Mrs. Florence Harms, of Orange, were bruised but not hurt otherwise.

Neither Charles Sawyer, of 38 North Terry street, Philadelphia, driver of the bus, nor Luther Perry, of Orange, the truck pilot, was hurt.

Three ambulances hurried to the scene as soon as the accident was reported, but most of the injured refused any treatment beyond emergency aid dispensed at the Hudson County police headquarters.

The State and county police immediately joined forces in stationing policemen at 50-foot intervals along the road to warn motorists to hold down their speed as they crossed the meadows. As a result no further accidents occured.

Weather Is Blamed For Air Line Crash

Technical Inquiry Board Gives Official Report on Death of 16.

Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Transcontinental Air Transport-Maddux air line's technical board of inquiry tonight expressed an official opinion that Sunday's crash of one of the company's transport planes with a loss of sixteen lives was the result of "a local weather condition of unpredicted and unforseen characteristics."

The report of the board of inquiry was made public as having been approved by the T. A. T.-Maddux board of directors. It followed a day spent in hearing testimony of witnesses and pilots who had flown planes over the territory between Oceanside and San Clemente, Calif., in which the company's "race special" from Agua Caliente to Grand Central Air Terminal, Glendale, Calif., fell and burned.

Moran and Mack Stage Court Fight

"Two Black Crows" Split Up Over Agreement on Management.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The vaudeville team of Moran and Mack, better known as the "two black crows," has come to a parting of the ways.

In superior court, George Moran, whose real name is George Searcy, has obtained a temporary restraining order against Charles Mack, prohibiting him from using the names "Moran" and the "two black crows" in further acts. Mack's birth name is Charles E. Sellers.

The disagreement followed the signing of a contract by the comedians in which Moran was named manager of the team. Moran claimed he signed the paper without knowing that he would receive no compensation from Mack for assuming the managership. The action also seeks recision of the agreement.

Mack originated the vaudeville skit in 1917 and since then has had several partners.

MINE RESCUE SQUAD WORKS TO FREE TRIO

One Rescued When Roof Caves, Trapping Quartet of Coal Workers.

MAN SENT TO HOSPITAL

Scranton, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Rescue workers tonight continued their fight to release three miners who had been trapped in the Jermin Colliery of the Hudson Coal Co. at Jermin, by a fall of the roof. A fourth man, who was in the workings at noon when the roof collapsed, was rescued, and was taken to a hospital for treatment of injuries.

The men entombed are: Harold Van Sickle, 30, and James Charles, both of Jermin, and William McAndrew, of Jeasup.

Reports to the mine officers said the roof collapsed while the men were engaged in removing pillars.

Patrick McAndrew, a brother of one of the missing men, was rescued by fellow mine workers after two hours work. He was injured about the legs and body, but not seriously.

Mr. McAndrew told the recuers that the other three men were farther back in the workings, probably under the fall.

He was trapped behind 20 feet of coal and rock and talked with the rescue gangs as they labored with picks and shovels to get to him.

Rescuers late today were trying to reach the point in the mine where the other three men were last seen.

A cold does 3 things

"Pape's" stops them all

A cold always affects you in at least three ways. Air passages are inflamed and irritated. Perspiration is checked. Bowels are clogged with acid wastes from the mucous discharge. So doctors say you must do three things to be rid of a cold.

Pape's Cold Compound does all three! It reduces inflammation and swelling of the mucous membrane; it induces perspiration; opens the bowels. Chew one of these pleasant tablets and see how quickly nasal discharge stops; head clears; breathing becomes easy. See how that achy, feverish, weak feeling disappears. And "Pape's" doesn't stop with killing cold germs. It activates bowels and removes germs and acid wastes from the system. All drug stores — 35c. Just remember "Pape's."

RIVER ROAD OPENING DECIDED BY SHIRLEY

Stretch Between Alexandria and Washington Has Been Closed for Weeks.

SCHOOL PATROLS NAMED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Chairman H. G. Shirley, of the State Highway Commission, has agreed to the reopening of the River Road between here and Washington, which has been closed for several weeks on account of construction work, and the road will be used until spring, it is understood.

Edward Duncan, Robert L. May, owner of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Bus Line, and State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Arlington County, called on Mr. Shirley yesterday in Richmond with the request that the road be reopened, since the work has been halted by inclement weather, and has been progressing very slowly of late. The barriers which were placed across the road by Chairman Shirley's orders, will be removed.

The closing of the road has been a source of great inconvenience to Alexandrians and tourists who have been compelled to detour, and there have been many complaints due to the fact that the work of improvement was being done so slowly that there seemed little hope of the road being ready for use for several months.

Two slot machines, which were seized in a store conducted by James Crowley, 601 South Lee street, were taken into Police Court yesterday by Capt. W. W. Campbell and Detective Sergt. Sims. Capt. Campbell testified that he played one of the machines and struck a "jackpot," the machine paying a large number of metal checks, and among these were several nickels. Justice W. S. Snow dismissed the charge against Crowley, but warned the dealer that a repetition would mean imposition of a fine and confiscation of the machine.

J. G. Hughes, a traveling inspector for a Baltimore concern that operates these machines, gave a demonstration of their working in court. Attorney Frederick G. Duvall explained to the court that the machines are supposed to give out a package of mints only, and the checks given the winner are not good for merchandise.

The machines were taken by the police last Friday. A large number of similar machines are now in operation in this city.

The fifth annual banquet of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Clerks Association will be held at the George Mason Hotel at 6:45 o'clock this evening, when 275 guests, including practically all the officials of the railroad company, headed by Eppa Hunton, jr., president of the company, are expected to attend.

There will be no set formal speeches, but many informal talks will be made. J. W. Thomas, president of the association, will occupy the head of the table and welcome the visitors. Invocation will be by J. M. Cornell.

The entertainment program will include numbers by Miss Margery Mitchell, of Washington; Miss Margaret Eddington, J. W. Mullings, of Washington, and Mrs Astryke. The program will be followed by dancing.

Schoolboy patrols have been set up at the Mount Vernon School and George Mason High School, in Potomac, which became a part of the Alexandria public school system on January 1. William Mervine is captain of the Mount Vernon patrol, with Morton Feaganes, George Krews, Howard Coleman, Jack Morris and William Stearman as patrolmen.

Cedric Redd is captain of the George Mason High patrol, assisted by Ralph Ball, lieutenant, and Patrolmen George Jeffries, Jesse Hawkins, Edward Schultz, Joseph McCaleb, Compton Broaddus and Francis Garten.

These patrols are filling an urgent need, as for several weeks past all traffic which has heretofore used the lower river road between Alexandria and Washington has been detoured through Potomac and passes these schools.

The American Automobile Association, which has supplied belts and badges for the local patrols, has made arrangements to supply all the boys with raincoats and rain hats, to be used while on patrol duty, arrangements having been made by William L. Leitch, who is in charge of the local patrols, to secure a sufficient number for the boys of the Alexandria schools, which will be made available at an early date.

The local Kiwanis Club will have as its guests at the weekly luncheon today Linn C. Drake, scout executive of the District of Columbia Council; William L. Leitch, assistant scout executive, and eight Star Scouts of Alexandria.

GAS TAX PLAN HEARD BY VIRGINIA SENATE

No Action Taken on Plan for Revenue Distribution at Richmond.

MANY BILLS SUBMITTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 21.—Road legislation had its first inning in the Virginia General Assembly today when the Senate roads committee heard and passed over the gasoline tax distribution plan, under which Virginia as a whole would gain, but to the loss of all northern Virginia counties except Prince William. The bill will take its place with other road legislation which will be forthcoming shortly.

Senator George W. Layman, Craig, said he would soon introduce a bill in the Senate similar to the Porter-Rhodes bill in the House, proposing the addition of 1,500 miles to the State highway system and providing other means for the distribution of the gasoline tax funds among the counties. The Porter-Rhodes bill would put on the additional highway mileage and provide for its improvement within three years despite the fact that much of the present system has not been improved.

Routine election of judges was carried through, and committees again began grinding out their grist of bills, while in other sections of the capitol strong pressure was continued on C. H. Morrissett, tax commissioner, and Leon M. Bazile, assistant attorney general, resigned officials, in an effort to persuade them to retain their posts.

Statement by Governor.

Gov. Pollard announced positively that he was not at present considering the appointment of a commissioner of agriculture and immigration, neither George W. Koiner nor any other person, and was emphatic in his expression that none had been decided on for the attorney generalship.

A Richmond paper had predicted, apparently on good information, that troubles between Mr. Koiner and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute had been worked out and that he would be reappointed.

Word of the death of Delegate Samuel L. Adams, 64, of Halifax, member of House since 1922, was received shortly after the House adjourned, and Speaker Brown appointed a committee of A. O. King, his colleague, Maitland Bustard, Danville, and L. A. Bryant, Pittsylvania, to attend the funeral, along with Senator James E. Easley, of Halifax. Mr. Adams attended the opening days of the session, but he was so troubled with heart disease that he soon left. He died at 11 a. m. today and funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Other Bills Introduced.

A number of important bills were introduced including one by Delegates Gary, Brewer and Harman, which would provide for an industrial farm for women prisoners to be operated under the State prison board and to accommodate all women prisoners now confined in county, city and town jails and the State penitentiary.

Delegate Earl A. Cadmus, Portsmouth, and E. T. Humphries, Norfolk County, introduced for the Fraternal Order of Eagles the old age pension bill, which would provide a sum sufficient to bring up the income of a person about 70 years of age, under certain conditions, to not more than $1 a day.

No person whose property is valued at more than $3,000 or with near relatives would be eligible.

The Senate, 26 to 10, today voted for itself stenographic work not in excess of $50 for the term, which may be charged to the State.

The liberal arts college bill, sponsored by Senators Early, Holt and Montague, was taken up this afternoon and set for a joint committee hearing, Tuesday, February 4, while it was reported that a powerful lobby of University of Virginia alumni is forming to conduct a concerted battle on the measure, which would establish the coordinated college for women at Charlottesville.

The House courts of justice committee referred two bills dealing with the raising of the exemption under the garnishee law to a subcommittee of Delegates C. W. Crowder, Richmond, and Haskin Hobson, of Chesterfield, to report Tuesday.

The Retail Merchants Association of Richmond and several other organizations are reported ready to fight the measure, on the ground that they will not be able to collect, but the Roanoke Association, it is reported, will favor raising the exemption in an effort to curtail the number of bankruptcies.

Another measure that would prevent any corporation from operating a dental parlor is reported as being drawn for introduction. It was explained that the projected measure, designed only to fix responsibility for malpractice, would not interfere with partnerships.

Senator Lesner's State-wide automobile drivers' permit bill and the safety responsibility bill were referred to subcommittees on the road committee of the Senate.

BURIAL TODAY

MRS. MARGARET E. ROCK.

Funeral Today Of Mrs. Rock, 76

Long Time Charitable Worker in Southwest Section.

Mrs. Margaret E. Rock, 76 years old, a lifelong resident of the Southwest section, who died at her home Sunday, of heart trouble, will be buried this afternoon in the Congressional Cemetery, following services at her home at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Rock, who lived at 611 Sixth street southwest, was well known in that section for her charitable work. For many years she had been engaged as a practical nurse.

She is survived by eight children: William, Joseph, Lewis and George Rock, Mrs. Dolly B. Crawford, Mrs. Emma Truesheim, and Mrs. Margaret Chisholm, all of Washington, and Raymond Rock, of Lawson, Mo. She is also survived by 14 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Capital Fireman Retired by Board

Capt. Hellmuth Will Get Pension; Police Private Also to Quit.

Capt. Frank Hellmuth, of No. 2 Engine Company, was retired from the Fire Department yesterday for physical disabilities incurred in line of duty.

Capt. Hellmuth's retirement was recommended by the board of surgeons and the retiring board and Fire Chief George S. Watson and was approved by the District Commissioners. He was granted a pension of $104.16 a month.

Private Otto Sonntag of the Police Department also was retired by the Commissioners yesterday on recommendation of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police. Private Sonntag is 67 years old and has served in the Police Department for more than 30 years and was entitled to retirement for age and length of service. He was retired with a pension of $87.50 a month. His retirement becomes effective on March 16, the date he requested.

Ricketts Elected Sportsmen's Head

Montgomery County Group Holds Annual Meeting in Rockville.

W. F. Ricketts was elected president of the Montgomery County Fish and Game Protective Association last night at its annual meeting in the St. Mary's Catholic Hall, Rockville, Md. Other officers chosen are R. W. Farmer, vice president; Roger Spates, treasurer, and Reuben Riggs, secretary.

Approximately 250 men attended the meeting and banquet and were welcomed by George M. Hunter. Carroll Waters, game warden, made a talk on the seining of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal by which 8,000 fish were placed back in the rivers. Among the other speakers was Col. Seymore Bullock, of the Izaak Walton League.

Nick Altrock, coach and comedian of the Washington ball club, was chief entertainer and distributor of prizes at the gathering.

Arches Are Urged At City Entrance

Advertising Club Hears Merits of Washington Extolled.

Washington as the best advertised city in the world was the theme of an address yesterday by William K. Cooper before the Advertising Club of Washington, meeting in the National Press Club.

In addition to its wide advertisement, Mr. Cooper declared that the city offers everything desirable for a convention. He expressed the hope that when the proposed boulevards into Washington are completed that arches will be placed at the entrances to the District suitable for the National Capital.

Fred Guthrie, of Station WRC, told the audience how the pick up was made early yesterday of King George's speech before the naval disarmament conference in London. Ernest S. Johnston presided.

The luncheon also celebrated the victory of the Washington Club in bringing the annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America to this city May 18 to 21.

THE BEGINNING.

With a cordial welcome from King George V, and with formal expressions of mutual good will and eagerness to cooperate, the naval conference in London begins its labors.

If any one reads the speeches of the heads of delegations for the purpose of finding in or between the lines any indication of what is in the mind of the respective governments he will be disappointed. These addresses admirably illustrate the truth of the old saying that speech is given to man to conceal his thoughts.

Fortunately the world's welfare does not depend upon the window-dressing that is regarded as a necessary preliminary to an international conference. Old custom has prescribed that glittering generalities shall be dressed in glittering garb when ambassadors meet to begin their fencing. The world loves an occasional display of the draperies that adorn the Field of the Cloth of Gold. Men are playboys and natural actors. The groundlings look on with delight, and nobody is the worse for the entertainment.

The delegations will soon come to grips, and then will come the test of this latest conference in the field of disarmament, whose history, as pithily remarked by Signor Grandi yesterday, has been "heretofore so rich in debates and resolutions but so poor in concrete results."

Although Gen. Jan Smuts recently assured Americans that "national needs" are not the true basis of naval limitation discussions, a careful scrutiny of the opening speeches at London will disclose that national needs are the first thought of each government represented. An agreement must be based upon mutual concessions which accept each government's specification of its national needs. Inasmuch as the national needs as already outlined presuppose an increase of naval force by France, Italy and Japan, and that the United States must increase its cruiser force if parity with the British navy is to be attained, it is already hopeless to expect naval reduction as a consequence of the conference. Limitation, if it is to be attained, must be by building up and not by scrapping any kind of ships.

"National needs" is an unworkable formula if applied to the naval rivalry of France and Italy. The heads of both delegations appreciate this fact. Hence they agree that political adjustments must precede a naval agreement. If they insist upon political discussions, the conference may go a long way and find no exit except an agreement to disagree. Certainly the United States can not become a party to political arrangements affecting the Mediterranean. If the American delegation should be misled by its desire for agreement into an undertaking committing the United States to a plan for holding conferences whenever trouble is threatened in the Mediterranean, the treaty will undoubtedly be wrecked by the Senate as the only recourse in preserving the Monroe Doctrine. A choice between the Monroe Doctrine and a new political arrangement plunging the United States into Mediterranean politics would soon be made.

The Kellogg pact is a step forward toward permanent peace, but it can be destroyed by an ill-advised attempt to distort it into an obligation to intermeddle in overseas politics. Whenever the Kellogg pact, as misinterpreted, comes into conflict with the Monroe Doctrine the pact is doomed. Jefferson rightly regarded the Monroe Doctrine as the most important act of the United States next to the Declaration of Independence. The Declaration created the ship of state; the Doctrine sets its course forever.

HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT.

Cost of government is rapidly increasing in the United States. A survey just completed by the National Industrial Conference Board shows that the people paid $9,289,000,000 to maintain Federal, State and local governments in 1928. Five years ago taxes amounted to only $6,746,000,000. Since that time the Federal tax rate has been steadily declining, although the national income has increased enough to keep the per capita cost of the Government on the same level. All the increase has come from State and local tax levies.

The actual cost of government is considerably higher than the total receipts from taxation, as the Treasury receives large sums from customs duties and other sources. But a large percentage of the funds for all governmental budgets comes from the pockets of the people. The estimate that approximately 11 per cent of the national income goes for governmental expenses indicates that taxes are an important item in the family budget. In this respect, however, citizens of the United States are fortunate compared with many people of Europe. A few years ago the French were paying 20 per cent of their income in taxes, and such excessive levies are not uncommon.

Reduction of Federal taxes was to have been expected following the war. Yet the lowering of tax rates while the Government was paying approximately $1,000,000,000 per year on its debt is a notable achievement. The States have no such a record to their credit. While retrenchment has been the rule in Washington, the States have swelled their budgets by 25 per cent in the last five years. Local governments have followed close upon this pace with a 20 per cent increase. At the same time bonded indebtedness has been growing to meet the widespread demands for public improvements.

Figures indicating the actual increase in public service resulting from these greater expenditures would be full of interest. A governmental unit can not be fairly judged by its tax rate alone. There is nothing to suggest that citizens of Alabama, who pay a per capita tax of $17.68, receive more for their money than citizens of Nevada, who pay an average tax of $86.84. The real test comes in how these funds are expended. As expenses of State and local governments continue to mount, efficient administration becomes imperative.

TRAFFIC AND KILLINGS.

Several different sets of figures on automobile accident fatalities have been worked out since the beginning of the year, and each of them has been interpreted as indicating an alarming growth of recklessness among American motorists. Figures of the Bureau of the Census based on reports from the 78 leading cities of the United States show an increase of 11 per cent in motoring fatalities during the year. The National Safety Council has compiled figures from 31 States and report 31,500 fatalities within that area. This is an increase of 13 per cent over the number of deaths from this cause last year. Complete accurate figures will not be available for several months, but in the meantime there is no reason to consider the motoring public any more careless or the regulations any more lax than they have been.

Agencies which estimate the increased cost of life from operation of automobiles seldom accompany their reports with facts concerning the increased use of automobiles. Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, is authority for the statement that 5,500,000 automobiles were turned out by American factories during 1929. If all these cars had been kept in the United States and no old ones had been scrapped the increase would have been 26 per cent for the year. Allowance must be made, however, for replacements and exports. The most conservative estimate is an increased registration amounting to 8 per cent. The difference between this figure and the varying estimates of the increase in motoring fatalities is the basis on which the theory of increased recklessness and less efficient administration of traffic laws is founded.

Automobile registration is, however, an extremely unreliable starting point for any estimate of a year's traffic. Consumption of gasoline is a much more satisfactory indicator. The Bureau of Mines reports that 397,108,000 barrels of gasoline were consumed during the first eleven months of 1929, an increase of approximately 12.5 per cent over the rate of consumption during the previous year. It is probable that the rate of increase in the gasoline consumed in motor cars was even higher.

When all factors are taken into consideration it seems reasonable to estimate that the increase in accidents just about equals the increase in traffic. In past years traffic has been multiplying much more rapidly than have fatal accidents. Records of last year suggest that streets and highways are now carrying all that the traffic will bear without an increase in casualties. If this deduction is correct, the traffic and accident figures of 1929 are full of significance for authorities charged with the control of traffic and the construction of highways.

LIGHT ON AIR DISASTERS.

Three or more investigations of the Oceanside, Calif., airplane tragedy, in which sixteen persons were killed, are under way. It is possible, even though the ship is in ruins and there are no survivors, that the cause of the crash can be definitely fixed. Inasmuch as tragedies of this sort shake public confidence in the safety of airplane travel a most sweeping investigation and a full, unvarnished report is called for. The only agency qualified to make a satisfactory investigation and an unbiased report is the Department of Commerce, but it will be unable to make public its detailed findings.

Under present law the department does not have authority to compel the attendance of witnesses in investigations of airplane crashes. It does not have authority to make public detailed findings, and there is no provision making its reports privileged against possible damage suits. Senator Bingham has a bill before Congress to correct this situation, and he is pressing for action. "Air crashes should be taken out of the realm of unexplained mysteries," he says. "There is a reason for every crash, and public confidence can only be inspired by giving this reason and putting the blame where it should be."

The Bingham bill should receive immediate consideration. The cause of the crash of the air liner City of San Francisco in New Mexico last autumn, in which eight persons were killed, remains shrouded in mystery. The cause of the Oceanside tragedy should not be covered up. The public has a right to know the facts concerning every disaster to common carriers.

FOOLING WITH THE JUDICIARY.

A feeble attempt is being made in New York to take the judiciary out of politics. A bill sponsored by the Citizens Union has been introduced in both houses of the Legislature with a view to providing machinery for nomination of judges on a nonpartisan basis. Judges would still be elected, but the voters presumably would know nothing as to the candidate's politics.

This is manifestly a movement intended to elect more capable judges. But it has possibilities of destroying what responsibility now exists in the selection of judges. Under the present arrangement in most States judges are elected on the same ballot as other State and local officers. The parties making the nominations are held responsible for supplying candidates of a high type, and the party must stand or fall on the records of its candidates in office. Under the plan suggested in New York no organized political group would be responsible for the nomination of judges. Any shyster lawyer who could get sufficient indorsement from his friends and enough money for a campaign would become a potential judge. By taking its judiciary out of politics in this manner New York would be running a risk no up-to-date American State can afford to take.

President Hoover has nominated Gus A. Schuldt, presiding judge of the District of Columbia Police Court, for another term. Appointed originally to the bench by President Harding in 1922, and reappointed by President Coolidge in 1926, Judge Schuldt has labored indefatigably to clear up the docket and improve procedure in the Police Court. His renomination is in the nature of tangible recognition of the record he has made and the service he has rendered. Speedy confirmation by the Senate is called for.

THE MARRIAGE CONTRACT

From the Chicago Tribune.

The profound change in the marriage relationship, a change from wife inferiority before the law to wife parity if not superiority, is clearly indicated in recent court decisions touching the legal status of women. Woman's invasion of the husband's prerogatives has been a process of many decades. Man seems now to have surrendered unconditionally.

Marriage today is a bargain for the woman. From a status which has been described by the maxim, "A wife is not her own mistress, but is under the power of her husband," woman has appropriated most of the privileges of the marriage contract, until now the maxim might be true if the words wife and husband were reversed.

The old marriage arrangement originated in the exigencies of society in which wars were constantly being conducted. Woman was not safe unless she was under the protection of a husband. Marriage, therefore, brought to woman an opportunity to exist. That was virtually her only legal benefit from the contract. In return she disclaimed authority over her person and her property.

The husband was privileged to deprive a wife of her liberty and to administer chastisement if he thought she needed it. There is on record a decision of one of the State courts in this country which interpreted the chatisement privilege of the husband to mean that without being guilty of an assault he might whip his wife with a switch as large as his finger, but not larger than his thumb. The personal property of a woman was under the absolute disposal of her husband.

If woman had cause to protest that she was the slave of her husband under the common law 200 years ago, the man today may well complain that he gets the short end of the marriage contract. Indeed, it is questionable whether the contract guarantees to the husband any privilege as substantial as the opportunity to live, which once was the only right which inured to the wife by marriage.

The husband today has no power over his wife's person. The chastisement with which man might once correct misconduct of his wife would now be considered cruelty and would constitute evidence with which the woman might walk out of court in possession of most of her husband's fortune. The control of the wife's earnings likewise has been removed from the husband by the statutes in most States. Moreover, they are exempt from liability for the debts of the husband.

Instead of the husband acquiring possession of the wife's property there is a disposition in the courts and in the law to dispossess the husband of his own estate as well as to keep the wife's estate inviolate. All restrictions as to the wife's ownership of her paraphernalia have been removed.

In those States wherein the separate estate of the wife is not liable for the debts of the husband, even for the debts representing family necessities, it is doubtful whether the wife is obligated to sustain the husband in infirmity and incapacity. We doubt that in any State there is a penal obligation of the wife to provide for an incapacitated husband. Apparently woman has appropriated all of man's privileges and discarded his few legal responsibilities.

There is probably no State which threatens a wife with penal justice for nonsupport of children, although the husband is jailed in many States for failure to maintain the children. In this respect, too, the woman has been liberated from those penalties to which the man was liable when he was the master and she the slave. In law the woman now takes all and gives nothing.

PRESS COMMENT.

Next to Paralyzed.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Perhaps the law enforcement commission was not facetious when it alluded to "a staggering number" of arrests.

Fit Subject.

Akron Beacon-Journal: There's a new disease scare prevailing throughout the Nation called "parrot fever." If a habit of talking much and saying little started it, Congress had better look to its defenses.

A Woman's View.

Cincinnati Enquirer: An average husband is one who can make a dresser drawer look like a house that was in the path of a tornado when he is looking through it for something that was in plain sight when he pulled it open.

Dark Outlook.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt says: "World peace is a hundred years away." And when that century is up no doubt there will be waiting plenty of new issues that will have to be fought out.

A Long Test.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A Chicago judge decreed that an unnaturalized Italian couple, who sought divorce after 48 years of married life, must put up with it two years longer under the Justinian law, requiring "a reasonable trial period of 50 years." So trial marriages were not unknown to the ancients.

Hope Springs Eternal.

Boston Transcript: Several thousand hereditary voters without a program and almost without a hope is the description of the Democratic party in Maine as given by a magazine writer. But the description is not entirely accurate. Maine Democrats are never without hope. Their faith in political miracles makes every defeat a glistening promise of future glory.

Killing Is Costly.

Vicksburg Post: It has been estimated that it cost the combatants $33,700 to kill each man during the World War. War is mighty expensive and all the participating nations, winners as well as losers, will be paying war debts all through life of all persons now living. But the monetary losses are not the worst features. The terrible sufferings, heartaches, privations, sorrow can never even be estimated.

KNOWLEDGE.

If I were great as the greatest are,
These I should want to know:
A little house, with its door ajar,
Ground where a rose can grow,
Intimate friendship with planet and star
And things of the earth below.

Not all of my strength would I give to men,
Not all of my time to fame.
I should want books which our dreamers pen
Books and a fire's bright flame.
And always a kiss and a welcome when Homeward at night I came.

I'd perish with fame that would counsel me
Ever be swift, be strong,
Blind to the beauty of plant and tree
And deaf to the wild bird's song,
The moan of the wind and the roar of the sea
Hurry your way along.

If I were great as the greatest are,
Still should I want to know
A little house with its door ajar,
Books in a careless row,
Intimate friendship with creature and star
And ground where a rose can grow.

The Teacher's Faults Seem Trivial If You Have No Children in School.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If a man has no interest in a matter, his opinion of it is formed without study or analysis and deserves no respect.

The opinion worth hearing is that of the man who has something at stake—the man whose self-interest prompts him to examine the matter closely.

His may be a one-sided opinion, but it will be sincere and reasonable and much more trustworthy than the opinion of a man who has no interest in the matter.

If you would get an informed and intelligent opinion of the textile worker's rights and wrongs—ask a textile worker—not some mythical man in the street.

If you would have an opinion of similar merit concerning the mill owner's problems and policies, ask a mill owner.

For a sound opinion of the act that excludes the people of Japan, consult a Japanese or a Californian—not a resident of Greenland.

And if you would have an intelligent opinion concerning the rules and customs necessary to safeguard young women, ask the man who has daughters—not the bachelor.

Nine times in ten you can tell whether a man's children are boys or girls by asking his opinion of the promiscuous "petting" indulged in by certain youngsters.

If he has daughters in their teens, the word "necking" will disgust and horrify him.

He will think all men, young and old, bound by the rules of chivalry to revere and defend feminine virtue.

If he has sons only, he will think there is no harm in a little kissing and a little exchange of caresses.

When a censorship of books and plays and motion pictures is suggested, fathers and mothers favor it because they need help in safeguarding their children, while the libertarians—almost invariably bachelors or benedicts without children—oppose it because they have nothing to lose.

It isn't a mere coincidence that America's most celebrated "liberals"—cynical and tolerant gentlemen who laugh at censors and clamor for absolute liberty—are one and all confirmed bachelors.

Their opinions of moral safeguards and moral standards are worth nothing at all, for they have nothing at stake.

When they discuss morals they are impudent—as a layman is when he criticizes the technic of surgeons, or a spinster when she tells mothers how to train their infants.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE NAVAL DISARMAMENT HUDDLE.

The movement to bring naval battles under the head of pleasure boating is on again. This time it is a five-power naval disarmament huddle in London. Delegates from the various countries have so far scrapped nothing beyond a catalogue showing 1930 models of admirals dinghies, but normal optimism is being registered.

* * * *

The idea is to reduce the fleets of all major powers so that admirals will have to sleep two to a bunk and gunners three to a hammock. The theory is that if you make the admirals uncomfortable you will have overcome the one big obstruction to naval disarmament anyhow.

* * * *

Just now the big difficulty is getting the major powers to agree on what size navy they could afford to have shown in the weekly news films without feeling embarrassed.

* * * *

Heavy destruction of battleships by knife and fork has been reported at the headquarters of the several delegations, and fleet after fleet has been wiped out under a ruthless verbal barrage in London hotel suites, but the unemployment figures among sailors are still far from alarming.

* * * *

All the major powers subscribe in a general way to the idea that big battleships make the neighbors unnecessarily nervous and that it might be better for world peace if the warships in collision during peace maneuvers were fewer and smaller.

* * * *

Before any progress can be made the five powers must agree on a maximum tonnage for new boats. The idea is to run future naval wars by the weight system just as is done in the boxing world. Before any naval battle could be started it would be necessary to announce the weights.

* * * *

Ships would have to fight in their proper classes and no warship would be allowed to fight unless it could make the weight.

* * * *

The newspapers would probably print first page pictures of the contending admirals showing height, reach, bicep, chest (inflated), ankle, waist, wrist and forearm measurements.

* * * *

No naval battle could be opened without an exchange of official lineups and the use of any warship not on the list would be denounced as a violation of the amateur spirit and disqualified.

PLEA OF A PICTURE ADDICT.

Oh take me to a picture house,
(And ease my dark despair)
Where there are no news pictures of
The royal wedding pair.

Oh take me where Prince Humbert nor
His Jose do their stuff—
I've seen them twenty times so far
And that is quite enough.

MAXWELL.

The London naval arms conference is being given to the public over the radio. Elmer Twitchell has a notion that the whole disarmament proposition is the work of some cigarette, soap or ginger ale company.

King George spoke over the radio at the opening of the conference and that guiltiest feeling was experienced by British subjects tuning out on him.

The big problem in the Sears-Roebuck offices, now that the company has adopted the thirteen-month year, is what to call the thirteenth month. It is now a deadlock, with 50 per cent of the force favoring Searspril and the other 50 per cent holding out for Roebuckuary.

George B. Hill says that Ima Dodo is surprised to find that Mauno Loa is a volcano. She thought it was a fox trot.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Citizens Advisory Council Should Be Supported in Its Opposition to Cramton Lump-Sum Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Citizens Advisory Council of the District of Columbia is to be congratulated upon its firm stand against the bill introduced by Congressman Cramton, which, if enacted, would definitely kill the 60—40 scheme of financing the National Capital and substitute for it a maximum fixed-sum appropriation by Congress of merely $9,000,000 annually.

Here is a bill which in justice to the already overburdened taxpayers of Washington and in the interests of good, efficient administration of the municipal government should never be reported out of committee. Public-spirited residents of Washington should lend their every support and assistance to the Citizens Advisory Council and other agencies in whatever steps may be taken to prevent its enactment.

Designed for the purpose of putting into definite law the sum of $9,000,000 as the limit to which the Federal Government will go each year in partial payment of the expense of running the District of Columbia, the Cramton bill is worthy of the condemnation of every member of the House District committee and citizens of Washington. The affairs of the District have never been so unsettled as at present. Even after these affairs become more settled there will always be a need for such special efforts as will be conducive to more efficient administration of the local government. Such contingencies are ignored in this the latest piece of meddling with our scheme of finance by individual watchdogs of the public funds in Congress. C. J. ROGERS.

New Sources of Revenue Suggested by Southern Reader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the magazines recently put up a knockout against prohibition. "Liquor," wrote the editor, "prohibited by law, is costing the Government a lot of money. Tobacco, unprohibited, brings in a lot of revenue."

The fact is we have not begun to tap our sources of revenue. To begin with, there is the gambler. He would make a big contribution if the Government would just lay off. Then opium, morphine and the rest of the dope drugs would also pour millions of money into the Treasury for the privilege of a free market. Thieves, forgers, pickpockets, confidence artists, counterfeiters and the other easy money getters would toss in the pelf by the pailfuls if let alone.

If revenue is the game, the most idiotic thing the Federal and State governments ever did was to stop lotteries, close the red-light districts, ban gambling, put the kibosh on the shell game and three-card monte, pass the Harrison antinarcotic act, and prohibit traffic in beverage alcohol.

Evil asks but one favor, to be let alone. Moreover, it is always willing to pay handsomely to be let alone.

JOHN P. COFFIN.

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 13.

Why Not Turn on the Lights After They Are Installed? "Lights, Please!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why, once traffic signals are installed, aren't they turned on? Traffic lights were placed at Connecticut avenue and K, L, M and Eighteenth streets more than a fortnight ago. Conditions in these intersections have long been intolerable to both motorist and pedestrian but the lights that promise to bring relief hang in darkness. Possibly the delay comes in that District officials are so busy that enough of them can not be got together to conduct the ceremonies that seem to be indispensable preliminaries to turning on traffic lights. If that is the case, I'm for turning the lights on, unofficially, without ceremony. Later, they could be ceremoniously declared officially lighted, thus sparing time-honored precedent a body blow. CIVITAS.

Colonial Museum Should Be Established at Alexandria.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Whether Alexandria is restored to the District of Columbia or not the idea of a correspondent that the Government take charge of that city's colonial relics is a good one. Physically if not politically Alexandria will be part of Washington in a few years. Midway on the beautiful boulevard connecting Washington with Mount Vernon, no better location could be chosen for a great national museum of history—the Alexandria Museum of Colonial and Revolutionary Relics. C. C. R.

What Becomes of Confiscated Rum?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will some one who knows gives us the information as to what is done with all the rum we read about in the papers that the prohibition officers confiscate?

We hear about the "evidence," but never a word about its disposition.

It would be interesting to know "how the story runneth."

MRS. CHARLTON M. CLARK.

LONG SKIRTS.

A distinguished Parisian modiste, observes the New Orleans Times-Picayune, who has just returned to France after a brief but intense view of fashion conditions in the United States, said on her departure from New York that Paris had gone further than intended in the matter of long skirts. Paris, she declared, had not intended that the long skirt should be worn on the streets. It was a mode suitable for evening and dress occasions, and yet over here in the U. S. A. it seems to have gotten out of hand, and the girls are running about in long draperies when at most four to six inches should have been added to the previous short-skirt measure. The Parisienne found that in general the short skirt had gone further on this side than overseas, as indeed styles generally are carried to extremes in our land of the free and home of the audacious.

FUNDS EXPENDITURE TOLD BY TARIFF MAN

Senate Committee Hears of Group of Alleged 1928 Contributions.

AID FROM CORPORATIONS

(Associated Press.)

How the American Tariff League spent $40,000 to advocate a protective tariff policy during the 1928 presidential campaign was described yesterday before the Senate lobby committee by W. W. Barbour, treasurer of the league.

Between verbal clashes with Chairman Caraway and other members of the committee the former president of the league testified that a "hook-up" had been arranged with Dr. Hubert Work, at that time chairman of the Republican national committee, whereby the two organizations would work together in promoting their tariff policies. He said it was decided later, however, not to work with the Republican national committee because contributions to the league came principally from corporations, and if the money was used in conjunction with the Republican organization "it might be misunderstood."

The committee also heard testimony that Edward N. Dingley, tariff expert who worked with the majority members of the Senate finance committee, and Clayton Moore, clerk of the House ways and means committee, had written articles for a magazine published by the league. Mr. Dingley received a total of $1,541 and Mr. Moore $1,866 over a period of five years, records of the league showed.

An effort was also made to show that Mr. Dingley had given to the league information as to the personnel of new members of the finance committee, which along with the House ways and means committee handles tariff legislation in Congress.

Chairman Caraway and Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, said after the hearing that no Federal statute prevented Mr. Dongley and Mr. Moore from selling articles to the magazine. They will be given an opportunity to appear before the committee if they desire.

Senator Walsh expressed the opinion that the $40,000 expenditure should have been reported to Congress. He said it was a political expenditure and asserted that the law requires reports to Congress.

During the hearing Mr. Barbour denied that the money was a political fund but said it was used for educational work through newspaper releases and in preparing tariff statistics.

$100,000,000 Federal Farm Aid Is Protested

Secretary Mellon yesterday announced the opposition of the Treasury Department to the proposal of Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, to have the Government purchase $100,000,000 of Federal farm loan bonds as a means of replenishing the fundss of the Federal Farm Loan Banks.

In a letter to Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, of the Senate banking and currency committee, Mr. Mellon declared that Government purchase of these bonds might have a bad effect upon the credit of the farm loan banks and would also interfere with the Government's financing plans, because it would necessitate borrowing additional funds.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

AFTER prolonged interviews with President Hoover and Republican leaders here, Chairman Claudius Huston, of the Republican national committee, has gone to New York in the hope of aiding in the rehabilitation of the Republican party organization in the Empire State.

Flushed with the apparent success which has attended his efforts to bring about harmony in the G. O. P. organization in New Jersey and Kentucky, though of course there are still some loose rails in the fences in both States, Mr. Houston now hopes at least to prepare the way in New York.

The limelight naturally beats on the governorship in New York, but spectacular and important as this is, the national party interest centers more on the New York delegation in the House of Representatives, to be elected this fall. Nomination of a strong candidate for governor is vitally important, of course, as the vote on governor will have a bearing on the vote for other candidates, but the primary interest of national and New York leaders in Washington is to "redeem" the State so far as its representation in Washington is concerned.

* * * *

NEW YORK now has two Democratic senators, although she voted Republican on the presidential ticket by more than a million in 1920, almost that much in 1924, and about 100,000 in 1928, although Alfred E. Smith, her local pride, was the candidate that time. But not since 1922 have the Republicans had even a bare majority of her 43 members of the House. Harding swept in a lot of Republican representatives in 1920, but the Democrats captured a majority of the New York delegation in 1922, and have retained it ever since.

As a matter of fact, had the election of 1924 been thrown in the House of Representatives by reason of La Follette getting sufficient electoral votes to prevent either Coolidge or Davis from getting a majority, New York would have voted in the House for the election of John W. Davis, although the State had gone for Coolidge by nearly a million.

Generally speaking, the party in power expects to sustain some losses in the off-year congressional elections. But most emphatically, in the opinion of the President, Chairman Huston and Chairman Wood of the congressional committee and other leaders interested in the situation, this should not be the case this year, especially as the Democrats will not have the magic name of Alfred E. Smith on the ballot.

* * * *

SO far the only logic which has occurred to Republicans aside from the obvious necessity of harmony, is of a character not calculated to appeal to the ordinary voter—certainly not the voter on the East Side of New York. This is that the present situation actually works out in depriving New York State of anything like its proportionate voice in the Government. G. O. P. leaders point out, the tremendous number of Republican voters in New York State is very inadequately represented, so far as numbers are concerned, in the conferences of the Republican party, and in proceedings on the floor of the House.

This is blamed very largely by the national Republican leaders on the poor Republican orgapization in New York, complicated by friction, and the rule or ruin policy of certain minority factions. National Committeeman Hilles has been busy trying to file down the rough spots and bring about harmony. Leaders of both parties will watch with intense interest whether Mr. Huston will be able to work out any real harmony program, both as to state and issues, which will enable the State organization to make progress in an off year.

support of the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition enforcement unit from the Treasury to the Justice Department.

In the Senate, the judiciary subcommittee considering the King measure to effect the same transfer also plans to hold hearings this week with Mellon, Mitchell, Wickersham and Pound as witnesses.

The House wet bloc prepared to attempt to keep prohibition discussion in the open. The members intended to debate the question every day in the House if possible. The bloc also expects an executive committee to be appointed this week by Representative Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, its chairman, to begin early hearings on modification and repeal bills. Then it plans to petition the judiciary committee for a hearing on a measure on which all the wets are agreed.

While these developments were in progress Representative Cramton (Republican), Michigan, a dry, defended on the floor the use of wood alcohol for industrial purposes. He said the use of any other but wood alcohol for industrial purposes would not only fail to protect the Government in prohibition enforcement, but would wreak havoc in industry.

Mr. Cramton attacked the bill recently introduced by Representative Sirovich (Democrat), New York, to prevent the denaturing of industrial alcohol with wood alcohol. At the same time Prohibition Commissioner Doran took issue with Sirovich in a statement denying the former's charge that wood alcohol was responsible for the deaths of persons who consumed it as a beverage after being converted.

DAY IN CONGRESS

Senate.

Met at 11 and recessed at 4:30 to meet at 11 today.

Approved a score of increases and decreases in the tariff bill, and agreed to begin consideration today of amendments to place duties on hides and other articles now on the free list.

Received the nominations of Franklin Mott Gunther, of New York, now Minister to Egypt, to be Minister to Ecuador; John J. Deane, to be comptroller of customs at San Francisco, and Gus Schuldt to be judge of the local Police Court.

W. W. Barbour, treasurer of the American Tariff League, told the lobby committee that his organization raised $40,000 to be spent during the last presidential campaign in advocating a protective tariff.

Oswald F. Schuette, of the Radio Protective Association, appeared before the interstate commerce committee and denounced the "radio trust."

Senator Kean (Republican), New Jersey, announced that he would recommend to the Department of Justice that Frederick G. Schneider be named United States marshal for New Jersey.

Approved the House amendments on the bill to restore Wakefield, Va., birthplace of George Washington, thus completing congressional action on the measure.

House.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:50 to noon today.

Passed and sent to the Senate the Dowell bill to increase Federal highway aid from $75,000,000 to $125,000,000 annually for 1931, 1932 and 1933.

Representative Christopherson (Republican), South Dakota, introduced bills to empower United States commissioners to hold summary trials for casual offenders against the dry laws, after Chairman Wickersham, of the National Law Enforcement Commission had told a judiciary subcommittee that the proposed legislation would not conflict with the Constitution.

Representative Sirovich (Democrat), New York, introduced a bill to prohibit the placing of poisons in industrial alcohol, and Representative Cramton (Republican), Michigan, declared that the bill would destroy prohibition enforcement.

Representative Cable (Republican), Ohio, introduced a bill to create a Federal air commerce board to regulate air carriers.

capital of Paraguay, said that a Bolivian soldier also was killed in the same conflict.

The Bolivian government thereafter issued a statement saying that the conflict was precipitated by Paraguayan forces who tattacked a Bolivian outpost.

The area in controversy is one in which hostilities resulting in a score of deaths occurred in December, 1928.

The United States is a member of a neutral commission of five nations which includes Cuba, Mexico, Colombia and Uruguay. These neutrals have been attempting for nearly a year to bring the two South American countries to a settlement of the boundary between them.

Denies Bolivians Mobilized.

Lapaz, Bolivia, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The secretary of President Siles tonight stated he was authorized to deny emphatically that Bolivian troops had been mobilized for service in the disputed Chaco Boreal region. Information transmitted by the Paraguan Charge d'Affaires to the United States State Department tonight was that airplanes had been ordered into the region and other units prepared for service.

The presidential office, informed by the Associated Press correspondent of the Paraguayan charges in Washington, stated that the government as yet had not taken any military measures whatsoever.

Your Health is Your Best Asset

IT'S easily said, but if you're ailing, miserable and despondent, if your back aches like the toothache and you suffer all kinds of pain here or there—what's to be done? Consult your doctor, or if you wish to receive free, confidential medical advice, by mail, just consult Dr. Pierce's Clinic at the Invalids Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y. Many people throughout the United States and Canada have received this advice, which put them on their feet and made them well.

Women in every walk of life praise Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Read this: "I think I am doing something wrong when I fail to tell others what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did for me. During middle life I became so thin and sick the doctors said nothing would do me any good. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did me good. I gained in weight and when any one would ask my little adopted girl what made mother well she would answer, 'Dotter Pierce's Favor Prescriped.'"—Mrs. Susan Ransom, Appomattox, Va.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Vice President And Sister Are Feted by Club

Mrs. Longworth Attends and Chats With Guests of Honor.

By JEAN ELIOT.

MRS. NICHOLAS LONGWORTH attended the Congressional Club's reception for Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, last night.

This contributed the most interesting "news angle" to the tale of a delightful fete. There was evidence of the Vice President's popularity with the august body over which he presides in the number of senators present. The drawing rooms were filled to capacity with club members, their husbands and their "house guests," many of whom lingered for the dancing to the music of the Marine Band Orchestra, which brought the evening to a festive close.

On arrival, Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann were met by the club officers, headed by the president, Mrs. Porter H. Dale, and then took their places in the receiving line. The Vice President's daughter, Mrs. Charles P. George, who is visiting her father, also received with the handsome group of hostesses and introductions were made by Capt. Stewart F. Miller, U. S. A., brave in full dress uniform.

Mrs. Gann had chosen a trained gown of black velvet which was most becoming. It was made with a yoke of ecru lace in the prevailing mode and she carried a huge fan of softly curling yellow ostrich feathers. Mrs. Dale's costume was of white and gold brocade and she wore ornaments of gold wrought in two shades of the metal in the modernistic manner.

Mrs. C. William Ramseyer, wearing a graceful gown of red crepe, with a cape drapery, Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, whose gown was of pale pink satin with shirred motifs for trimming, and Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey, gowned in purple crepe severely plain save for the shoulder straps of rhinestones, were also in the receiving line, with Mrs. Daniel A. Reed, Mrs. Louis McFadden, Mrs. Joe Crail and Mrs. Clay Stone Briggs.

Mrs. Reed wore a black velvet, with narrow bands of rhinestone embroidery; Mrs. McFadden, red velvet, with a note of blue introduced in the flowers on the shoulder, and Mrs. Briggs' costume was of flowered chiffon. Mrs. Crail had on a charming frock of taffeta, its tiered skirt shading from deep rose to pale pink and its bodice of the lighter shade. Mrs. George had also chosen a pink gown, its skirt of chiffon dipping gracefully and its bodice embroidered with rhinestones. She wore a corsage bouquet of orchids.

On arrival Mrs. Longworth paused a moment to hobnob with Senator George Moses and then made her way down the line, pausing to confer animatedly with both Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann. She had on a very striking costume of heavy brocade of a burgundy tone, splashed with flowers in silver and bright colors, which was made with full draperies over the hips, narrowing to a slim trained skirt.

Mrs. Moses, gowned in jade green satin, with a scarf of matching tulle embroidered in silver, accompanied Senator Moses. And among the husbands standing by were Senator Porter H. Dale, Representative Louis McFadden and Representative Joe Crail.

When the formalities of the reception were over, a small table was slipped in, at which the guest of honor supped with Mrs. Dale. For the rest, service was from a long buffet table, the decorations of which hinted of the coming spring. The centerpiece was of jonquils, lavender sweetpeas and pussy-willows arranged in a low basket former of pussy-willow branches. Tall green tapers burned in silver candlesticks and the shades of lavender, green and yellow were repeated in the ices, and such incidentals as small cakes and candies. The flag of the Congressional Club, a gorgeous silken banner, hung above the double stairway, with the Stars and Stripes and the club's famous frieze of State flags contributing a decorative note in the drawing room.

Mrs. James J. Davis, who rarely misses a Congressional Club party, had Mrs. Patrick J. Sullivan, wife of the new Senator from Wyoming, under her wing last night. Senator Sullivan was also present. Others glimpsed at the reception were Representative and Mrs. Harry Ransley, Mrs. Sol Bloom, with Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. Adam Wyant and Mrs. James S. Parker. Mrs. Bloom sponsored a gown of purple crepe, a color and fabric vastly popular this season; and Mrs. Wyant had on a lacquer red gown, with deep fringes on the skirt and self color embroidery outlining the decoltage.

Others in the company were Representative and Mrs. Homer Hoch, Representative and Mrs. John W. Summers, Mrs. Anderson Walter, Mrs. Howard Reeside, Mrs. Fred Dennet, with her daughter, Mrs. Patton Wise Siemp, who is visiting her; Representative and Mrs. John D. McSwain, Representative Albert Gallatin Simms, Mrs. Margaret Pou Moran, Miss Mary Wadden, Judge and Mrs. C. C. McChord, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Pitt Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. James Patten.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, who will be at home this afternoon in her apartment at the Mayflower, will have with her her niece, Mrs. Charles P. George, who is visiting the Vice President and Mr. and Mrs. Gann. In compliment to Mrs. George, wife of Maj. George, U. S. A., a group of Army women will assist the hostess.

In the group of Cabinet hostesses who will receive this afternoon are Mrs. Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War; Mrs. Brown, wife of the Postmaster General, and Mrs. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor.

Mrs. Brown will be assisted by Mrs. George Akerson, Mrs. Frederick Tilton, Mrs. Clyde Kelly and Mrs. Chester Bolton.

Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will not receive this afternoon.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh and his daughter, Mrs. Emmet Gudger, entertained at dinner last evening at the Woman's National Democratic Club. There were 24 guests.

The newly appointed United States Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Frederick Sackett, who have been at the Hotel Plaza in New York since closing their house in Washington on Saturday, will sail today on the President Harding for London. They will spend a week in London before going to Berlin.

Senator and Mrs. Copeland Return to Capital.

Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland have returned to their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after a trip to Michigan.

Mr. John Henry Bartlett, chairman of the Canadian Joint Commission, and Mrs. Bartlett will entertain at dinner this evening at the Wardman Park Hotel in honor of the three Canadian commissioners.

Mrs. Willis to Visit With Mrs. Haynes.

Mrs. Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, will arrive today to be the guest of Mrs. Roy A. Haynes, at the Ontario. Mrs. Haynes will be at home tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, Mrs. Willis receiving with her.

Mrs. D. O. Hastings, wife of Senator Hastings, due to serious illness, has canceled all social engagements and will not receive at the Wardman Park Hotel on January 30.

Mrs. Richard Henry Leigh will be at home this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock and will receive the last Wednesday in January.

Miss Guignard to Come to Capital For Stay.

Miss Susan Guignard, of Columbia, S. C., will arrive in town on Sunday to visit her uncle, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, at his apartment in the Cavendish for a week. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Gadsden Guignard, of Columbia, Miss Guignard was presented to society in Washington last winter and made many friends here who will welcome her return. Mr. MacBryde will give a small tea for young people in compliment to his niece while she is in town.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics and Mrs. David S. Ingalls will be at home from 4:30 until 6:30 today. Assisting them will be the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke. At the tea table will be Mrs. Charles F. Hughes, Mrs. William Moffett, Mrs. Trubee Davison, Mrs. Lewis Douglas and Mrs. Robert Molten.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot's illustrated talk on her recent trip to the South Seas, which will be given at the Congressional Club on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, will be followed by a tea. Mrs. Richard Yates, in charge of the group of hostesses, will be assisted by Mrs. George W. Norris, Mrs. Gerald P. Nye, Mrs. Walter Newton, Mrs. J. Lincoln Newhall, Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Mrs. Camilo Osias, Mrs. Robert L. Owen, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Mrs. John T. Pratt, Mrs. James S. Parker and Mrs. James H. Patten.

Among those who attended the charming performance of "Madame Butterfly," given by the American Opera Company last evening at Poli's Theater, were groups from the Diplomatic Corps and many representative Washingtonians. In the boxes were glimpsed Mrs. Sydney Cloman with her guest, Mrs. Henry Sturgis, and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend with the Commercial Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mme. Weidel, and the First Secretary of the Italian Embassy, Signor Leonardo Vittetl. The Minister of Portugal and Viscountess d'Alte also entertained a party in their box. Others in the audience were the Minister of Venezuela, Senor Don Carlos Grisanti, with two of his daughters; the Charge d'Affaires of Egypt, Ahmed Mamdouh Moursi; Mr. and Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Corby Fox, Mrs. William Barrett Ridgley, Miss Helen Clifford, Mr. Calhoun Collins, Miss Phoebe Fuller, Mrs. Charles Hume, Miss Elizabeth Hume, Miss Bina Day Deneen, Col. Jenning Wise, Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil and Mr. Skillman.

Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti entertained at luncheon yesterday at the National Women's Country Club for her mother, Mrs. Allen Perry Lovejoy, of Janesville, Wis., who is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Cuniberti.

Miss Cannon and Sister Are Luncheon Hostesses.

Miss Helen Cannon and her sister, Mrs. Ernest X. LeSeure, were joint hostesses at luncheon yesterday at the former's home, 2223 R street. Mrs. LeSeure has been with Miss Cannon since the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Dorsey Richardson, who is recovering from an operation. Mrs. Richardson is visiting her aunt, Miss Cannon, preparatory to returning to Paris to join Mr. Richardson. Before her marriage several years ago Mrs. Richardson was Miss Helen LeSeure.

Representative and Mrs. Richard Yates have returned to their apartment at the Hotel Roosevelt after passing some time at their home in Springfield, Ill. Representative and Mrs. Yates also visited their daughter, Mrs. John Pickering, in Detroit and passed a short time in Chicago.

Miss Junia Culbertson, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Chile, and Mrs. Culbertson, returned yesterday from New York, where she passed several days as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Migel, and their daughter, Miss Parmenia Migel. Saturday evening they attended the dinner given for Miss Culbertson at Pierre's by Mr. and Mrs. Migel, and later went to the annual debutante ball at the Plaza.

The Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Julius Klein and their family have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Lucille Claire Smith entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Country Club in honor of Mrs. Walter Distler, of New York and Baltimore, who has recently come to Washington to live, for Mrs. Clifton Denny, wife of Lieut. Denny, of Annapolis. There were 40 guests.

Mrs. Borden Harriman returned yesterday from New York, where she has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell, for ten days.

Nova Scotian Couple Here for Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kyte, of St. Peters, Nova Scotia, are guests at the Willard for several days. Mr. Kyte is a member of the International Joint Commission with headquarters at Ottawa.

Young Envoy Joins Others In Study Here

Mr. Bulent, of Turkey, Is Finishing Education in Capital.

To the young diplomats in Washington who are finishing their diplomatic education at the Foreign Service School of Georgetown, add Mr. Usaki Bulent, second secretary of the Turkish Embassy. It is only since the Turkish Ambassador, to avoid the confusion often caused by the long and involved arrangement of Turkish names, requested that a first and second name prefixed by Mr. be used that this young diplomat has ceased to be called Bulent Bey Usaki zade.

Mr. Bulent is a member of an old Turkish family which came originally from the ancient town of Usaak, in Anatolia, and his father is the most distinguished novelist of Turkey.

After spending two years in London, where he studied finance and economics, Mr. Bulent returned to Turkey, where for a time he served in the division of protocol of the ministry of foreign affairs. He came to Washington in the early fall as second secretary of embassy, and is also acting military attache pending the appointment of an officer to the post.

Mr. Bulent is spoken of as one of the best dressed young men in Turkey and his appearance in this country reflects credit on things "made in Turkey." He has received his B. A. and B. S. degrees, taken in two languages, Turkish and French, with English and German thrown in for good measure. He has also studied law, so his course at the Foreign Service School is merely a polishing off process.

Mr. John Hinkley, of Baltimore, is a guest at the Willard, having come to Washington for the meetings of the committee on legal ethics of the American Bar Association, in session at the hotel from January 22 to 25. Mr. Thomas Francis Howe, of Chicago, is also in town for the meetings.

Republican Women to Hold Tea.

The League of Republican Women will entertain at its regular monthly tea at Republican national headquarters, 910 Seventeenth street, on Friday from 4 to 6 o'clock.

The president, Mrs. Edward A. Harriman, owing to illness, can not be present to greet the members and invited guests. Mrs. Virginia White Speel, honorary president and Republican national committeewoman for the District of Columbia, will act as hostess. Those presiding at the tea table will be:

Mrs. Maurice H. Thatcher, Mrs. Henry Albers, Mrs. H. M. Fulton and Mrs. Franklin E. Sheldon, president of the Twelfth Century Club, of Kansas City.

CAN YOU ADD ACCESSORIES TO CLOTHES AND MAKE A SMART ENSEMBLE?

Paris has decreed that the ensemble shall be of paramount importance in the spring mode. It now remains for the American woman to learn the secrets of achieving a correctly ensembled appearance, of combining the various entities of the costume in smart relationship. Hats, handbags, shoes, gloves, jewelry, hosiery, are all included in the latest developments of the ensemble. In the weekly fashion page for January twenty-sixth in The Washington Post the ensemble for spring will be discussed in all its various phases

WIDE-AWAKE READERS

during the Vita-Minutes

There's an interest in things, and a responsiveness to suggestions, in the early-morning hours that you can't expect any other time.

When are minds most alert? most susceptible to impressions?

Certainly not when they're tired, or preoccupied with routine, or "let-down" after a hard day.

Certainly not when they're busy with other impressions—impressions forced upon them by the necessity of keeping up with a hurried program, moving from one obligation to the next.

Only in the morning, in fact, after a night's rest, and before the day's pressure has been put upon them, can you count on minds being most open to suggestions from outside. Only morning-minutes are Vita-Minutes.

And that's when the morning Post is being read.

Whoever wants to register his message with most force will do well to tell people in the morning.

The Post has been doing that, to the benefit of both its readers and its advertisers, for years.

Shoppers depend upon these morning messages from Post advertisers. Casual readers of the paper stray from text column to advertising column more readily. If you have something to say, this is the time to say it. Use the Vita-Minutes.

Any advertiser who uses The Post will make better use of it if he knows the complete story of Post distribution, the real facts about the number and character of Post homes, the extent and weight of Post influence. Long and careful study has been given those questions, and full information is available, in easily understood and quite definite form, to any advertiser who wants his advertising to be as wide-awake as are the readers of The Post, during the Vita-Minutes.

Buy Your Printing at Home

The short-sighted policy of merchants who send their printing work to cities other than the one in which they conduct business is beyond human conjecture. This error in business judgment is doubly emphasized when the practice is indulged in by quasi-public enterprises, universities or similar institutions. There can be no excuse in the latter case, as the money expended for work of this character is drawn from public funds or contributions from members of the community. A plea might be made that a saving in cost enters the matter, but that saving, if any, would be so slight that the plea is in itself evidence of the error.

Reverse the situation. If workers in a community found it expedient to purchase supplies, clothing and other necessities in adjacent centers, what would be the effect on the local business community? Yet this course would seem just as logical as the one complained of. Spending money earned at home is one of the main factors in the industrial prosperity of a community and all its residents.

Fifth Ave. Fashions NEW YORK

A BLACK silk crepe with beautifully molded hipline achieves new distinction through low placement of double circular tiers that flutter so prettily when wearer moves.

The bodice is draped in plaits at either side of front with trimming band at left side, finished with bow. A corresponding bow is posed at right shoulder because it's smart to be feminine.

It's amazingly easy to make! It's a one-piece affair! Just two major parts to pattern. The upper circular flounce is stitched to dress along the perforated line; lower flounce is stitched to the lower edge of dress.

Style No. 8208 is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In the medium size, it takes but 4 yards of 39-inch material.

The most interesting thing about it is that it is so entirely wearable. You can wear it for shopping and then to afternoon bridge and right through the evening, if it's informal.

Canton crepe in plum shade, navy blue wool crepe, dark dahlia purple shade flat silk crepe, printed Rayon crepe in dark green tones, rust brown faille silk crepe, independence blue crepe marocain, tomato red silk crepe and black chiffon smartly appropriate.

All patterns of Lucille Lorraine styles are 15 cents each. Mail your order to our Fashion Department, The Washington Post, 259 Fifth avenue, New York City. Be sure to write your name and address clearly and give the number and size of the pattern.

ACCLAIMED BY THE PRESS

"If you liked 'Hit the Deck' on the stage, you will like it better at Keith's, because the film has all the original version had, plus a few things that only the cameras could give it. —Nelson B. Bell, Washington Post.

"It really is a fine production; the settings are good, the voices excellent, the comedy plentiful and the recording leaves nothing to be desired. —Washington Herald

"'Hit the Deck' brings in most of the song numbers of the original version, but Vincent Youmans, the composer, has added another number that will probably precede anything in the warmed-over music of the original. It is 'Keeping Myself Just for You.' —Washington Times.

"'Hit the Deck,' that tuneful, merry, musical comedy of the United States Navy, is back in Washington again, this time on the talking screen at R-K-O Keith's, where it regales the patrons with a vivid transcription of this well-loved show. —Washington Evening Star.

"'Hit the Deck' is as lavish as a tinted extravaganza can be. It has a brilliant background. —E. B. W., Washington Daily News.

At the Cross-Roads of Health S.S.S. has meant a new day to many a person

A CLEAR SKIN comes from within

Lack of appetite, loss of strength, skin eruptions, that "tired feeling" and other human ills may be due to a lack of red-cells in your blood.

If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

"MY despair was so great I could have cried. The good cheer and merry happiness of others only mocked at my condition. I had begun to wonder why life could be so cruel. No appetite. No strength. Skin blemishes always embarrassed me. Aches and pains coursed through my body. I wanted to restore my health and live. What was I to do? . . . happily the day came and I found the right road to Health when a friend recommended S.S.S."

You may be one of the thousands with a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run-down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

Did you know that every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles? They are the tiny red particles which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to the cells of the body. Rich, red blood wards off disease. It is very dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

You owe it to yourself and friends to give S. S. S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood. For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

S.S.S. is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs, gathered at the proper season of the year. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

S.S.S. Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

SUCCESS SCORED BY GABRILOWITSCH

Artistry of Guest Conductor Apparent in Handling of Brahms Work.

PROGRAM IS ENJOYABLE

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and noted pianist-composer, was the guest conductor at yesterday's concert of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall when Brahms' Symphony, No. 4, in E Minor, was the feature of the afternoon's program.

The comprehensive musicianship of Mr. Gabrilowitsch was evident in his handling of the orchestra from Philadelphia. His success in directing it was due in part to the fact that he appeared as its conductor several times last year when Leopold Stokowski, its regular leader, was absent from this country on account of illness.

The concert began with Weber's Overture, from "Oberon," played so often on concert programs in Washington that it has become rather hackneyed to habitual concertgoers. Yet, under the persuasive sway of the visitor's baton, it was an enjoyable number and well played.

The four movements of the Brahms were treated in a manner worthy of that great composer, while a novelty was introduced into the last half of the program in Wetzler's "Symphonic Dance," from the opera "The Basque Venus."

Liszt's ever-lovely Symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," was the occasion of some of the best playing of the afternoon.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

January 22.
"AQUARIUS."

IF January 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger period is from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m.

The signs for this date show danger signals; it is not advisable to travel in the morning. There will be considerable legal work and the period favors land and real estate transactions. Elderly people are your friends, and will give you good advice.

The child born on this January 22 will be independent, spirited, original and full of motion. It will have a bright and cheerful disposition, and will become a favorite among its associates. It will be fond of music and will be fitted for an artistic career.

You take a buoyant interest in the everyday happenings of life and you can never be accused of having a one-track mind. Your eyes are too keen and your heart too kindly not to find something vital, something good, or something instructive in most everybody or everything. You have the happy faculty of making people show up to you at their very best. They are not afraid to be natural or to exploit some of their hidden charms before your noncritical eyes. There is no false note to be found in your sympathetic understanding; it is both honest and charitable.

Your simplicity is one of your greatest charms. You do not demand "thrillers" or artificial stimulation to keep your spirits alive. You can throw off all cares and give yourself up to the business of being ecstatically, tingingly happy over very simple, very small things. You are truly a child of nature, and you love its grandeur and perfection. All plant life in particular makes an appeal to you, and you almost worship trees and flowers. You are not priggishly good, but you are scrupulously honorable, fair-minded and, above all, human.

Your affections are deep-seated and a great and enduring love will come into your life.

Successful people born January 22:
1—John Delafield—Banker, of New York.
2—John Hiram Lathrop—Educator.
3—Richard Upjohn—Architect.
4—Henry the VIII.
5—Francis Bacon—Statesman and philosopher.
6—Lord Byron—Poet.

Promotion Is Won By Police Private

Made Detective Sergeant to Fill Vacancy Left by Another's Demotion.

Private Charles E. Mansfield, who has been assigned to duty with the police narcotic squad, yesterday was promoted to be a detective sergeant.

Mansfield fills a vacancy caused by transfer of Detective Sergt. Eugene E. Thompson to precinct duty as a private. Thompson, it is said, was criticized by a woman for having had a few drinks, but his critic refused flatly to appear against him before a police trial board and told police officials that the detective sergeant had not been giulty of any improper actions and if she were summoned before a trial board she would refuse to testify. Thompson has been regarded as one of the most careful and painstaking men in the Detective Bureau.

Private John C. Dalglish was transferred from plain clothes duty at Union Station to take Mansfield's place and Private Sidney H. Miles was transferred to Union Station duty in place of Dalglish.

Fewer Capital Traffic Deaths

Decline of 2 Reported for 1929 While Rest of Nation Gains.

Although the general average of traffic fatalities throughout the country in 1929 showed an increase of 13 per cent over 1928, figures compiled yesterday by M. O. Eldridge, assistant traffic director, revealed a decline of 2.41 per cent for the District of Columbia.

Motor vehicle registration in the District showed an increase of 15.8 per cent during the same period. During 1928 there were 83 traffic fatalities, with a gross automobile registration in the District of about 152,000 cars. In 1929, there were 81 fatalities with a gross registration of 176,000.

These figures were emphasized by Mr. Eldridge as typifying the unusually high element of safety in Washington traffic which is keeping the District at or close to the top year after year in the order of traffic safety in cities throughout the United States.

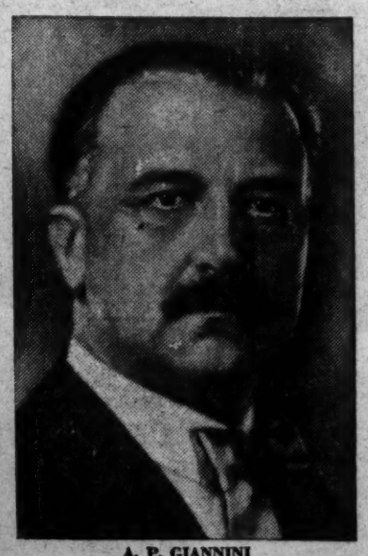
"Permanency in building construction is just as important as permanency in investing" . . .

A. P. GIANNINI



A. P. GIANNINI
President
Transamerica Corporation

IN building a home you should be guided by the same rules that govern your investments. In both cases you are spending money for future return. In both you should seek lasting values. Many famous bankers, such as Mr. Giannini, advise you to build for permanency—with Copper, Brass and Bronze.

Brass or Copper pipe, Copper flashings, gutters and downspouts and solid Brass or Bronze hardware and lighting fixtures represent permanent worth when used in any building. They cannot rust. They do not depreciate in value or service.

Genuine rust-proof equipment of Copper, Brass and Bronze costs slightly more at first, but in the long run it saves you money. It serves for a lifetime without repair or replacement.

The Building Service Department of the COPPER & BRASS RESEARCH ASSOCIATION, 25 Broadway, New York, will be glad to advise you without charge about the uses and proper application of these metals.

The hands were: Mr. Jaeger, Dealer, South: Spades, A, K, 10; Hearts, 9, 8, 6, 4; Diamonds, Q, 7, 2; Clubs, K, Q, 9. Mrs. Todhunter, West: Spades, 4, 2; Hearts, A, K, Q, J, 10, 5; Diamonds, K, 10; Clubs, A, 6, 5. Maj. Colfelt, North: Spades, J, 7, 6, 5, 3; Hearts, 7; Diamonds, 6, 5, 3; Clubs, J, 10, 4, 2. Mrs. Foster, East: Spades, Q, 9, 8; Hearts, 3, 2; Diamonds, A, J, 9, 8, 4; Clubs, 8, 7, 3.

Mr. Jaeger, South, bid one No Trump. Though his hand did not have three suits surely stopped—a usual requisite for a No Trump—his strong Spades and Clubs, the four cards in his defenseless suit, and the probable stopper in Diamonds, made the bid a sound one.

Mrs. Todhunter, West, knew she could defeat Mr. Jaeger's No Trump by at least one trick, but felt that her hand was so strong that there was a probability of a Heart game for her side. Also she considered that even if she failed to go game, her 100 honors in Hearts would offset what she might score in case she set Mr. Jaeger two tricks, undoubled. She could not double his one No Trump, and obtain a higher penalty, because the one double would be considered informatory, and would result either in a take-out by her partner or a suit-bid, probably Spades, by the opponents.

Mrs. Todhunter counted her hand worth eight tricks and hoped to find the little additional she needed for game in her partner's hand so she bid her Hearts, saying three to prevent, if possible, a Spade bid by the adversaries.

Maj. Colfelt, North, passed. His five Spades headed by Jack did not warrant a bid of three. Mrs. Foster, East, also passed. The fact that she had less than normal support for her partner's Hearts did not demand a denial; first, because Mrs. Todhunter had shown great strength by bidding when sitting over a No Trump; second, because her jump bid indicated a desire to be left alone.

Mr. Jaeger, South, having received no encouragement from his partner, passed; he held four cards of the adverse Heart suit, and hoped to be able to save game.

Against Mrs. Todhunter's three-Heart bid, Maj. Colfelt, North, led the 8 of Spades, the fourth-best of his longest and strongest suit, since his partner's No Trump gave him no indication of what lead would best suit the latter. Mrs. Foster's hand went down for Dummy, and from it Declarer played the 8 of Spades. South assumed that his partner's 5 was his four-best Spade, which indicated, by the Rule of Eleven, that there were six Spades, outside of his partner's hand, higher than the 5 led. Since all of these six better Spades were in sight, in Dummy and in Mr. Jaeger's own hand, the latter played the 10 of Spades, knowing it would win the trick. Declarer played the Deuce.

To trick two, South led the King of Spades, Declarer played the 4; North the Trey; and Dummy the 9. South then led the Ace of Spades. Declarer, knowing that North had three more Spades, ruffed with the 5 of Hearts; North played the 6 of Spades; and Dummy played the Queen of Spades.

Mrs. Todhunter, planning her campaign, could not see game. Apparently she would have to lose two Clubs in addition to the two tricks already lost. But her first step seemed to be to exhaust adverse trumps, which she proceeded to do by leading the Ace of Hearts to trick four. North played the 7; Dummy the Deuce; and South the 4. Mrs. Todhunter continued with with the King of Hearts. Maj. Colfelt, North, discarded the 7 of Spades, deeming it wiser to keep three guards for his Jack of Clubs, and not wishing to discard a worthless Diamond for fear of giving information to the enemy. Dummy played the Trey of Hearts and South the 6. Again Mrs. Todhunter led Hearts, the Queen; North discarded the Jack of Spades; Dummy the Trey of Clubs; South played the 8 of Hearts. Declarer then led the Jack of Hearts. North discarded the Trey of Diamonds; Dummy the 7 of Clubs; and South played his last Heart, the 9.

Declarer knew it would be hopeless to lead the King of Diamonds and then on the second round finesse Dummy's Jack. South surely had the Queen, for he had bid No Trump and would not have had the strength to do so without the Queen of Diamonds. There was a chance that leading the last trump would squeeze South; it could do no harm to try as the Spades were all played. So she led the 10 of Hearts to trick eight. North discarded the 5 of Diamonds, Dummy the four of Diamonds, and South, appreciating the necessity of keeping his Queen of Diamonds guarded, and observing also that North was probably keeping some protection in Clubs, discarded his Queen of Clubs.

Mrs. Todhunter could read Mr. Jaeger's holding. She appreciated her best chance for game was to try to throw the lead to South by inducing him to win with his Queen of Diamonds, and thus establish Dummy's remaining Diamonds. Attempting this, Mrs. Todhunter made the unusual lead of the 10 from the King-10 of Diamonds. North played the 6; Dummy the Jack; Mr. Jaeger the Deuce, declining to be wheedled into winning a trick which would establish an adverse suit.

Mrs. Todhunter saw she probably was checkmated; but being resourceful, she found one more move on the board. She led the 9 of Diamonds from Dummy; South played the 7; Declarer the King; North the Deuce of Clubs. Mrs. Todhunter then led the Ace of Clubs, intending on the next trick to lead a small Club, and hoping that by so doing she could put South in and force him to lead and lose his last Diamond. North played the 4 of Clubs; Dummy the 8; and Mr. Jaeger cleverly circumvented Mrs. Todhunter's plan by playing his King of Clubs, thus avoiding being put in the lead at trick 12.

Mrs. Todhunter then was obliged to lead a small Club to North's Jack and Ten, which were good for the last two tricks; consequently, in spite of her brilliant efforts, Declarer was foiled by the clever strategy of Mr. Jaeger, and failed to make game. She scored 24 below the line for making three-odd in Hearts; and 100 above the line for her honors.

As Mr. Work expressed it, the game abounded in plots and counterplots, and the Declarer's brilliant maneuvers, particularly her ingenious lead of the 10 of Diamonds from King-10 facing Ace-Jack-Nine in Dummy at trick nine, would have succeeded in winning game had the South seat been occupied by any but a master of the game. Mr. Jaeger's defense was exceptionally able from start to finish. His discard of the Club Queen at trick eight, instead of parting with a vital Diamond when Mrs. Todhunter led the squeezing thirteenth Heart, and his exit play in Clubs when he threw his King under the Ace were real thrillers. He rose to his greatest height, however, when he declined to win with the Queen of Diamonds which he had been so careful to keep guarded.

At Contract the correct bidding of this hand, according to Mr. Work, would be: South, one No Trump; West, three Hearts; North, pass; East, four Hearts, a sound jump even with his lack of normal Heart support, because West's unnecessarily high bid asked East to jump if he had one probable trick.

Wickersham Will Talk on Radio Today

Crime Chairman to Discuss Problems at 8:30 Tonight; Navy Band on WMAL; Post News Brevities on WOL.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's Commission on Observance and Enforcement of Law, will discuss the problems confronting that commission in an address through the National Broadcasting Co. network at 8:30 o'clock tonight. WRC will be the key station of the hook-up.

This is Mr. Wickersham's first appearance before a microphone since he was made head of the commission. The National League of Women Voters and the National Broadcasting Co. are joint sponsors. Mr. Wickersham, formerly Attorney General of the United States, has been directing the activities of the commission for the past six months and his address will deal with the American situation as his commission has found it.

WRC will have a musical program of regular features during the evening, with the Mobiloil concert scheduled for 8 o'clock. Lois Bennett, soprano, will sing Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song." The compositions of Mendelssohn and Jan Sibelius are used exclusively in this program, other selections being "Ruy Blas" overture, the scherzo from "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Spring Song," by the former, and "Valse Triste" and "Finlandia" by the latter.

Franz von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture shares honors with Samuel Gardner's tone picture of the Southern canebrakes in which he imitates the peculiar melodies of the Negro spirtuals in the Halsey Stuart program which will be broadcast at 9 o'clock by WRC, from the Chicago studios of the National Broadcasting Co. George Dasch will direct the Chicago Little Symphony Orchestra in the following numbers also: "Slavonic Dance," Dvorak; "Till Through the Night," string orchestra, selections from "The Merry Widow," Lehar, and the Triumphal March from "Aida," Verdi.

Following the Palmolive Hour, Floyd Gibbons will continue to relate some of his experiences as a war correspondent with the A. E. F. in France.

William Hard will be heard at 1 o'clock this afternoon from the studios of the British Broadcasting Corporation in London, England, by means of a short-wave relay, discussing "The London Naval Conference."

The United States Navy Band, directed by Lieut. Charles Benter, will be broadcast from the Navy Yard at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon.

A program of request numbers will be featured by the organist during the Fast Freight program from WCCO, Minneapolis, heard here through WMAL at 8 o'clock. Among the selections are "March of the Toys" from "Babes in Toyland;" his own arrangement of "Carolina Moon;" Schubert's "Serenade," and the march from "The Vagabond King," assisted in the latter by the Wheaties Quartet. The quartet will offer as their specialty one of the yodels for which they are so well known, "I Gotta Great Big Date" and Carrie Jacobs Bond's "A Perfect Day."

The United States Navy Band will be presented over the Columbia Broadcasting System, through WMAL, at 9 o'clock in a half-hour concert.

Selections from the operas of Glinka, Verdi, Thomas, Meyerbeer, Donizetti and Mascagni will be heard during the grand opera concert to be presented at 10:30 o'clock over WMAL.

Radio Joe and His Budget Boys will broadcast their regular Wednesday evening songs at 7:30 o'clock. This program is the second in a series, which the boys are dedicating to the Community Chest.

The Washington Post will present the "Breakfast Brevities" news feature from WOL at 8:15 o'clock this morning.

The Edith Reed Entertainers will be featured for a half hour at 6:15 o'clock, followed by an American Red Cross speaker. A half hour with famous composers will be heard at 7:30 o'clock.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

THE NORMAL DEVELOPMENT OF AN INFANT.

(Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor).

The soft spot at the back of the head closes at about six weeks, and the one on the top when the baby is from 1½ to 2 years old.

Nearly all babies have blue eyes at birth, but the permanent color appears in the first few weeks.

The baby probably begins to recognize objects at about six to eight weeks, and can focus his eyes on an object when about three months old. He rarely sheds tears before this time.

Hearing, in the sense of knowing where a sound comes from, does not develop until the baby is about 2 months old.

The baby learns to hold up his head when the body is supported during the fourth month.

He laughs aloud from the third to the fifth month.

He reaches for toys and holds them from the fifth to the seventh month.

At 7 or 8 months of age he is usually able to sit erect, and usually creeps.

During the ninth and tenth months he makes first attempts to bear weight on the feet and usually stands with assistance at 11 or 12 months.

Begins to walk in 12 and 13 months and walks alone at the 15th or 16th month.

At 1 year of age usually a few words can be spoken, and at the end of the second year he makes short sentences.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, Jan. 21.

STRAIGHT coats, yes. There will always be straight coats, and they are particularly favored for their flattering line. But I love the flared coats.

Straight coats may flatter the figure, but I'll tell you this—flared coats flatter the feet. Slender legs and pretty feet are more appealing and more delicately pretty appearing under the wider hem of a flared garment, and unttractive legs and feet are less obviously unattractive under the wider hem.

Believe it or not, my darlings. But just observe, if you have a chance, not only in coats, of course, but in all skirts, coats or dresses, or whatever.

• • • •

Sketched another one of those delightful Jenny suit dresse for you today, this one of black marocain skirt and jacket over its smart white satin blouse with, oh-h-h-h, what do you think? A yellow flower appliqued on the shoulder.

Suit or dress—name it and you can have it—but keep an eye out for the postman and the bill.

Fashion French.

Hermine (air-meen)—ermine.
Hiver (eevair)—winter.
Houppe a poudrer (hoop ah poodray)—powder puff.
Impermable (am-pair-mayahbl)—waterproof.
Imprime (am-pree-may)—printed.

• • • •

Is your nightgown as modish as your dress? Well, it should be—it's a matter of eye-point, if you see what I mean. Your eye gets used to seeing a certain silhouette, such as that of the natural waistline in daytime clothes and a straight line nightgown of last season just seems old-fashioned.

Better send your stamped-self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, which tells you exactly how to make a lovely princess nightgown and a matching combination with princess lines, both of them out of two and three-quarters yards of material.

• • • •

So many fancy underskirts are in vogue at present. One sees them as an important part of the dress with which they are worn, indispensable to the dress and the dress to them.

And of the finest materials some of them are—printed chiffon was one, matched by a scarf, which tied like a handkerchief at the throat.

• • • •

And all-over lace underskirts are surely the last word in elegance when worn under velvet frocks, which open here and there to show the underskirt. Usually this lace appears at the neck or wrists as well.

Here's the reminder again: the weekly Dare fashion letter is in The Sunday Washington Post each week.

WORK'S BRIDGE

BRIDGERS.

Important Notice!

Beginning Monday, January 27, Mr. Milton C. Work, the international authority, will conduct in this department for two weeks a great Home Bridge Contest. You will find it of intense interest and wonderfully instructive. It will enable you to test and increase your knowledge of Auction and Contract and contest informally with members of your household and friends. Remember the date—January 27. Challenge your friends.

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.

IN the above named hand South would be the Declarer of two or three Hearts. At Contract he would be the Declarer with a contract of four Hearts; he would start by bidding three or four Hearts; if the former, North would bid four.

In the play, West led the Ace of Diamonds, East of course playing his singleton Queen. West continued with the Jack of Diamonds; North (dummy) played the King, and East ruffed. East led a Club up to dummy's weakness, and West's Ace won. West then led a high Diamond to trick 4; South ruffed and exhausted the trumps. He then tried the Spade finesse, and when it lost, Declarer's game went with it as the adversaries took four tricks.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The Declarer should not have played his King of Diamonds on trick 2, but should have kept it to secure a Spade discard from South. He could expect, in view of East's Queen on the first trick, that the King would be ruffed and that, as he thereby would lose the first two tricks and must lose the Ace of Clubs, his game would depend upon a successful finesse in Spades. He could save the risk of that finesse by holding up dummy's King of Diamonds at trick 2, and again at trick 3 if West led a third round of Diamonds—as he probably would. Played in that way, East would not have to ruff the second Diamond.

If East ruffed his partner's winning Jack of Diamonds so as to be able to lead Spades through South (a play apt to produce winning results), South could win with the Ace and after exhausting the adverse trumps, discard his Queen of Spades and dummy's King of Diamonds.

JELLEFF'S ◆ F STREET

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

NED HOLMES, last of a vanishing race, the Mohicans of press agency, draws an audience anywhere he goes now with tales of old days in the theater. He comes, this time, ahead of the Theater Guild's production of "Strange Interlude," the Eugene O'Neil play, destined for a week's showing in the National Theater the first part of February. This time a new leading lady has the central role of Nina Leeds. Elizabeth Risdon, last seen here as the central character in "Ned McCobb's Daughter," will dominate this unusual drama—one that starts at 5:30 in the afternoon, adjourns during the dinner hour, and starts up again at regular show time.

• • • •

ON the heels of Mr. Holmes' visit, Leo Freedman, the demon press agent for Flo Ziegfeld, flashes word that "Show Boat" will come into the National in the not far distant future. "Show Boat" got its start here in the National and has broken house records everywhere it played. In some cities they've had to call out the riot squad to keep patrons under control. At least, this is what the press agent says.

• • • •

WHILE the American Opera Company is holding forth at Poli's, the management of this old theater prepares for the week ahead. Mr. T. D. Bonneville is a busy man taking care of requests for seats to see "Robin Hood," the Reginald de Koven operetta booked here for next week. Since it became known that De Koven wrote most of his music in this city, at his old studio on Thomas Circle, the historians have been busy. They have discovered, among other things, that "O Promise Me," the song hit, was not in the original score; that it was placed in the opera a year after the first production, and that the old Belasco Theater was the scene of this successful insertion.

• • • •

OTIS SKINNER will appear at the National Theater next week, for the first time in two seasons—he was last here in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" with Mrs. Fiske. His new vehicle is a comedy from the Spanish, entitled "Papa Juan," in which he has been appearing continuously since last spring except for the period between seasons—summer time—when attractions keep off of the road. Beginning with this play in Chicago, he has already presented it in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and is now attracting interested audiences this week in Baltimore. Described as a comedy of Andalusian life, the piece is said to provide the dean of American actors with another fine characterization to add to his numerous gallery of distinguished stage portraits. His portraits of Papa Juan, an elderly gentlemen, who is about to celebrate his birthday, has been described as possessing a mellow beauty, humorous charm and tenderness, and remaining a delightful memory to all who have seen it.

WHO'ZIT?

("WHOZIT?" is a test of your knowledge of history and current events. The statements below describe a character whom you should be able to identify. Match your knowledge and memory against those of your friends.)

1. He was an Englishman.
2. He lived during the eighteenth century.
3. He was a noted artist, his landscape paintings in particular being highly regarded.
4. He also painted numerous portraits.
5. Among the most famous of his paintings are: "The Woodman in the Storm," "The Cottage Door" and "The Shepard Boy."

Answer to yesterday: Fabius Maximus Verrucosus.

You know Kotex is safe

because hospitals prefer it

Trust the guidance of great American hospitals . . . 85% of them prefer Kotex

KOTEX is dainty, Kotex is comfortable . . . but the fact that should mean most to you and every woman is this:

Kotex is hygienically safe. It protects health at a time when vitality is low. And it is backed by overwhelming medical preference.

Think of it! Over 85% of America's leading hospitals use Kotex absorbent. And not for one or two purposes alone . . . but for important surgical purposes as well.

Medical science has produced no finer absorbent. And now every woman in America can have this same splendid absorbent for her own personal, sanitary use! She can give herself the same hygienic care that famous hospitals give their patients.

Kotex is so highly absorbent that moisture never gathers on the surface. The surface stays delicate, soft, fluffy, clean.

Kotex is light and comfortable. It is made in air-cooled layers, which cannot pack.

Why Kotex is different

Remember that Kotex is not made of cotton, but of Cellucotton absorbent wadding. Cellucotton is a cellulose product which has 5 times the absorbency of the finest cotton.

Kotex has many other advantages which appeal to fastidious women. Some are noted at the right. Others can be learned only by actual use. This much is certain: after using Kotex, other ways seem impossibly crude, unclean, and unhygienic. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Fastidious . . . the sign of true daintiness.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

STOCK PRICES CLIMB AS TURNOVER GAINS

Hoover's Statement That Employment Situation Is Better Pleases.

COMMODITIES ARE FIRM

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The stock market gave the best account of itself today that it has given in nearly two weeks, but nevertheless failed to break out of narrow trading area in which it has zigzagged with tiresome persistence since the first of the year. Trading picked up a little, total sales aggregating 2,233,230 shares, a gain of about 540,000 over yesterday. The market crept forward along a broad front, scores of shares closing a point or two higher.

Operators for the fall prodded the list further during the first hour of trading, but offerings soon dried up, and a sizable covering movement set in. Pools resumed operations in a few shares, notably among the amusement and food issues.

On the whole, however, the day's operators represented little more than a game of double solitaire between the bull and the bear camps. The price index of 90 stocks was elevated approximately 1½ points. It is now about on a level with that reached in the first week of the rebound after the market touched bottom on November 13.

Business News Favorable.

The day's business news was largely favorable, if not particularly conclusive. President Hoover's statement indicating a definite turn for the better in employment was pleasing, although such a turn normally occurs between now and the middle of February. Steel operations were unofficially reported to have gained further, U. S. Steel mills working at about 72 per cent of capacity. The weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve member banks showed a reduction of $52,000,000 in loans on securities in the latest week, in which brokers loans rose $13,000,000, indicating gradual liquidation of this large volume of tied up credit. Credit conditions remained satisfactory, call loans still renewing at 4½ per cent and dropping to 4. The probability of lower bank rates on Thursday was again widely discussed.

Pools have of late made several attempts to get public followings in the food and amusement shares on the theory that these industries are depression-proof, although the Fox situation has interfered with plans in the latter group. National Biscuit was a strong spot, the old shares making an extreme gain of about 7 points. Warner Bros. A, Paramount and Radio Keith rose a point or two in large-scale buying. Motor accessories turned upward on the reports of increasing production. The tobacco merchandising shares rallied further, with additional indications of improvement in the retail price situation.

General Electric Advances.

Among miscellaneous shares gaining 2 to 5 points were Allied Chemical, American Can, Atchison, Auburn Auto, J. I. Case, Chesapeake Corporation, General Electric, Bendix Aviation, Loews, Inc., Stewart Warner, Purity Baking, Raybestos-Manhattan, and Westinghouse Manufacturing. U. S. Steel and General Motors each closed up about a point. Among the few weak spots, Fashion Park preferred dropped 10 points, to a new low, and Nelsner Bros. and Celotex sagged a couple of points, to new lows for this market. American Tobacco B lost about 2 points in realizing.

The commodity markets were firmer. Wheat futures gained about a cent a bushel on a forecast that world visible supply and larger foreign takings. Corn sold up slightly in sympathy with a better market in Buenos Aires. Cotton ruled slightly higher, reflecting lightening of pressure from foreign markets. Coffee futures were firmer on reports of a shipment of gold from Brazil, presumably to support Brazilian exchange.

Attention was centered on the Spanish peseta in the foreign exchange markets. The peseta dropped to 12.84 cents, then rallied to 13.06 on announcement of the resignation of Finance Minister Sotelo, whose stabilization program has met with unfavorable results. Other foreign currencies held fairly steady. The Japanese yen was firmer on announcement of a shipment of $7,000,000 in gold to New York.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Indications that the Argentine crop movement is beginning to wane, whereas United States wheat export business today enlarged, put considerable buoyancy into wheat values here. It was estimated 650,000 bushels of domestic hard winter wheat were bought today for export via the Gulf of Mexico. Some European buying of Canadian wheat was noted also, but of less amount than from the United States.

Closing quotations on wheat in Chicago were firm, 1¼ to 1¼ cents a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼ to ¼ of a cent to ¾ of a cent up. Oats unchanged to a shade higher, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5 cents.

Adding force to price upturns for wheat today in Chicago were signs of the best demand from domestic millers than has been witnessed in some time. In this connection, notice was taken that bids are to be opened here shortly for 21,000 barrels of flour for Army use. British millers were also reported today as buying March delivery of wheat at Liverpool because of improved flour trade. Advances in wheat prices today at Liverpool counted likewise at times as a further stimulus to speculative buyers here, although the Liverpool gains failed to hold well.

On the other hand, houses with foreign relationships were said to have been on the selling side today of wheat future deliveries here. Meanwhile, dispatches were current that quotations abroad would depend largely on European demand but that transatlantic purchases at present for mainland countries were comparatively meager. However, total export business in North American wheat today aggregated 900,000 bushels and the United States' share included wheat destined to go to Antwerp, as well as some to Greece. Domestic receipts at all points today were much smaller than a year ago, and at many primary markets the shipments were considerably greater than the receipts.

Corn and oats showed themselves inclined to reflect wheat strength. Country offerings of corn lacked volume, despite low temperatures prevailing throughout the corn belt.

Provisions turned easier, responsive to downturns in the value of hogs.

FOREIGN BONDS RISE IN QUIET TURNOVER

Hague Settlement Proves an Aid in Advance of European Group.

DOMESTIC ISSUES DULL

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—With the exception of foreign obligations and the convertibles, listed bonds drifted lower today. The prospect of rather heavy new offerings in the utility field kept buying inquiry at a low ebb and, although the pace of the market quickened after early dullness, the day's business was unimpressive.

Developments abroad, especially the settlement at The Hague, strengthened the already firm position of European government loans, and there was good demand for bonds of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, Denmark and Norway. In addition, the Australian listings reflected better support. The 7 per cent obligation of the German Republic was very dull.

Reports of new offerings centered on the International Telephone Co., which was said to be planning a $75,000,000 issue of 4½ per cent debentures priced at around 92. Officials of the utility asserted that although the company was contemplating new financing, neither its nature nor its terms had been decided upon. However, it was believed that a flotation of about the size mentioned would soon be undertaken by a J. P. Morgan syndicate.

Mellon's Statement Features.

One of the day's developments was a statement by Secretary Mellon, made in a report to the Senate banking committee, that the situation in bonds was "now clearing and improving as anticipated," and that recent developments indicated the possibility of marketing a Federal Land Bank bond issue "in the not distant future at a rate which will be satisfactory in the light of general market conditions and which will not impose an undue burden upon the banks."

Most of the domestic issues were extremely dull. The banking groups which underwrote last week's heavy volume of new securities reported further progress in distributing their bonds, and there was apparently little interest left for listed obligations. The rails, including those of the best grade, softened, with resultant declines in Atchison general 4s, Missouri, Kansas, Texas first 4s and prior lien 5s, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Virginian 5s, Southern Pacific 4s and Western Maryland 4s.

Utilities likewise eased, although the new American Telephone 5s held firm on the largest turnover in the entire list. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, International Telephone 4½s, Montana Power 5s, Laclede Gas 5½s and Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s yielded minor fractions.

Changes Few in Industrials.

There were few important changes in the industrials. General Steel Castings 5½s gained ½ and American Smelting 5s lost the same amount. Schulco 6½s, series A and B, rose 5 and 6 points, respectively, on small dealings. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s dropped a point, to 100¾, compared with their 1929 low of 100, while Standard Oil of New York 4½s lost 1½.

Improvement in the stock list brought fair gains to the convertibles. American Telephone 4½s retained 1¼ points of a 2-point rise. Atchison 4½s and International Telephone 4½s each rallied nearly a point, while Public Service of New Jersey 4½s, on which the conversion privilege soon expires, advanced 3 points.

United States Governments were heavy under the firmness of time money. The Treasury 4s fell 17-32s of a point, but dealings in all listings were light.

Chevy Chase Savings Bank.

All officers of the Chevy Chase Savings Bank were reelected at the meeting of the organization last night and are: Frederic Ernst Farrington, president; Thomas W. Perry, first vice president; Joseph A. Burkart, second vice president; J. Ezra Troth, third vice president and cashier; R. A. Weaver, assistant cashier; Paul Sleman, counsel; Clyde D. Garrett, secretary, and Samuel Peacock, auditor.

Regarding the stock of the Continental Trust Co., which was merged recently with the Commercial National Bank, President Wade H. Cooper, of the merged banks, stated yesterday: "The capital stock of the Continental Trust Co., amounting to $1,000,000 and the surplus of $250,000, will remain intact, to be used by the stockholders as they deem necessary and proper. The Commercial National Bank simply bought the banking business of the Continental Trust Co., but not its capital stock. The charter of the Continental Trust Co. is a valuable one, and there is no intention of surrendering it, but the trust company has retired finally and definitely from the banking field." From the above statement it would appear that the trust company can carry on the business of a finance concern, deal in real estate notes or engage in other similar business. In the present merger there was no exchange of stock, Mr. Cooper and his friends buying a substantial interest in the stock of the Commercial National.

Trust Shares Offered.

Waggaman, Brawner & Co., Inc., are making a local offering of diversified trust shares, series C, these shares representing participating ownership in 50 seasoned and dividend paying common stocks listed on the New York Exchange. In the list are railroad, public utilities, industrials, oils and mining stocks, there being 10 each of the rails and public utilities, 21 industrials and 9 oils and mines.

The stocks on which the trustee shares are based are among the leaders on the New York Exchange and are highly rated by Moody's. The circular states that the shares are offered "for conservative income as well as long-term appreciation." They are being sold here at the present market price.

Charles G. Edwards, a past president of the Real Estate Board of New York and past president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has been elected president of the New York Real Estate Securities Exchange, to which Harry A. Seay, of this city, has been elected.

Life Underwriters Meet.

The District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton Hotel for those of its members who have produced a quarter of a million or more of new insurance during 1929. The members were addressed by President Harold D. Krafft, of the association, and there was a discussion of a probable educational system.

The members who attended were the following: Herbert L. Barlow, A. L. Baldwin, J. Hicks Baldwin, J. S. Baldwin, R. L. Baldwin, David S. Bethune, H. R. Bryarly, A. D. Carpenter, L. C. Crawford, John F. Cremen, G. B. Farquhar, H. C. Fisher, J. F. Fooshe, jr., R. P. Freeman, L. V. Freudberg, D. Fulton Harris, Dan J. Harrison, Wallace Hatch, K. S. Hoffman, H. J. Jackson, Harold D. NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The cotton market was quiet today, with the undertone generally steady on reports of steadiness in Liverpool and in the Southern spot situation. Prices held within a range of 6 or 8 points, and March, after easing off to 17.26 to 17.32, recovered, closing at 17.34, compared with 17.32 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed quiet but steady, net unchanged to 3 points higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 1 point, most positions being higher on the relatively steady showing of the English market. There was some realizing and perhaps a little Southern selling around the initial prices, and the market eased off slightly during the first few minutes, selling back to or a shade below yesterday's closing quotations.

May eased off to 17.31 and October to 17.64, but the comparatively small offerings were absorbed by trade buying or covering at these figures. Trading later showed no particular feature, but there was enough buying to hold prices steady, and closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the best.

The outlook for colder weather in the South came in for some comment, and there may have been a little selling of new crop months on expectations that the character of the weather this winter would reduce the number of boll weevil in hibernation. On the other hand, conditions are believed to have been unfavorable for saving late cotton in the fields, and trade traders are looking for comparatively light figures on ginnings prior to January 16, while the late season ginnings are expected to run very low in grade.

Houses with foreign connections were among the sellers of late months here, but trade interests were credited with buying near positions. Liverpool cables said there had been continental buying, covering and trade calling supplied by realizing in the Liverpool market, and reported scattered cloth sales for India, with more demand from Africa, but said yarns were slow. Such news features as were in evidence, however, evidently failed to stimulate speculative interest, and traders are said to be waiting either for developments in the spot situation or the shaping up of coming acreage or crop prospects.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Jan. 21.—An increase of between 3½ and 4 per cent occurred in steel ingot production last week, it was reported today, with the industry as a whole now operating at more than 60 per cent of rated capacity, as contrasted with between 65½ and 66 per cent last week and 59 to 60 per cent two years ago. At this time last year the average was around 83½ per cent. Officials of several steel companies were quoted as being more cheerful with regard to the outlook, pointing out that the improvement has been greater than anticipated.

The net income of the Bethlehem Steel Co. for the last quarter of 1929 is estimated by Dow, Jones & Co. at between $8,250,000 and $9,000,000, equal to between $2 and $2.25 a share on the common stock. On this basis the corporation would show net profits for the year of between $40,450,000 and $41,200,000, or from $10.50 to $10.75 per common share.

Expenditures totaling $5,500,000 are planned by subsidiaries of the National Steel Co., the Donner-Hanner Coke Corporation, will erect another battery of 51 coke ovens at its South Buffalo, N. Y., plant at a cost of $2,000,000, and the Great Lakes Steel Corporation has ordered a continuous merchant bar mill, costing $3,500,000, with a productive capacity of 20,000 tons monthly.

Paul M. Warburg, international financier, speaking on the signing of the Young plan at The Hague at the annual meeting of the International Acceptance Bank, of which he is the chairman, said that the plan is another milestone on the road to final economic peace and stabilization, and that the hope "seems fully warranted that for the next years to come bankers may look forward to conditions of political and economic stability in which credits may be extended in reasonable safety and business, once more, may take its normal course."

Succession of Elisha Walker to the chairmanship of the board of Trans-America Corporation in place of A. P. Giannini, who is retiring from that office on February 8, brings direction of the billion dollar financial holding company's affairs to New York from California. Mr. Walker, it was said today, plans to continue the corporation's present policy of building and expanding in banking and affiliated lines, especially in the security field. The new chairman is retiring as president of the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation.

CRITICAL PERIODS OF PROSPERITY

In 1850

SPECULATION VS. PRODUCTION

THE speculative crisis of 1837 brought dark business depression to the nation; then American genius joined forces with American resources.

The telegraph, the steam hammer, the sewing machine, the rotary printing press and hundreds of other devices were invented and swiftly applied to developing the country's huge potential wealth. . . Production, built solidly on the growing population and constantly rising land values, increased steadily . . . the wealth of the nation, in thirteen years, rose 126 per cent.

Once more investors have come to the realization of sound productive values as compared to speculation. The funds of the country are flowing back into normal channels and into those safe and non-fluctuating securities, based on the inherent wealth of land resources and values.

Among such securities, the 6 per cent First Mortgage Notes sold through Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company have always been ranked as leaders. Their reputation has been achieved through an unfailing record for almost sixty-one years of not a dollar's loss to investors.

As in the past, so today the real opportunity lies not in dangerous, uncertain stock market speculation, but in wise investment in the real underlying values behind this country's great wealth. In Washington, the situation of real property development is particularly attractive—merely to keep pace with the growing population, construction of new apartment buildings is needed. The means to take advantage of this opportunity is through investment in First Mortgage Notes.

Coupon and registered bonds interchangeable.

FIDELITY UNION TRUST COMPANY, NEWARK, NEW JERSEY, TRUSTEE

Issuance subject to authorization by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners of the State of New Jersey

Mr. Thomas N. McCarter, President of the Company, has summarized as follows his letter to us describing these Bonds:

BUSINESS AND TERRITORY.

Public Service Electric and Gas Company, one of the largest companies of its kind in the world, owns or controls electric and gas systems serving a rapidly growing population in New Jersey estimated at over 3,000,000, or over 80% of the population of the State. The territory served extends from the Hudson River opposite New York City southwest across the State to the Delaware River opposite Philadelphia and includes Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Trenton, Camden, Elizabeth, Bayonne, Hoboken, Passaic, the Oranges, Perth Amboy, Union City and New Brunswick.

SECURITY.

The First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds, of which $87,300,000 will be outstanding upon completion of this financing, are secured by mortgage on all of the Company's mortgageable property and by pledge of leasehold estates. The value of the mortgaged and pledged property, as fixed in 1924 by independent engineers plus net additions to date at cost, is over twice the aggregate of the Company's funded debt plus the securities of leased companies to be held by the public upon completion of this financing. The property on which these Bonds are secured by first mortgage includes over two-thirds of the electric generating capacity of the system—the Kearny power plant of 238,332 kv.-a. installed capacity and the Essex power plant of 214,444 kv.-a. installed capacity—and is valued, as above, at substantially more than the principal amount of the First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds to be outstanding.

EQUITY.

The Company's funded debt and the securities of leased companies held by the public, totaling $169,124,848 as of January 1, 1930, after giving effect to this financing, are followed by its outstanding $71,739,300 Preferred Stock and 15,000,000 shares of Common Stock, the latter representing a cash investment of $150,000,000. All of the Company's common stock, except directors' shares, is owned by Public Service Corporation of New Jersey.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE.

The proceeds of these $20,000,000 Bonds will reimburse the Company in part for expenditures made and to be made for additions and improvements to the properties.

The foregoing is subject to the more complete statements contained in the circular which may be obtained upon application.

Application will be made to list this additional Series on the New York Stock Exchange.

These bonds are offered subject to sale and when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner and Reed and Messrs. Dickson, Beitler and McCouch, of the form and validity of the documents and proceedings. These securities are not offered for sale except through dealers properly qualified under State Law. It is expected that temporary bonds of the Company will be ready for delivery on or about February 11, 1930.

WESTERN TIES FOR LEAD BY ROUTING CENTRAL FIVE

League Lacks Regulars at Shortstop

Only Macks Among Chief Contenders Well Fortified.

This is the seventeenth of a series of stories dealing with 1930 major league prospects.

By BRIAN BELL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The task of making the 1930 pennant race in the American League close and exciting may become the responsibility of a group of young men identified now only by the statement that they will play shortstop for four of the clubs.

This important position is wide open on half the clubs in the league and how well the contenders fill it may be the answer to the problem of unseating the champion Athletics from the baseball throne.

In the hot stove and radiator leagues during the winter, baseball's close observers have nominated the Yankees, Tigers and Indians to make long summer afternoons unpleasant for Connie Mack and his tribe. The St. Louis Browns and Washington Nats are mentioned, too, but not so often nor so emphatically as the others. The consensus has willed that the Six, White and Red, must wait awhile.

Nats and Browns Well Fortified.

St. Louis and Washington have capable shortstops in Ralph Kress and Joe Cronin but the chances are that Managers Shawkey, Harris and Peckinpaugh have no idea who will play the position for the other three challengers. If the infield hole is plugged on all three, the Athletics may be fully extended from first to last to repeat their sensational victory of 1929.

The Yankees have three or four likely candidates with Mark Koenig sure of a trial. Durocher and Lary will be in the race. A pair of Bills, Rogell, formerly of the Red Sox, and Akers, who finished the season in Detroit last year, probably will be Bucky Harris' hope. Gardner, Lind and others will fight it out for Cleveland.

John (Joe) Boley seems good for another year with the Athletics. If not, Eric McNair may step in to fill the job. Chicago has a good shortstop in Chalmer Cissell, but if Irvine Jeffries is as good as his friends say he may replace Cissell, giving the former soldier a chance to move over to second base.

Athletics Hard To Displace.

The Athletics are in and will be hard to get out. Riding high on the crest of their devastating campaign in which they were swept to a league and world championship, the White Elephants should have enough momentum to carry them far on the road to another success.

The A's have the pitchers, while the returns are not all in for some of the other clubs. After the shortstop puzzle is worked out, the Yankees must turn to the mound and the same tangle must be unraveled by the Tigers. Detroit had the hitters last year and will have them again, but a way must be found to stop the opposition bats. Cleveland had great pitching in 1929 and will need no better to be dangerous this season.

Connie Mack is in position to take the field with his world champions intact. No other clubs in the league can say the same.

LEONARD CUE VICTOR.

Ray Leonard last night broke a tie for first place with E. C. Johnson in the 3-cushion turnament being staged at Elmer's parlors by copping top honor with a 35 to 30 victory. Fairbanks beat McPeak to go into a tie for third with Reel and Lambert, while Malseed may make it a four-cornered fight by winning his next and last tourney match.

TWO BERTHS BECKON TO PALM

G. U. Grid Coach Is Considered at Penn State, Auburn.

MIKE PALM, former Penn State College star and for five years back field coach at Georgetown University, is under consideration for appointment to the head football coaching position at his alma mater, it was learned yesterday. At the same time, it was reported that Palm also has been interviewed by authorities of Alabama Poly concerning the football directorship there.

At the present time, Palm is engaged in business here. His position at Georgetown terminated with the close of the 1929 football season, following which he said he was considering giving up football coaching.

The vacancy in the head coaching berth at Penn State was created last Monday when the veteran Hugo Bezdek resigned to become dean of a new physical education school of the same institution. The position at Alabama Poly formerly was occupied by George M. Bohler.

Lieb Also Mentioned for Auburn Berth.

The name of Tom Lieb, assistant to Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, has been linked with the Alabama berth, as well as that of Palm.

Palm was an outstanding quarter back at Penn State during the seasons of 1922 and 1923. He was noted for speed, smart generalship, great endurance and effective punting.

Shires in Conference With Chisox Manager

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The first overtures between Charles Arthur Shires and the White Sox over the lifting of the fighting first baseman's suspension and a 1930 contract were started today.

Shires conferred at length with the new White Sox manager, Donnie Bush, but nothing was announced.

Florida Golf Match To Post Cartoonist

Special to The Washington Post.

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 21.—H. W. Webster, cartoonist for The Post, was an easy winner today in his first round match in the third annual championship tournament of the Artists and Writers Golf Association on the country club course here. Webster defeated Maurice Collette, of New York, by 3 up and 1 to play, in the second division. He had a handicap of 30 strokes as against the 16-stroke allowance of his rival.

Grantland Rice, president of the association and the defending champion, won his first round match by 4 and 3 from Frank Crowninshield, of New York. Other winners included such notables as Fontaine Fox, Arthur Somers Roche and William DeBeck.

Nationals Sign Phelps, Bowie Sandlot Star

Gordon Phelps, who lives at Odenton, Md., and starred behind the bat for the Bowie Motor Co. sandlotters last season, yesterday was signed for a tryout with the Nationals.

Phelps, a strapping lad of 20, 6 feet tall and weighing around 200 pounds, made quite a reputation for himself on sandlot diamonds. He is reputed as being a good catcher, a fine thrower and a hard hitter—when he hits the ball. He will accompany the first squad of players to the Biloxi training camp next month and probably then will be placed somewhere on option provided he gives indications of being a comer.

Alexandria High Five Bows to Episcopal

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 21.—Battling the entire 40 minutes of the game, the Episcopal High School Basket Ball Team tonight scored a 26-21 victory over the Alexandria High School in the local Armory Hall. The game marked the renewing of athletic relations between the schools after a five-year intermission. One of the largest crowds that has ever witnessed a basket ball game on the Armory floor was on hand.

The lead see-sawed throughout the game with Alexandria holding a 13-to-11 advantage at half time and the two teams tied at the end of the third quarter at 19 all. With the score at 21 all and two minutes left to play, Hancock and Train made two beautiful shots from the side court, to place the game on ice for Episcopal. Pete and Jeff Williams played brilliant ball for the losers.

Public May Join C. U. Athletic Association

The Catholic University Athletic Association has extended invitations to the public to become associate members of the association upon payment of a $5 fee. Membership will entitle the holder to admission to 24 various athletic events in which Catholic University teams will compete between now and the close of the present academic term in June.

The list of events combines four boxing meets, the first of which will be held tomorrow night in the Brookland Gymnasium; four swimming meets, four track meets and twelve baseball games.

Fredericksburg Beats St. John's Five, 17-13

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 21.—Brilliant defensive playing by the Fredericksburg Collegians proved disastrous to the St. John's Prep Five, of Washington, here tonight, as the local players took a 17 to 13 decision. So close was the guarding of the Collegians that the Saints could garner only four field goals throughout.

The first half was particularly hard fought, the score at intermission being 6 to 5. Scanlon's floor work featured for the Capital City boys. The winners were never more than one point ahead until midway the third quarter. St. John's missed many easy shots in the final period.

Richmond Blues Bow; Sweeney Eagles Star

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 21.—With diminutive Joe Sweeney leading the assault with 19 points, the high-powered Skinker Brothers Eagles, of Washington, D. C., showed the Richmond Blues a few tricks in classy shooting and passing tonight on the Armory court while carrying off a 41 to 33 decision.

Sweeney, who has played here so often that he has now become quite a favorite with local fans, dropped the leather into the hoops from all angles of the court, dribbled up and down the court with the speed of a deer and passed with the accuracy of a marksman.

The game exploded with action at the very outset. The Soldiers were unable to get started and at half time the Eagles led by 19-14.

For three-fourths of the contest Joe Sweeney and his boys were riding atop by a slim margin, but in the last 10 minutes, play became fast and furious. The Eagles "stepped on the gas" and rode ahead, never to be halted by the home forces.

German Waits On Winner of Miami Bout

Schmeling Abandons Plans for Bout in Atlantic City.

Singer-Battalino Bout Off, With Finger of Champ Infected.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Another move designed to expedite settlement of the muddled heavyweight championship situation was made today when Max Schmeling's proposed match in the Atlantic City Auditorium, March 29, was called off by the German heavyweight's American manager, Joe Jacobs.

Schmeling's next engagement, according to Jacobs, will be with the winner of the Miami match between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, with every expectation that world's heavyweight championship recognition will be at stake.

The prospect is that Schmeling will fight Sharkey for the title in the feature bout of the milk fund benefit show in the Yankee Stadium, late in June. Contingent upon this are a victory for Sharkey over Scott, February 27, and reinstatement for Schmeling in New York. The German boxer as well as Jacobs have been under an official ban here since refusing to fight Scott at Ebbets Field last summer.

Jacobs made known his latest move in a telegram to Herman Taylor, of the Philadelphia promoting firm of Taylor and Gunnis. Difficulty had been encountered obtaining a suitable opponent for Schmeling at Atlantic City.

Battalino-Singer Bout Off.

Christopher (Bat) Battalino, world's featherweight champion, tackles his first serious title contender since winning the championship from Andre Routis, when he meets Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sharpshooter, in Madison Square Garden March 10.

Battalino was slated to box Al Singer in a nontitular bout in the Garden January 31. This match, however, was called off today by Matchmaker Tom McArdle after the featherweight titleholder was taken to a Philadelphia hospital with an infected finger following a losing match with Lew Massey last night.

Earlier in the day the New York State Athletic Commission had given its approval of the Singer-Battalino contest with the proviso that Battalino post a forfeit of $5,000 to defend his title against Chocolate in March. McArdle said a new opponent would be sought for Singer.

Berg Challenges Mandell.

Jack (Kid) Berg, who rose to the position of lightweight title contender with a decisive victory over Tony Canzoneri last week, filed a challenge with the commission for a match with the 135-pound champion, Sammy Mandell. The solons tabled the defi pending Berg's return from a visit to England. The pair probably will be brought together next summer.

The shifting of dates at the Garden placed the Johnny Risko-Victorio Campolo bout on February 7, one week earlier than previously arranged. Maxie Rosenbloom and Ace Hudkins, who were scheduled to mix February 7, will furnish the attraction on February 14.

Stewart Bros. Defeat Takoma Firemen, 32-20

Hessler's keen shooting featured a 32-20 victory of the Stewart Bros. Photographers over the Takoma Fire Department Five last night at Silver Spring Armory. Hessler collected four field goals and three one-pointers for a total of 11 points. Henley led the attack of the Firemen. Stewart Bros. desire an opponent for Friday night. $25,000 Golf Field Led by O. Dutra

California Spaniard Adds 72 to 74 and Leads by Stroke.

Brother Two Strokes Behind; H. Smith Tied for Second.

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN.

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Dutra brothers, a swarthy pair of Spanish descent, Olin, from Santa Monica, Calif., and Mortie, from Tacoma, Wash., are bent upon taking the greatest prize money ever offered in golf. Braving a Mexican desert breeze, but in much greater comfort than their exploring ancestors of generations ago, they brought in the lowest scores of the day, 72 each, in competition with more than a hundred of the Nation's leading golfers in the second round of the Agua Caliente quest of four days for prizes totaling $25,000.

Tonight Olin Dutra led the field, the tournament half over, with cards of 74 and 72, making the low 146. In the next bracket, of 147, were Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., leading money player of the year, and Charlie Guest, of Los Angeles, professional golfers.

MacDonald Smith, canny Scotch Long Island player, was bracketed with five others in the third group of 148 gross players, the company including Mortie Dutra, Gene Sarazen, New York, the former open champion; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., who led yesterday, and Al Watrous, of Detroit.

48 Drop Out of Tourney.

Forty-eight of the gold seekers fell by the wayside for it took 156 or less strokes for the two rounds of 36 holes, to win the privilege of continuing in the final two rounds of the tournament tomorrow and Thursday.

Here is the way Olin Dutra jumped into the lead:

Dutra out... 434 444 462—35
Par in..... 435 443 454—36—35—71
Dutra in.... 435 444 454—37—35—72

And his brother, Mortie, did it this way:

Out ..... 553 533 453—36
In ..... 535 443 354—36—36—72

Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who took the first day leadership with a brilliant card of 71, did not fare so well with 77 strokes for the round. For the first five holes out he was one over par on each hole, making the outward nine in 40, but he came back in 37.

Two Smiths Remain Among Threats.

The $10,000 first prize money hasn't been won yet. As it is only a matter of three strokes among nine players, it will take full two days more to tell the final story. Those canny Scotchmen by the name of Smith, Horton and MacDonald, haven't by and means released a claim to this biggest of all golf stakes and the last stroke Thursday afternoon no doubt will find them with their fingers on at least a share of the $25,000.

Olin Dutra (Santa Monica, Calif.), 74—72—146.

Charles Guest (Los Angeles), 74—73—147.

Horton Smith (Joplin, Mo.), 74—73—147. Al Espinosa (Chicago), 74—74—148.

Ed Dudley (Wilmington, Del.), 71—77—148.

Thompson Scores All but 3 Of Team's Points.

With the exception of one field goal by Rabbitt and a foul toss by Chatlen, he accounted for all of Western's points, which gave it a 13-to-9 advantage at half time.

Always slow to start, Western saw its rival sweep into a 4-to-1 lead in the first six minutes of play, but with Thompson getting his eye on the basket twice tied the score and finally went into a never-to-be-headed lead early in the second quarter. After Cross had tied the score with a double-decker in front of the basket, Babbitt's foul gave Western a 7-to-6 lead, and from that point on Western was always in the van.

Besides accounting for over half of his team's points, Thompson led his team in an exhibition of individual guarding, with each of his mates following his example to stop the Central stars cold. Every Red and White player stuck to his opponent on the Central Five closer than a brother, with the result that on very few occasions was a Centralite left free to shoot at the basket.

Not one of the Centralites was able to score more than twice from the floor and only six field goals were chalked up by the losing team altogether.

Rice Checked by Freeman.

Bob Freeman, polished center of the Western aggregation, held his high-scoring opponent, Downey Rice, well in check, allowing no more than two field goals during the game. On the other hand, Freeman went on a scoring rampage to register 11 points, dropping the ball in no less than five times from the floor. Alton Rabbitt, a youngster starting for the first time for Coach Clifton Moore's team, aided his team in defending its early-gained lead, while Paul Chatlen prevented the high-scoring Cross from duplicating his previous brilliant performances.

With the play unusually close in the first half, points were chalked up by almost every kind of procedure, balls flipping through the net from distant points on the court as well as flying up in the air from a mad tangle of arms and heads beneath the basket.

Pressed to obtain a 13-9 advantage at the half, Western came back with a whirlwind attack in the second twenty minutes of play.

Lassise's Play Spurs Tech.

Until the entrance of George Lassise, Tech guard, into the fray early in the second quarter, Eastern High was having all the better of its argument in its game with the Maroon and Gray in the opening struggle. With Rayan and Robey leading the attack, the Light Blue and White had Lassise Star as Tech Conquers Eastern Five, 47-27.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

BY HANDING the Central Basketers their first defeat in the high school league to the tune of 36 to 18, while Capt. Jimmy Thompson was setting a scoring record for the current series, Western High School advanced into a tie for first place as the first round of the interhigh series was brought to a close yesterday in the Tech High Gym. By the victory, Western also renewed title hopes of the Tech Five which swamped the Eastern team, 47 to 27, in the opening game to gain second place in the league standing.

Western and Central are now deadlocked for the top rung of the ladder with three wins and one loss, while Tech is resting in the runner-up position with an even break in four games.

With nine field goals and three foul tosses to his credit, Capt. Thompson passed the mark for the season set last week by his rival yesterday, Capt. Wilbur Cross, of the Central Team. Thompson simply was unstoppable, following the ball into the basket for unbelievable shots and pushing the leather through the loop on other shots, which was at times uncanny.

G. U.'s 2-Mile Relay At Newark on Feb. 10

Georgetown University will enter its two-mile relay team in the Seton Hall games at Newark, N. J., on February 10, Coach John D. O'Reilly said yesterday. As yet O'Reilly has not picked the two-mile quartet but he exects to find four capable runners when the time comes to name the team.

Capt. Larry Milstead, Jay Julicher, John Downing and Jack Mara among others are showing excellent form in workouts at present.

St. Martin's Five Easy For St. Mary's Celtics

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 21.—The St. Mary's Celtics easily vanquished the St. Martin's team from Fort Humphrey tonight by the score of 49 to 19. Led by the brilliant playing of Kersey and Wright, the locals were able to pile up a 14-point lead before the visitors could score.

In the preliminary game the Clover A. C. defeated the Company B team by the score of 2 1to 9.

MARYLAND AND NAVY FIVES CLASH AT ANNAPOLIS

Great Battle Promised Fans

Old Liners Have Fine Chance of Repeating 1929 Victory.

Georgetown and C.U. Hosts to Baltimore Teams.

ONE of the best basket ball attractions of the season involving a college team of the Capital area will be played this afternoon, but not on a local court. This is the Maryland-Navy clash which will be staged at Annapolis, starting at 4 o'clock.

Many local fans, however, will be present to watch, as the game promises all sorts of thrills and brilliant basket ball throughout. Both Maryland and Navy are well coached, capable teams, and it seems that Maryland stands a fine chance of repeating its victory of the 1929 campaign. Navy is expected to put forth its best efforts in the hope of avenging the setback of a year ago.

Two other games will be played today by District collegiate outfits, Georgetown being due to meet Johns Hopkins at the Hilltop, while Catholic University engages Mount St. Mary's on the latter's floor at Emmitsburg, Md. The Georgetown-Hopkins contest will commence at 8 p. m.

G. U. and C. U. Striving to Get Back in Win Column.

Both Georgetown and Catholic will be striving to return to the win column in their games. The former has lost its last two, and the Brookland team has fallen seven times in a row. Judging from past performances, the Hilltop Five should realize its ambition, but the outlook is not so bright for Catholic, as in a previous meeting it bowed to the Mountain Saints by 35 to 25.

Maryland will present its strongest line-up against Navy, probably the following: Chalmers and Evans, forwards; Berger, center, and Heagy and Gaylor, guards. This combination is powerful both offensively and defensively.

Owing to the injury of Morris and Mesmer, forward and guard, respectively, Georgetown will send a revamped array into action. Shea and Dutton will perform "up front," White at center, and Capt. McCarthy and Dillon in the guard positions. There is a possibility that Meaher will be able to play.

TETRA GLASS broke in a tangle, but worked his way up and, coming in the outside in the stretch, closed with a rush and was up to win in last stride. BRUNO displayed a world of speed and held on gamely. GRACELAND, away well, suffered interference and closed fast. WOLFY ran a good race under weak handling. KATHERINE W. had early speed. BLARBER had no chance with start.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:19. Off at 3:21½. Winner, E. Kane's b. g. BUB M'FARLAND, much the best, rushed into lead in stretch, interfering with RUNIN LITE and then drew away to win easily. VAGRANT, on the inside all the way, ran a good race. RUNIN LITE was running fast when he was bothered by the winner. POLITEN closed fast. SUNNY PAL ran away six furlongs before start, threw L. Jones, injuring him. Halbert was substituted.

THIRD RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start bad. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:51. Winner, Mrs. George Carroll's ch. g. PEGG'S PRIDE broke rushing into a lead, set a very fast pace and was safe. SINGLE STAR broke well, followed pace closely and held on gamely in the drive. GREENOCK broke fast, but dropped back. He came with a rush on the outside and was running very fast at end. HERRICK slipped through on inside and finished fast. SAGE FIRE broke in a tangle and suffered early interference and closed with a rush. RAPID TRANSIT, on the outside, should improve over this race.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start bad. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:54. Off at 5:00. Winner, T. W. O'Brien's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANN C., $5.80, $3.80, $3.90; BOBBY POWERS, $4.20, $3.00; SWEET CHANCE, $4.50.

Owing to unfavorable atmospheric conditions to accurately discern the colors at the quarter and half mile poles it was impossible to give the calls. However, ANN C. appeared to have taken the lead at the break and easily dominated the running all the way. BOBBY POWERS, a forward factor throughout, finished well under hard riding. SWEET CHANCE raced well up all the way and had no mishaps. P. J. FLAHERTY tired. PLEASEALL was taken back in the first quarter and was never prominent.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:27½. Off at 2:28. Winner, Reuter Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOVIAL FRIAR, $7.90, $3.80, $3.50; COBY, $3.30, $2.60; DABSTER, $3.10.

JOVIAL FRIAR, displaying good speed in the running, went into a long early lead and, although tiring in the stretch, easily held race safe. COBY followed in closest pursuit all the way, but could not overhaul the leaders. DABSTER raced evenly. LEAH JANE was outpaced. TRUDGEON showed brief early speed.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won eased up; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:32. Winner, Miss B. Watson's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHATTERING, $4.40, $3.40, $2.80; PLAYABIT, $9.80, $4.60; PRINCESS ISABELL, $3.40.

CHATTERING led all the way and won eased up by three lengths. PLAYABIT, backward for the first mile, came with a rush nearing the stretch and took second place by three lengths. PRINCESS ISABEL raced well but could not head leaders. CURTAIN CALL had no mishaps. THE COACH quit after showing speed.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:17½. Off at 3:19. Winner, Rancocas Stable's b. f. (3), by Zev—Royalite. Trained by J. Lowe. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:15 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZIDA, $3.40, $2.50, $2.40; BUD CHARLTON, $3.20, $2.70; GENERAL JACKSON, $3.60.

ZIDA, fairly well, disposed of BUD CHARLTON in clever fashion entering the stretch and, continuing well thereafter, easily held race safe. BUD CHARLTON challenged stoutly all the way, but was not good enough. GENERAL JACKSON saved ground and closed a gap. CHENG TU had no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Seminole Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:47. Off at 3:47½. Winner, Rancocas Stable's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DONNAY, $4.10, $2.90, $2.10; EXTREME, $3.70, $2.20; ULUNIU, $2.80.

DONNAY, reserved off the early pace, moved up stoutly on the outside in the stretch and, overhauling leaders, outfinished EXTREME under pressure. EXTREME displayed good speed in the going and, after shaking off ULUNIU in the stretch, weakened in the final drive. ULUNIU tired after setting and forcing the early pace. CALF ROPER had no mishaps. COOTS showed a dull effort.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:18. Winner, F. F. Letellier's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BORDER CHIEF, $4.70, $3.00, $2.60; TEMPTER, $4.10, $3.10; PUNKIE, $3.10.

A heavy fog enveloped the course during the running of this race and it was impossible to accurately make a complete chart. BORDER CHIEF appeared to be outrun early, but moved up stoutly rounding into the stretch and, overhauling TEMPTER, outfinished the latter in final drive. TEMPTER displayed the most speed in the first quarter and apparently led to the stretch, where he weakened upon severe pressure. PUNKIE was well up in the first quarter. CHICK UP, off slowly, apparently closed a gap.

SEVENTH FLOOR—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 4:47. Off at 4:47½. Winner, Mrs. H. D. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HEARTACHE, $25.10, $10.30, $5.30; QUEER QUILL, $4.60, $3.10; ROBINA SETH, $3.20.

A heavy fog enveloped the course during the running of this race and it was impossible to accurately make a complete chart. HEARTACHE was drawing away handily in the final stages. QUEER QUILL finished resolutely. ROBINA SETH was well beaten off. [illegible] the final stages.

Emerson Dribblers Beat St. Albans, 19-14

In a close guarding game, Emerson Institute's Five yesterday defeated the St. Alban's Quintet, 19 to 14, at the Boys Club. The winners took an early lead, finished the half on the long end of a 12-7 score, and, although matched point for point in the second half, never lost their grip on the decision.

25 DRILLING ON W. & M. TRACK

Competition Keen for Berths on Varsity, Frosh Teams.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Jan. 21.—Twenty-five Indian trackmen are completing a third week of preparation for William and Mary's short indoor track season here on the oval in Blow Gymnasium. Stiff competition for positions on the varsity and freshman relay teams marked last week's workouts which ended in time trials Friday.

The William and Mary varsity relay team will compete in two meets this season, the Meadowbrook games in Philadelphia on February 12, and the University of Virginia invitation meet on February 15. An entire freshman team will be entered in the meet at Charlottesville, and several varsity men other than the relay team also will compete there.

Last year in the Philadelphia meet, an Indian quartet walked away with a special mile relay between William and Mary, Temple University, Villa Nova, and St. Joseph's College. William and Mary probably will be matched with some stronger teams this winter due to the fast time the quartet turned in at that time.

Capt. Baggett in Charge. Until Feb. 1.

The team, for the present, is training under the leadership of Capt. Marshall Baggett, quarter-miler, who will be in charge until February 1. Coach Chandler, who has been completing graduate work at Columbia University, returns at that time. Baggett ran anchor on the 1929 relay team and holds the Virginia Conference quarter-mile record at 50.4 seconds.

Zabel and Trice are the other two members of last year's Indian quartet who are back. Smithers, a dash man from the 1929 frosh squad, and Clark, Petterfield and Johnson, also freshmen last year, are all seeking the vacant positions. Wink Johnson, William and Mary's star middle distance runner, who won the 1,000-yard handicap race at the Meadowbrook games last winter, will defend his title in that event.

Fisherville High Five In V. P. I. Event Final

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 21.—Fishersville High, of Augusta County, won the district agricultural high court tournament at Bridgewater College tonight by defeating Merriweather Lewis High, of Albemarle County, in the final, 45 to 29. Fishersville will represent this district in the State tournament at V. P. I. next week.

Fishersville reached the finals by defeating Timberville High, or Rockingham, 28 to 21. Merriweather Lewis conquered two rivals, Weyers Cave, of Augusta, by a score of 38 to 27, and New Market, of Shenandoah, by a count of 32 to 25, to reach the finals. Hall, Merriweather Lewis' center, was the outstanding player of the tournament, scoring 50 points in three games.

Tiger Five Is Prepping For St. John's Feb. 1

Special to The Washington Post.

Hampden-Sidney, Va., Jan. 21.—Although his work has been slowed up considerably by examinations, Coach Bernier is drilling his Tiger Cagers regularly in preparation for their games with St. John's February 1, when the Annapolis Johnnies make their second invasion of the Old Dominion. Conference encounters follow in rapid order with Richmond and Bridgewater.

Starting line-ups for the rest of the season are uncertain, as several regular berths are being energetically struggled for by the second stringers. At center, particularly, a hot fight is under way between Lawson and Arehart. Harris and Smythe are also pressing regular forwards, Sloan and Handy Moore. Smythe, elongated cinder path star, is limbering up his 6 feet 6 inches for the hurdles and high jump next spring.

Moore, speedy sophomore, has been high scorer for the Tigers in every tilt thus far. Bradford, another yearling, is playing a speedy floor game, along with Capt. Willis, who is putting up his usual consistent brand of ball at the other guard position.

Bush Fights Zelnack On Cumberland Card

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 21.—Contracts were signed under which Edward "Red" Bush, local middleweight, will fight "Chuck" Zelnack, of Glassport, Pa., in the ten-round feature bout of the next professional show at the State Armory, Monday, January 27.

"Red" Bush has not appeared in the local ring for more than a year. He won a number of fights here and then went to New York, where he figured in 22 bouts with a record of 17 victories, four draws and one defeat. He fought most of his bouts at Mitchell Field and the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club of Brooklyn. He recently lost a decision in his debut at Madison Square Garden. Zelnack has appeared here twice.

"Socko" Treneman, Westernport heavyweight, will appear in the eight-round semifinal against a good opponent, probably from Pittsburgh.

Jeff Green, Lonaconing middleweight, will oppose Eddie Martin, National Guard boxer. Elmo Biggs, of Ridgeley and Frankie Freeman, of Piedmont, will do battle in the four-round curtain raiser. Promoter Vic Ricker plans to add a six-rounder to the card, making althogether 32 rounds.

National Field Trials Delayed by Weather

Grand Junction, Tenn., Jan. 21 (A. P.).—Bad weather delayed the start this morning in the national championship field trials, to be run over the Ames hunting preserve here.

Rain, which began late yesterday, still was falling at intervals today.

Twenty dogs have been entered to compete for the championship with pointers Woodleigh Buckshop and Outcast drawn to run as the first brace. Woodleigh Buckshop is owned by F. B. Hower, of Buffalo, N. Y., and handled by W. D. English, of High Point, N. C. Outcast is owned by C. S. Jones, of Tulsa, Okla., and handled by C. B. Black, of Oklahoma.

Illinois Athletic Body Bans Heavy Matmen

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission today placed an indefinite ban on all heavyweight wrestling in Illinois because of the failure of title claimants to enter a proposed championship elimination tournament.

POTOMACS, ATTENTION.

Bob Rosenbaum requests all members of the Potomac A. C. to turn in their eligibility blanks for the A. A. U. tournament as soon as possible. The Potomacs are looking for games with 130-pound teams having gyms for Thursday night. Call Cleveland 2685-J.

LEHIGH GRID PROFIT IS SHOWN

Special to The Washington Post.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 21.—With an estimated net profit of $23,500 from football for the current athletic year, 1929-30, at Lehigh University, it appears as if the gridiron sport will shoulder a goodly portion of a losing balance of $34,000 created by losses in the other nine sports and the general operating expenses of the athletic association, according to a budget for this year just released by the board of control of athletics at Lehigh.

Estimated losses in the other nine sports vary from $500 in cross-country to $3,500 in lacrosse. This budget also takes into account the losses occasioned in freshman sports.

Student Athletic Fees Help Some.

Student athletic fees of $20,500 provided the other main source for income to balance these losses and other expense items. If the losses and various items of expense do not exceed the amounts provided in the budget, it appears as if there will be a surplus at the end of the current year of approximately $3,000, which will just about offset a deficit of $3,130 resulting from the year 1928-29. Granting that there is a surplus this year, it will be the first time in the past few years that Lehigh athletics have not operated at a loss.

The football profits for the past season are estimated at $23,500 as mentioned above. The reason this figure is not known exactly is because there are a few small items such as hospital bills still to come in.

This figure is $8,500 above the estimated profits in the budget. But it is more than likely that this amount will almost be entirely offset by greater losses in the other sports than are provided for in the budget. This already holds true for cross-country and soccer in which sports the losses have exceeded the amounts estimated by several hundred dollars.

The total receipts for 1928-29 were $78,192.63 and the expenditures were $82,378.65.

V. P. I. Frosh Trounce Wasp Cubs, 38 to 11

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 21.—A pair of fast forwards found the ring of the basket in War Memorial Hall here tonight and led the V. P. I. Freshman to a 38-to-11 win over Emory and Henry Freshmen. After getting off to a slow start, Bosley and Hall streaked through the Wasp defense to give the Poly Yearlings a safe lead midway the first half and led in keeping the margin safe throughout the final period.

Close guarding by Wolfe and Palmer held the visitors to two goals by Diedrick and a trio of foul shots in the opening half. Bosley, Hall and Belote, who replaced Seaman, regular center, accounted for all of V. P. I.'s points in piling up a 21-to-7 lead at half-time.

V. P. I. Five Noses Out Emory-Henry, 35-29

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 21.—Virginia Polytechnic Institute basketeers came from behind in the final half to take a thriller from Emory and Henry College Quintet here tonight, 35 to 29. With the game all but lost, Baker, Poly forward, uncorked a succession of baskets to win. Emory and Henry uncorked a dazzling attack in the opening half to forge ahead of the Gobblers, 12 to 7, after eight minutes of play. A little forward by the name of Pendleton was too much for V. P. I. with a display of one-handed shots which hit the hoops from all angles. This flashy Wasp ran up six field goals in the first half. His aim was uncanny from the sidelines.

Baker, Moore and Owens came back with goals to send the Gobblers ahead by one point midway the half, but Pendleton looped in another, then another, and Linn Moore ran the visitors' advantage to 6 points. Short range ringers by Zirkle, Baker and Langdon Moore brought the count to 20 to 19 for Emory at the half.

V. P. I. held Pendleton and the other Wasp stars in check the second half. Pendleton failed to score from the floor during the entire period, while Zirkle and Baker streaked through the visitors for a total of 14 points and Looney added 2 to run the final count to 35 to 29 for the Poly team.

Virginia Wins, 36 to 35, In Final Minute of Play

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 21.—Lem Mayo's long, looping shot that trembled on the rim of the basket and then rolled in during the last minute of play enabled Virginia to defeat Richmond, 36 to 35 tonight. It was the first Cavalier victory of the season. Virginia took the lead at the start. Despite the fact that sickness kept Capt. Harrison on the bench, the Cavaliers showed a fine attack and midway through the first half they had a 15 to 5 advantage. The Spiders rallied when Eacho went into the play, but they were behind 17 to 11 at the intermission.

Pinkey Mann, Richmond captain, got the range soon after play was resumed and helped his team cut down the lead. Before any of his mates found the basket, he added 10 points and the count stood 27 to 21 with Virginia still in front. Eacho shot once and Lacy twice while the Cavaliers were content with three fouls. Then Onesty dribbled in to sink one and tie the count at 30 all.

When Onesty repeated, Richmond was leading for the first time, but Bryant rang one from midfloor to knot it again. After Mayo sank a foul, Eacho gave Richmond the advantage with a field goal. On a double foul, Steinberg and Mann each looped the hoop. Then Mayo's almost impossible shot from the side hit the back board, rolled around the rim and went in. In 15 seconds more of play neither team was able to try a shot.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON HONORS LEE AND JACKSON

Dr. Martin and Dr. Russell, Civil War Survivor, Are Speakers.

PLAN RELIGIOUS SURVEY

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 309. Clarendon, Va.

With the singing of a special selection, entitled "Memories of Lee," dedicated to Robert E. Lee, by the male quartet under Luther Dodge, Arlington Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, held its anniversary celebration of the birthday of Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson last night in the rooms of the chamber of commerce with more than 100 persons attending. The invocation was given by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church.

Dr. William E. Martin, the principal speaker, paid a glowing tribute to the memory of both Lee and Jackson, declaring this is not the time to look back over the horrors of the days of "61" but to try and cement closer the relations of all concerned in the great struggle.

"While Gen. Lee was and is today looked upon as one of the greatest soldiers of his time, he knew when the war was over and was often heard to say, 'now is the time to think of rebuilding.'"

Dr. Charles F. Russell, one of the few Civil War survivors in the county, said, "our ranks are rapidly becoming smaller in the entire State of Virginia. There are but 900 Confederate veterans left, while in the entire South there are not more than 5,500 living."

The program included a number of selections by Mrs. Mary Perkins Snyder, vocal selections by Mrs. E. L. Nalley, accompanied by Mrs. T. K. Burchard; recitations by Miss Virginia Dye and selections by the male quartet. The meeting concluded with the benediction by the Rev. George H. Fielding.

Speaking at the meeting of the Back to the District Association held last night in the headquarters of the Association in the Rucker Building, at Clarendon, J. C. Byars declared that every State in the Union has the same interest in the movement to see the Nation's Capital developed as Virginia has.

The chief object of those supporting the movement, he stated, is to see the plan for the beautification of the Nation's Capital developed as it should be.

"To develop that sentiment the movement should have the united support of the citizens of Arlington County," Mr. Byars said.

Richard L. Eacho, vice president of the association, outlined the program of the association and stated that plans are now under way to hold mass meetings in all sections of Arlington County and also in or near the city of Alexandria. He stated that from reports received the sentiment in favor of the movement is growing rapidly in Alexandria.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the holding of mass meetings are Richard L. Eacho, chairman, H. E. Hayes, E. B. Spandler and H. B. Hilton.

The Women's Auxiliary Unit of Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the home of Mrs. Marvin Eubank, Clarendon, at 8 o'clock.

Election of officers will be the principal business to come before the meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, to be held today in the Calvary Methodist Protestant Church in Aurora Hills.

The business meeting will be preceded by a luncheon, which will be served promptly at 12 o'clock by the ladies' aid society of the church.

The Lyon Park Women's Club will hold the first of a series of monthly dinners tonight in the community house from 5:30 to 7 o'clock.

Following the dinner, there will be a special program of entertainment presented, which will be followed by dancing.

The committee having charge of the arrangements consists of Mrs. J. C. Folsom, Mrs. Grace H. Miller, Mrs. J. A. Hardester, Mrs. B. F. Toulotte, Mrs. A. H. Crouch, Mrs. W. T. Baker and Mrs. A. T. Rowell.

With but ten days remaining in which owners of dogs will have to secure the required license tags, owners are warned, according to an announcement last night by Game Warden W. Harry Johnson, that all persons owning dogs failing to comply with the State law will be subject to arrest.

Crashing into a telephone pole on the Lee Highway in Cherrydale yesterday morning, when a bus, loaded with passengers skidded, many escaped serious injury.

Funeral services for Vanderbelt Quick, 72 years old, who died at his home, 813 Wilson Boulevard, Clarendon, will be conducted from the home this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, by the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, pastor of the Clarendon Baptist Church. Interment will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church.

Mr. Quick was born in Flemington, N. J., coming to Virginia with his parents when a boy. Since retiring from his farm in Loudoun County, 26 years ago, he made his home in Washington and nearby Virginia. For many years he was postmaster at Falls Church.

Besides his widow, he is survived by four children, Dr. Ralph Quick, of Clarendon; Mrs. Frank W. Sramek and G. Willard Quick, of Washington, and Mrs. Paul W. Bowman, of Clarendon.

A survey of religious conditions in the Falls Church community to be made during the month of February by a special committee of ten members from each of the Protestant churches has been decided upon by the Ministerial Union of Falls Church.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12 o'clock in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse, with President A. B. Honts presiding.

There will be a meeting of the Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus, tonight in the auditorium of St. Charles School Building at 8 o'clock.

Word was received from Richmond yesterday that the State highway department has decided to have work of widening the Washington-Richmond highway, extending from a point opposite the Southern Oxygen Plant in South Washington to Four Mile Run, suspended during the remainder of the winter.

The board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at its meeting to be held tomorrow night in the board rooms in the Rees Building at 8 o'clock will elect the new officers for the year. In addition to the election of officers, five new directors will be selected.

The Arlington Rotary Club meets tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club with the president, D. R. N. Sutton, presiding.

M. R. Coleman, charged with operating an automobile with an improper license plate and also speeding, forfeited $15 in each case in the county police court yesterday. Judge Harry R. Thomas presided.

The Arlington Chapter, No. 39, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold its monthly card party tonight at the home of Mrs. Mary E. Hutson, Preston avenue, Cherrydale.

FIREMEN FIGHT LUMBER BLAZE

LUMBER YARD BLAZE CAUSES $10,000 LOSS

Origin of South Washington Fire Is Undetermined by Investigators.

FIREMEN ARE HAMPERED

Fire ravaged the Armstrong Lumber Co. yards in South Washington Va., near Highway Bridge, early last night and destroyed the office building and warehouse before it was finally brought under control about 6:30 o'clock. Damage will reach about $10,000, firemen estimated.

Eight fire companies, including No. 13 Engine Company, of Washington, responded to the alarm, but encountered several difficulties before they were able to play water on the flames. As no water plugs were near the lumber yard, the hose had to be stretched almost a mile to Columbia pike.

The blaze, which was well under way when the fire companies arrived, had spread to a pile of lumber and laths before the spraying was started. Another block of lumber, which was beginning to smoke, was saved, however, by quick action of the firemen.

No clews as to the cause of the fire had been determined at an early hour this morning. The alarm was turned in shortly before 5 o'clock, it is believed, by residents nearby. Soon the flames mounted high into the sky and were visible for some distance, even in the Capital.

Besides the Washington company, the following firefighters responded to the alarm: Jefferson District, Cherrydale, Clarendon, Ballston, East Arlington, Arlington and Potomac.

Body Found in Wreck That of Richmond Boy

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 21.—Relatives have identified the body of a youth found in the debris of a freight train wreck near Drakes Branch several days ago as that of Elmo Porter, 14-year-old Richmond boy. H. O. Boaze and Mrs. Maude Williams, his uncle and aunt, have returned from Keysville, where identification was established.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Porter, the youth's father and stepmother, of Richmond, met the local relatives there and all positively identified the body. The youth is reported to have left his home on the day before the accident, and apparently was hoboing his way to this city when he met his death.

Right Rev. B. D. Tucker Buried in Charles Town

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 21.—Funeral services of the Right Rev. Beverly D. Tucker, who died at his home in Norfolk, Va., Friday, were held here today. The body was interred in Zion Churchyard beside that of his wife, who died three years ago.

Bishop W. L. Gravatt, of West Virginia; Bishop C. A. Thomson, and Dr. H. H. Covington, of Norfolk, and the Rev. J. F. W. Field, rector of Zion Church, had charge of services at the grave. Representative H. St. Tucker, of Lexington, Va., a cousin of the deceased, attended.

Martinsburg Father Told of Flier's Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 21.—Edwin Omps, 27 years old, one of three men killed when an airplane flying from the Bahama Islands to Daytona Beach, Fla., fell Sunday into Lake Worth, Palm Beach, Fla., was a resident of this city, it was established today when his father, Lafayette Omps was notified of the tragedy.

The flier was a native of Frederick County, Va. Relatives here asked information as to whether the body had been recovered. The flier is survived by his widow and two children. The other two killed in the accident were William Lindley, vice president of the company and chief pilot, and W. Lipsky, mechanic.

Board Member Says Doors of Institution May Be Reopened Soon.

CLOSED BY DIRECTORS

When the State examiners began checking its accounts, the Bank of Del Ray, Va., near Alexandria, voluntarily suspended business yesterday. The bank did not open and a notice on the door stated it had been closed by order of the directors for purposes of an audit.

In a statement issued by Carl L. Budwesky, an attorney and member of the board, it was stated the board hopes to reopen the bank for business within a few days and be in a position to pay all depositors in full.

In its last statement to the State banking department, the bank reported its resources at $104,559.79; loans and discounts at $75,146.41 and deposits of $54,048.07. It was organized August 1, 1923, under the banking laws of the State of Virginia, and has a capital stock of $25,000.

Nelson T. Snyder is president of the institution, and Clay T. Brittle, chashier, while members of the board include Judge William P. Woolls, John Gary, George E. Garrett, Tony Guiffre, A. A. Bittenfender and Henry P. Thomas.

Last April the bank was robbed of $2,500 but it was stated at the time that the loss was covered by insurance.

Fourth Death Occurs In Family in Brief Time

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Jan. 21. — Mrs. Sallie J. Evans, 68 years of age, died yesterday at the home of Mrs. Maude Lynch, in Round Hill, where she had been living since last fall. She had been ill for some time. Mrs. Evans was a Miss Alider before her marriage and a native of this county.

Mrs. Evans' death is the fourth in the Alider family during the last three months. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 11:30 from Cornwell's undertaking parlors in Purcellville, with burial in Lakeview Cemetery, Hamilton.

FAIRFAX MAN HELD GUILTY OF LARCENY

SALARY RAISES SOUGHT

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna, 64.

Opening the second day of the January term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, with Judge Howard W. Smith presiding, a jury, of which John T. DeBell was foreman, found Elburn Collins guilty of petit larceny and recommended a sentence of 90 days in jail and a fine of $25 and costs. Collins was indicted by the November grand jury for grand larceny on a charge of stealing a truck and a quantity of meat from H. H. Ankers, at Merrifield. He was tried only on an indictment for the stealing of meat at this time, the other indictment for the alleged theft of the truck and an indictment against Clarence Allison, which grew out of this same case, was continued until the March term of court.

The following civil cases were disposed of by the court:

R. O. E. Saunders was appointed administrator of the estate of Edward I. Saunders, who died in October, 1918. He was required to furnish a surety bond of $6,520.

Mary Stone, known as Mamie Stone, who was adjudged of unsound mind recently by a committee, was declared non compos mentis by the court, and B. H. Randall was appointed a committee to take charge of her affairs. He was required to file $1,000 bond.

The court entered an interlocutory order in regard to the adoption of Carl Frederick Williams, a 3-year-old infant, by Wilber A. and Elsie H. Gersdorf. If at the end of the statutory period no objections are made the child will become the legal son of the Gersdorfs.

The sheriff was ordered to deliver an Oakland sedan, seized by him for violation of the State prohibition law from S. E. Duncan, to the H. & W. Motor Corporation, of Newport News, Va., the holder of a lien against the car for $1,342, which was adjudged to be more than the car was worth.

The court granted permission to the trustees of the Rock Hill Church of God to sell 40 acres of land belonging to the church, near Centerville, to Thomas J. Caudle.

In the suit of the Rufus H. Darby Printing Co., Inc., against E. E. Anderson and others, with the Fairfax County Fair Association, co-defendants, it was shown that the Fair Association was indebted to Anderson for the sum of $208 and that the printing company held a judgment against Anderson for an amount in excess of this amount. The court ordered the Fair Association to turn the $208 over to the printing company to apply against the judgment.

The heirs of Robert E. and Mary E. Schurtz petitioned the court to grant them relief in regard to the erroneous assesment of land against them for the years of 1916 to date. It was shown to the court that this land was assessed twice, once in the name of Mary E. Schurtz and the other in the name of the estate of Robert E. and Mary E. Schurtz. It was also shown that the taxes had been paid on one of the assessments every year. The court ordered that the assessment be stricken off the delinquent land books of the Commissioner of Revenue and stricken off of the unpaid tax list in the treasurer's office, and the land assessed hereafter only as of against the estate.

It is reported that L. L. Freeman, delegate from Fairfax County, will introduce a bill in the State Legislature in an effort to have the salaries of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors raised. The bill will provide for a salary of $400 a year for each member to be paid on a flat rate basis and the members to pay their own expenses while attending the meetings of the board. Under the present rate the supervisors receive $6 per day and mileage from their homes to Fairfax for each meeting, not to exceed 25 meetings a year. This makes the maximum salary any member can receive $150 a year and mileage. Several of the members who receive appointment on the different committees attend more than 30 meetings every year.

W. F. P. Reid, chairman of the board, pointed out that the sum asked for was not an excessive amount as the members of the board of supervisors of Arlington County received $100 a month. Chairman Reid also stated that at the present time a regular meeting of the board was only held once a month, but as the growth of the county was bringing to the board a larger number of important questions, relative to the welfare of the county, than ever before, it would be necessary in the near future to hold meetings more often.

The Ladies Social Club of the St. John's Catholic Church at El Nido will hold their meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. M. McGarvey.

There will be a meeting of the Clifton Parent-Teacher Association tonight in the school auditorium there.

The Providence Council of the Daughters of America at Fairfax will hold their meeting tonight.

The quarterly meeting of the Fairfax District, Daughters of America, will be held today in Alexandria, when the various councils will be the guests of the Mary Washington Council there.

Three Psittacosis Victims Recover

Annapolis Cases, First in Country Stricken, Are Virtually Well.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 21.—The three Annapolis victims of psittacosis, or parrot fever, first to be stricken by the mysterious malady that led to a Nation-wide investigation by health authorities, have practically recovered, it was announced today, and there is no indication of any further cases here.

Lee W. Kalmey, proprietor of an automobile garage and service station, has been discharged from Emergency Hospital and is now at the home of his mother. His wife, Mrs. Edith M. Kalmey, was slower to respond to teratment, but her condition is such that she will be able to leave the hospital within a few days.

Mrs. Kalmey's mother, Mrs. Simon S. Martin, wife of the secretary of the Annapolis Chamber of Commerce, still is confined to her home, though she has virtually recovered. Mrs. Martin's illness was less severe than that of her son-in-law and daughter.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT APPEALS PRESENTED

Two Petitions Are Given to Montgomery County Commissioners.

$250,000 IN BONDS SOLD

Two petitions for road improvements were presented to the Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday at their meeting in Rockville.

A delegation from Damascus district headed by S. W. Beall appeared to present a petition signed by 124 residents of the section asking for the improvement of the road from Purdum through Lewisdale to Beall's Cross roads. The road is laid out as follows: "Beginning at the end of the road as now built from Purdum to Brown's House and run by and with the road as now laid out through Lewisdale to the cross roads at Beall's store. Then turning to the left and by and with the Hyattstown road to Beall's cross roads. The entire distance being about 1 3-10 miles."

The second petition signed by Marion Howes and 86 others asked for the improvement of the following road located in Laytonsville and Damascus Districts: "One mile macadam road leading off the Laytonsville-Etchison road in the direction of Woodfield, sometimes called the Jordan road."

State Senator Humphrey Wolfe, of Howard County, representing the county commissioners of Howard County, appeared before the board and asked that Montgomery County join with Howard County in the completion of the road leading from Brookeville to and across the Patuxent river into Howard County. Senator Wolfe said that the Howard County Commissioners are prepared to go ahead with construction work in Howard County. The senator was told that the Montgomery County Commissioners already have made provision for the Montgomery end of the road.

The board awarded an issue of $250,000 of 6 per cent certificates of indebtedness dated December 15, 1929, to Gillett & Co., of Baltimore, the highest bidders. The Gillett Co. bid 100.51 and accrued interest, equivalent to $251,275, a premium of $1,275.

The funds raised from the sale of the certificates are to be used in the construction of streets and sidewalks in the suburban area and are to be paid in five annual installments by the property owners benefited, through a front foot benefit tax.

$25,000 Fire Sweeps Highland Beach Hotel

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 21.—Fire of unknown origin last night destroyed the large frame hotel and spread to two bungalows at Highland Beach, a resort on Chesapeake Bay, colonized by Negro residents of Washington, with a loss of approximately $25,000, partly covered by insurance.

Volunteer firemen from Annapolis, Eastport and West Annapolis gave fine service in preventing the flames from spreading to other frame residences. Engines pumped water from Black Walnut Creek. The fire, starting in the hotel, owned by Rubard Ware, wrecked that structure, causing a loss estimated at $18,000, with insurance of only $3,000. The flames then spread to a small bungalow owned by Sarah Hall and destroyed it with a loss of $3,000. The blaze then swept to a larger bungalow, valued at $6,000 and owned by Dr. J. E. Washington, said to be a son of the late Booker T. Washington. This property, which was partly destroyed, was insured for $4,500.

COUNTY AUTHORITIES CHECK INDIAN'S TALE

Prince Georges Officials Are Mystified by Attack on Thomas Spybuck.

LAY HURT IN BUNGALOW

Prince Georges County authorities are investigating the story of Thomas Spybuck, an Indian, about 40 years old, who was found in an unconscious condition yesterday in a bungalow under construction at Forestville, Md.

The Indian was found in a pool of blood, with several deep gashes on his head, by workmen in the bungalow. He was taken to the office of Dr. James I. Boyd, at Forestville, who dressed the wounds and called Deputy Sheriff L. E. Dutrow.

Deputy Dutrow took the Indian to the office of State's Attorney J. Frank Parran for questioning. With great difficulty, the police managed to get a somewhat incoherent story from the Indian. He said that he met two men he had seen several times, but whose names he did not know, on Seventh street, between M and N northwest, Washington, and that they had taken him for a ride.

When the trio reached Forestville, the Indian said, the two men attacked him and, after taking $65 in cash from him, left him in the bungalow.

Mr. Spybuck was in such a weakened condition that he could not be questioned closely and he was placed in the county jail until he could recover his strength. He gave a partial description of the men and police of Washington have been asked to search for them.

Anne Arundel Citizen Is Acquitted of Fraud

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 21.—Indicted by the Anne Arundel County grand jury on a charge of embezzlement, George T. Chaney, Fifth District farmer and road foreman of that section, was acquitted following trial before Judge Robert Moss in circuit court here today.

It was alleged that Chaney made an improper transaction by taking a Negro laborer employed by the county road gang and putting him to work mowing grass along a State road at the instance of the State Roads Commission. The account of services rendered amounted to $30.87, which it developed at today's hearing was paid to the county by Chaney, but there had been delay in settlement by the roads commission, as a result of which he had not made formal report to the county road engineer. The transaction took place in July of last year.

Retired Army Officer Is Found Dead at Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Cambridge, Md., Jan. 21.—The dead body of Col. Harry G. Sommers, U. S. A., retired, was found yesterday at his home in Casons Neck, this county, by a caretaker named Smith. Dr. Gilbert Meekins, Cambridge, said paralysis was the cause of death. Col. Sommers was last seen alive on Saturday. He came here two years ago from Hagerstown, where a sister is said to reside.

Army officers from Holabird arrived today to arrange for interment, which probably will be at Arlington Cemetery.

Gordonsville Firemen Reelect Acree Chief

Special to The Washington Post.

Gordonsville, Va., Jan. 21.—At the annual meeting of the Gordonsville Volunteer Fire Company, Monday, at the local firehouse, L. M. Acree was elected chief for the tenth consecutive year. Other officers elected were as follows: J. H. Freed, first assistant; A. M. Sindlinger, second assistant; R. O. Blount, chief engineer; J. S. Sindlinger, captain of hose, and J. W. Preddy, secretary-treasurer.

The company was organized in 1916. Since its organization it has assisted by the Ladies Auxiliary, of which Mrs. E. A. Sampson is president, bought two large trucks and is housed in its own building, a two-story brick structure.

The 1929 monetary losses from fires in the community reached a minimum, being less than $1,000.

Rev. Carter Page Quits South Boston Church

Special to The Washington Post.

Berryville, Va., Jan. 21.—The Rev. T. Carter Page, who for the past four years has been rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, South Boston, has tendered his resignation to the vestry of that parish to take effect after Easter. The Rev. Mr. Page is retiring from the ministry and he and his family will come to Berryville and make their home with Mrs. Page's sister, Mrs. R. J. Lewis.

L. L. NICHOLSON DIES.

Veteran Marine Corps Clerk Expires Near Rockville.

Leonard Lispenard Nicholson, 87 years old, who for 40 years was chief clerk of the adjutant inspector's office of the United States Marine Corps, died yesterday at the home of his son, Leonard L. Nicholson, jr., Rockville pike near Rockville. He had been a resident of nearby Rockville since 1905. Mr. Nicholson was born in Washington October 1, 1842, the son of Maj. Augustus S. Nicholson, quartermaster of the United States Marine Corps. He was chief clerk of the adjutant inspector's office until 1905, when he retired.

He is survived by two sons, James B. Nicholson and Leonard L. Nicholson, jr., both prominent realtors of Washington. Two nephews, Rear Admiral Reginald F. Nicholson and Brig. Gen. William J. Nicholson, reside in Washington. Funeral services will be held at the home of his son on the Rockville pike tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

A Correction

The Post was in error in its issue of yesterday in reporting the address of Dr. John Foote, president of the District Medical Society, before the Monday Evening Club. Dr. Foote did not say that Columbia Hospital was understaffed. He did make this statement with reference to the District Health Department. In discussing Columbia Hospital Dr. Foote opposed the proposal to consolidate it with Gallinger and praised the work which Columbia Hospital is doing, especially in prenatal treatment.

Annapolis Cadet Will Join His Wife

Married Midshipman Says He Is to Enter Business With Father.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 21.—The final chapter of a romance of childhood school days that led to their secret marriage in June, 1928, and was revealed only a few days ago, came today when John Henry Faunce, jr., of Philadelphia, midshipman of the fourth class, left the Naval Academy, presumably to join his wife, former Miss Marian Ethel Downs, of Overbrook, Pa., who recently abandoned her course of study as a sophomore at Goucher College, Baltimore.

The former midshipman was disinclined to discuss his plans, except to say that he contemplated engaging in business with his father, J. H. Faunce, sr., Philadelphia broker, although the parent has been quoted as saying that he knew nothing of his son's wedding or his intentions to leave the Naval Academy until he read it in the newspapers.

Mr. Faunce was married a year before entering the naval school. Under the circumstances academy officials would not accept his resignation of two weeks ago, but decided that he be "dropped" from the rolls, and the Navy Department has just approved of the recommendation.

BOY SCOUTS TO BUY CAMP SHENANDOAH

Resort to Be Used by Troops From Five Counties in Valley.

DEVELOPED BY ROTARY

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 21.—Camp Shenandoah, located on the Shenandoah River 15 miles east of Harrisonburg, this summer will become the Mecca of Boy Scouts from five Shenandoah Valley counties as the result of the projected purchase of the resort by the Stonewall Jackson Boy Scout Council, which embraces the area.

The Harrisonburg Rotary Club, which founded Camp Shenandoah and operated it as an attraction for boys and girls during the last nine summers, has been advised by Michael Kivlighan, of Staunton, president of the Stonewall Jackson Boy Scout Council, that the body has decided to purchase the camp. All the districts embraced in the council have ratified the proposition.

Camp Shenandoah is located on a 20-acre wooded plot on the banks of the Shenandoah and was developed by the Rotary Club at a cost of $10,000. With the advent of the Boy Scouts the capacity of the camp probably will be enlarged to 100 boys. The plant includes a large lodge, a dining hall and a dozen tent houses, the equipment comparing very favorably with any private camp in the East. Facilities are available for all forms of sports, including water recreation.

Boy Scouts at Covington, Clifton Forge, Warm Springs, Lexington, Staunton, Waynesboro, Harrisonburg and other towns in the five counties will use Camp Shenandoah during the summer. Last year the Scouts erected an improvised camp on Jackson River, near Lexington, but this was not sufficient to care for the needs.

If the transfer is completed at once, it is probable that Camp Shenandoah may this spring be the scene of the scoutmasters' training school and of the jamboree of picked patrols from each troop along the Eastern Seaboard.

Twelve miles to the west of Harrisonburg, at Rawley Springs, is located the Girl Scouts camp for the District of Columbia area. This resort attracted 500 campers from Washington and vicinity last summer.

POORER FAMILIES MOST CHARITABLE

Study of Virginia Social Life Finds That Farmers Spend More for Reading.

RURAL AUTOS IN LEAD

University, Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The parable of the widow's mite finds new application in the results of a study of social life in Virginia, revealing that the poorer families, both farm and city, give more proportionately to church and charity than more prosperous classes.

The more liberal attitude of the poorer families was one of a number of interesting facts discovered by Dr. Wilson Gee and Dr. William Henry Stauffer, of the Institute for Research in the social sciences of the University of Virginia. They divided the families remaining into "intermediate" and "prosperous" divisions.

Another discovery was that while city families spend more actually for reading matter, their country cousins spend a larger proportionate amount for the same purpose. Both in absolute amount and relatively the city families spend more for cultural things, however.

Automobiles Used in Country.

The automobile found less widespread use among city families than in the country. Among the poor families, 25 per cent in the city had cars, 37 per cent of the families of the intermediate group, and 85 per cent of the prosperous.

The poor families in the city averaged about five times as great an expenditure as the similar farm group for household furnishings and equipment. In the intermediate and prosperous groups, the proportionate expenditure was approximately twice as great as in the corresponding farm groups.

Among poor families, those in the city spent for health costs 65 per cent more than those on the farm, intermediate city families 53 per cent more, and prosperous city families 103 per cent more.

Investment in insurance was found to be more prevalent among city families than among farm families. The poor group averaged annual premium payments for insurance amounting to $49, the intermediate group $78, and the prosperous group $539. As a percentage of total living costs, the city families of the poor group averaged 5 per cent, the intermediate 4 per cent and the prosperous 8 per cent of the total living costs applied to insurance.

City Spends for Culture.

Both in absolute amount and relatively the city families spent more heavily for cultural things. In both country and city the amount spent increased from the poor to the prosperous families, and the percentage of the total budget which these items claimed increased likewise.

The city families in each group averaged a smaller number of living children per family than the farm groups.

A higher percentage of the parents in the poor families completed elementary schooling in the city than on the farm. In the intermediate group the number completing grammar school varied but slightly. The higher educational attainment of parents in prosperous city families embraced a much larger percentage of the total number.

Schooling of Children.

The children in the poor city families average six years of schooling, as compared with seven years for the farm children in the same group. The accomplishment of the city and farm children of the intermediate group is about the same—eight years and a fraction above, respectively.

Children in the prosperous city group showed eleven years as an average attainment, but this was one year below the accomplishment of children in prosperous farm families.
